EIGHT MEMBERS OF GUARD JAILED

Eight Fitchburg national guardsmen went to jail today for failure to attend drills.

This was the first move in a statewide campaign to build up the morale of the guard.

High officials have ordered that offenders in every city in Massachusetts be court-martialed.

Massachusetts guardsmen guilty of repeated absence from drills will be tried. Confirmation of this was given the Boston American by Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens today.

The general said:

"The men in the National Guard must be taught the seriousness of their oath. We have changed the former methods of enforcing the law. Now, instead of fining the

DECLARE M'LEISH WERE BOTH SLAIN

Newport, R. I., Jan. 27.—Two medical examiners, Dr. William A. Sherman and Dr. Charles W. Stewart, today declared J. A. Fraser McLeish could not have killed himself by dashing his brains out against the bath room radiator. Their statement virtually clinches the double murder theory.

Certain ones held the idea that McLeish had killed his wife and then killed himself, but that theory is virtually eliminated from everyone's mind by the statements of the two doctors.

They declare the wound was of such shape and character that it could not have been made by the radiator, and the position of the body precludes any possibility of McLeish having battered his head in. The wound, the doctors say, was inflicted by an instrument, the same one that slew the wife.

REPORT RUM FLEET GOES TO NEWPORT

New York, Jan. 27.—Reports were current today that a part of the rum fleet off the Jersey coast had broken away to lay siege to Newport, R. I.

The police seized a fast launch, with whiskey and champagne valued at $150,000 at South Beach, Staten Island. The liquor is believed to have come from this fleet.

Several craft were reported to have run the blockade and landed wet goods along the Jersey and Long Island shores during the night.

4 BREAKS IN 24 HOURS IN WALTHAM

Four homes in Waltham were broken into during the past twenty-four hours. The residence of Henry J. Bishby, No. 104 Washington avenue, was entered and a ring, a lodge emblem and other property valued at $100 were taken. The family was away.

J. Frechette reported that his candy store at No. 851 Moody street had been robbed of $45.

The home of Michael Sulkin, No. 110 Moody street, was entered and a number of tools removed. These he afterwards found in his back yard.

Burglars who pried open a storm-door and jimmied a window at the residence of John Burns, No. 72 Spruce street, were apparently frightened away.

ASKS RECEIVER FOR A. O. U. W. INSURANCE

A bill in equity filed today in the Supreme Court asks for the appointment of a receiver for the Ancient Order United Workmen of Massachusetts, a benefit insurance order.

It is alleged by the petitioners that the order, which is supposed to have more than $10,000,000 in reserve, has in fact not over $600,000. Of the 21,000 members, it is alleged, about half over 60 years of age, and hundreds are between the ages of 75 and 98.

The petitioners are William E. Delaney, Thomas E. Murphy, Thomas M. Walsh, Patrick D. Cronin and James Stone.

"HUMAN ENGINE" IS DERAILED BY WIFE

New York, Jan. 27.—The "human locomotive," Samuel Johnson, was derailed today by Magistrate Conway in the Long Island City Court.

Johnson, who achieved fame by running last Summer from New York to Boston attempted to steam through his wife's bungalow with a sledge hammer because she "ruined his athletic career" as explained to the court. His wife charged that he assaulted her. And that in the process of steaming through the bungalow he wrecked it.

FIND FAKE 'MASTER-PIECES'

Police, Duped by Captain Bellini, Trace "Paintings" to Boylston Street

Three paintings reported to have been stolen from the bachelor apartment of Capt. Umberto G. Bellini, an Italian cavalry officer, at No. 4 Brimmer street, were recovered today by police inspectors at the auction rooms of Leonard & Co., No. 689 Boylston street.

Bellini yesterday told the police the paintings were masterpieces worth $540,000.

Cecil P. Robertson, manager of the Leonard shop, said today two foreigners sold the supposed "Italian masterpieces" to him for $100.

He reserved payment until they produced the bill of sale, which they claimed they obtained in the Argentina Republic.

That was on January 18. They never returned for the money. They first demanded $600 for the three paintings, but Manager Robertson, who is an expert, thought the price excessive after studying the canvases.

It would appear from information

SHOUTS HIS INNOCENCE ON STAND

Prisoner in Dramatic Climax Accuses Prosecutor of "Dirty Work"

Attorney William R. Scharton to his client, Jesse Murphy:

"Jesse, did you have anything to do with the murders of Hall or Foley?"

Jesse Murphy, with upraised hand and shouting:

"I never had anything to do with the murder of either Hall or Foley."

Thus the direct testimony of Murphy closed in Superior Court today at his trial for the two ice store murders of six years ago.

"You may inquire," said Attorney Scharton, turning his client over to Assistant District Attorney Henry P. Fielding for cross-examination.

ACCUSES FIELDING.

The close of the cross-examination was also dramatic. After long sparring between the prosecutor and the defendant, Fielding ejaculated:

"Why don't you be fair, Jesse?"

Murphy retorted with vim:

"You gotta lot of nerve to stand here and make remarks like that after the dirty work you've done in this case."

AUTO FALLS INTO SAUGUS RIVER

A motor delivery truck of the A. P. Merchant Co., Avery street, Boston, skidded in Lynn today, ripped through 20 feet of railing and plunged over a banking 50 feet into Saugus River. Chauffeur Angelo Di Racco, 199 Salem street, Boston, landed on the edge of the banking, his face battered by a flying piece of fence rail.

DEMPSEY AND WILLARD MATCHED

New York, Jan. 27.—Jack Dempsey's next fight in defence of his championship will be against Jess Willard and the battle will be staged in Boyle's Thirty Acres Arena, Jersey City, according to a story printed exclusively in the New York Journal today. Tex Rickard will promote the contest, which will befought on June 30. "This announcement is made on authority that cannot be questioned," the journal says.

ence. He has been pardoned by Pennsylvania for the paymaster holdup for which he was serving sentence when brought back to Massachusetts. He is confident of acquittal on the tea store murder charges. He cannot be sent back to prison in Pennsylvania. His attitude in court expressed his easy viewpoint.

Another interesting statement in the cross-examination was Murphy's declaration:

"Before I quit school (in Worcester) I was working in the office of District Attorney E. Rockwood Hoar as an office boy. I worked there from six months to a year."

DENOUNCES McGLINCHEY.

Murphy, in direct examination, denounced Herbert McGlinchey as a police informer. McGlinchey is the Boston youth who went to Pennsylvania with Walter G. O'Donnell's Hannan, a newspaper reporter, when Murphy says he signed a statement that "Rollins did not kill Foley."

"Yes," asserted Murphy with emphasis. Attorney Scharton asked: "Do you know if Herby McGlinchey is a stool pigeon?"

"He has been a stool pigeon for (Inspector) Mike Morrissey for fifteen years. He conducted a school of crime for kids. He takes kids in knee pants and teaches them to go down to the market district and steal pocketbooks from poor old women."

PROLONGS TRIAL.

The defence had more witnesses after the State closed its cross-examination of the defendant. The State has several witnesses to call in rebuttal. The State has also sent Probation Officer Hackett of Philadelphia to bring to Boston a receiver with which, according to Fielding, Murphy shot and wounded his victim in the paymaster robbery in Philadelphia.

For these reasons the trial will run into next week. It was figured today that final arguments of counsel and the judge's charges might be concluded so the case will go to the jury by late Tuesday afternoon.

When Murphy resumed the stand today for his continued defence he was asked by Attorney Scharton where he got the names of Stevie Mack and Butler, who were mentioned in the so-called confession of Fielding as two others in the tea store murders.

BUTLER AND MACK.

Murphy said he got the name of Mack from Major Thomas Walsh, that is, that Major Walsh told him Mack had been killed on a ferry boat. Therefore, Murphy added, he felt safe in using Mack's name.

He accounted for the Butler name by saying that this was the name of a colored man of the Philadelphia underworld.

"As there was no colored man on the tea store job," said Murphy, "I felt safe in using Butler's name."

At the time Major Walsh and others saw him at Fairview Sanitarium, Murphy said United States Senator David I. Walsh, the major's brother, called on the telephone and talked with Major Walsh.

The late United States Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania also talked over the wire to the prison warden and asked him to extend courtesies to the Walsh party.

BEEN "SPORTING MAN."

When Fielding took Murphy for cross-examination, his first questions were on Jesse's boyhood. He said he quit school after the ninth grade in Worcester at thirteen years. After his statement of working for the late District Attorney Hoar and in Worcester there came the following interrogation:

Q.—Where did you ever work since then? A.—Oh, I've been a sporting man all my life.

Q.—Ever have any regular work? A.—Well, for myself, I ran a cigar store in Detroit from July, 1916, up to the time I was pinched in Philadelphia.

Q.—When I entered the room where the doctor was in Philadelphia do you remember what you said to me? A.—Yes, and I remember what you said to me. You said—

HAIR HAD CHANGED.

Q.—Was the first question asked 'Do you know who this is?' (indicating Fielding). A.—No, you're mistaken. There was some talk. A fellow was sitting there with a portfolio. They said: 'Don't you want to see those gentlemen?' You know who he is, don't you?' And I said: 'Oh, yes, that's District Attorney Fielding but the last time I saw him he had red hair.'

At this Fielding queried: "Would it surprise you to know that it was brown, not red?"

"Well," retorted Murphy airily, "brown's a shade of red."

"Well," pursued Fielding, "had you seen me before this court?"

"Oh, yes," countered Murphy, "you tried to give me two years and I got only one."

LOOKS LIKE $500,000--EH?

ONE OF THE FAKE MASTERPIECES STOLEN IN BACK BAY

Here's the "Madonna With Two Children" which Captain Bellini, the owner, declared was worth half a million real dollars, but which a Boylston street art critic valued at less than $100. It is one of the three "art treasures," the captain says, were stolen from his apartment. All have been recovered by the police. The mystery has shrunk like the value of the pictures themselves.

Speaking of the "confession," Fielding asked: "You remember my saying to you: 'I am here solely in the interests of justice. I want only the truth. If you tell me the same story you told me before, it may mean the electric chair for you'"

Murphy: "Sure, but I knew that was only a bluff. Major Walsh told me to pay no attention to what you said; that it was all fixed. You didn't want the truth. If you did, you would have gone to Detroit and found my name on the hotel register there."

"Let me refresh your memory—" "I'll refresh yours—"

Q.—When did you first give the names of Stevie Mack and Butler?" A.—Three days after Major Walsh told me Mack was shot on a ferry boat.

'OK USE AT PLATTSBURG.

Q.—What did you shoot the bank messenger in Philadelphia with? A.—A 44-army Smith & Wesson, nickel-plated gun that I bought in Philadelphia. I was going to use it as a side-arm at Plattsburg Training Camp.

Q.—Wasn't there another gun down there?

"Oh, yes," shouted Murphy almost at a yell, "the gun that you and McCarthy (of the district attorney's office) planted in the office of Probation Officer Hackett (Philadelphia)."

Then Fielding asked his question why he was not Murphy "fair" with him, which brought Murphy's retort that Fielding had "his nerve" after the "dirty work" on the case.

MOTHER OF SLAIN BABY ARRESTED

New London, Conn., Jan. 27.—Charged with first degree murder, Miss Grace M. McSheffery of Manchester, N. H., self-confessed mother and slayer of the baby found in the field at the corner of Reed and Bingham streets last Saturday, was arrested here today and removed to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital for medical treatment.

John J. Gannon, of Philadelphia, a sailor at the submarine base, with whom she had been living as man and wife in that city, is facing the same charge and was expected to be arrested late today.

GIRLS' DORMITORY AT COBURN BURNED

Waterville, Me., Jan. 27.—The third floor and attic of Coburn Cottage, the girls' dormitory of Coburn classical institute, were burned at noon today. Ten girls, two teachers, the housekeeper and her daughter, and the janitor and his wife, got out without injury. A girl, ill in bed in her room on the third floor, was carried to safety. Damage estimated at $8,000.

'STOLEN' WORKS OF ART FOUND

secured today by the police that the paintings are merely mediocre copies of originals. It also appeared that the "$350,000 masterpiece theft" stories was a publicity plot and that the Boston Police Department was duped into innocently exploiting the same.

CAPTAIN IS OUT OF CITY.

The police obtained detailed descriptions from Manager Robertson of the two men who sold the pictures to him and are hunting them. They are eager to locate the dashing and debonair Captain Bellini who reported that he had been robbed of the pictures.

At No. 110 State street today, the offices of the Dominao Tide & Stream Water Power Co., Captain Bellini, president of the concern, was reported to be out of town until Monday.

The pictures recovered by Inspectors Le Blanc, Augusta, Dorsey, and O'Neil are copies of the "Madonna and Child," the "Madonna, Two Children and Two Saints" and "Adoration of the Magi."

Inquiry among Captain Bellini's business and social acquaintances today indicated that he has been a fervent believer in any sort of publicity to exploit the Dominao Tide Water Power Company and sale of its stock. Officials in the Public Utilities Department at the State House also tend to suspect the theory that the $50,000 "theft" story was prompted by publicity.

NEGOTIATED FOR PRINTS.

The police call attention to the fact that Captain Bellini secured a warrant and that he is known as an art collector. They also called attention to the fact that he had been negotiating with officials at Boston Art Museum for purchase of the prints recovered today in Leonard's auction room. The police theory was that a young Italian who served Captain Bellini as chauffeur and man servant may have taken the paintings. He was reported in flight for Australia.

Captain Bellini first made his appearance here about eight months ago. Dominko Damiano had been in the city exploiting the Dominao Tide Water Power Company at No. 256 Hanover street. This project was capitalized for $10,000,000.

The Department of Public Utilities let Professor Barrows to make an investigation and as a result of his report that the so-called turbine, hydraulic generating invention was worthless the department informed the officials that they must discontinue its advertising which the reparation examined to represented the facts.

dilatory or giving them dishonorable discharge, we are sentencing them to jail."

Eight members of Company K, 104th Infantry, are undergoing the ordeal of confinement, and every company commander in Massachusetts knows of their imprisonment and every single one is getting ready to jail men of his command. This applies to every guard unit in the Massachusetts National Guard.

Six of the eight were sentenced to four days in Worcester Jail. They are:

Wilfred J. Lortie, Phillip M. Logar, George H. Troitler, Henry A. Legere, Henry J. Lamoreaux, all of Fitchburg, and Joseph d'Onfro of Leominster.

Two others are serving one-day terms. They are Joseph V. Antil and Edward Flanders of Fitchburg.

The court-martial board was headed by Captain Charles F. Ely of Westfield, a guardsman of wide repute with an enviable war record.

The company commander responsible for the jailing of his privates is Captain Harold F. Morris of Fitchburg.

He acted under orders that came from the State House. Prior to or simultaneously with the issuance of these orders Adjutant-General Stevens sent out special bulletins which instructed how to bring summary, special and general courtmartia. proceedings against guardsmen General Stevens told this to the Boston American today.

SNOW FOR TONIGHT AND TOMORROW

The usual cheerful week-end forecast of the weather bureau: There will be increasing cloudiness over the week-end. Tonight and tomorrow it will snow. There will be a rising temperature Sunday, with rising east to northwest winds.

FRENCH ALARM CAUSED BY BAVARIANS

Paris, Jan. 27. (By International News Service.)—The situation in Bavaria is giving the French government grave concern that may call for action within twenty-four hours.

Munich, Jan. 27. (By International News Service).—All of Bavaria, east of the Rhine, today was declared by the government in a "state of emergency," as a result of the National Convention of Fascisti in this city and threats of fighting. Troops are massed in the city and suburbs.

Not only Bavarians, but supporters of the Fascisti movement are gathering here from all parts of Germany for the three days' convention.

Premier Von Knilling has issued a proclamation warning the people to remain calm and forbidding outdoor mass meetings. The chief fear was fighting between Fascisti and Socialists.

"A state of emergency" is a modified form of martial law.

More French Troops Arrive in Ruhr

Duesseldorf, Jan. 27. (By the Associated Press).—Fresh troops are continuing to arrive in the Ruhr. By tomorrow evening it is expected here will be twice as many as last Sunday.

During the night a train destined for interior Germany, drawn by four locomotives, where one would have been sufficient, was halted east of Dortmund and three of the locomotives returned to the occupied area.

The telegraph division employees of the postal service sent to General Simon today an ultimatum for the removal of soldiers from their premises ever since the French went in.

Mother Drowns Her 3 Children in Tub; Dies by Poison

London, Jan. 27 (By International News Service).—"I have done for my dearies," exclaimed a wild-eyed, dishevelled woman as she ran from her home into the street today.

A policeman discovered that the woman had drowned her three children in the bath tub. She was taken to the police station where she was identified as Mrs. Grace Ellasdon.

She died later in her cell of a slow poison she has taken before drowning her children.

Martial Law in 2 Towns Outside Ruhr Valley

Paris, Jan. 27.—Martial law was declared at Treves and Kreutznach by the French today, following riots in which a number of persons were injured, said Mayence advices to the Petit Parisien.

Treves and Kreutznach are at the extreme southern end of the German territory taken over by the allies after the armistice. It is quite distant from the Ruhr and Westphalian coal districts seized by the French a fortnight ago.

A state of siege which is approximate to martial law has been proclaiming in the newly occupied zones ever since the French went in.

KU KLUX FACES SHOWDOWN IN CHICAGO TRIAL

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Selection of Chicago as the scene of the first formal trial of the invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, before the bar of public opinion and a judicial body was indicated here today by developments since the arrival of imperial officers of the organization.

William H. Green, whose suspension from the fire department for his alleged Klan membership brought the officers here, repudiated statements that he had resigned from the order. He admitted his membership and said he wished to stand trial for suspension before the Chicago Civil Service Commission on that ground.

"We have decided to make an issue of this case to prove to the world that the Ku Klux Klan is a law-abiding and legal organization and to prove that any city employe has a perfectly legal right to belong to it, if he wants to join," Green said.

Although he declined to say whether he had been requested to make that statement by the Imperial officers, it was known that Green had been in conference with them.

At Green's suggestion Fire Chief Seyferlich drew a charge against him for presentation to the Civil Service Commission, which, in part, reads as follows: "That the said William H. Green, fireman, is an admitted member of the Ku Klux Klan and that he has subscribed to an oath of the said organization which is contrary to the provisions of the Constitution of the United States of America and which is evidence of his unfitness to remain in the service of the city of Chicago."

R'ght or Wrong ? Does It Pay ? "Last Minute" Cell To Cage Young Girls

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

WE DISCUSS questions of right or wrong in French invasion of Ruhr. The French, naturally, are concentrated on a more important question. Will it pay

French government bonds paying 7½ per cent. interest dropped below 89 yesterday, a new low record, and a dangerous price for such a security. You have been warned here often enough against buying foreign bonds at this time. The warning stands. They will be cheaper.

THE FRENCH have batteries of "75's" and larger cannon posted, ready to destroy Essen and its great Krupp works, if it seems "necessary." German patriots in reply suggest guerilla war, on lines of recent fighting in Ireland. That, however, is not the German style of fighting. There is a great difference between Celt and German.

FRANCE HAS spent 46,000,000 francs of her own money in the invasion so far. It costs her $60,000 a day. French blast furnaces close down for lack of coke. Rioting and shooting disturb Germany.

Friends of the former Kaiser tell the people they need a king. Emissaries from Russia tell them they need Bolshevism.

What they all really need is common sense, realization of the fact that war, invasion, etc., don't pay. Representatives of our government abroad report both France and Germany "at grips to stay."

A DISPATCH from big Sing Sing prison tells of a new death chair. The victim goes to it in such a way that others condemned know nothing of it.

Just before he is to die, the man is taken to the "last minute" cell, and there prepared, by clergymen that exhort him, and an attendant that shaves the top of his head and slits the leg of his trousers to facilitate applying the deadly electrodes.

Interesting expression, that "last minute cell." It opens upon the "death corridor." We are all inhabitants of that cell and all walking along the corridor, but we can't realize it.

JUSTICE FORD, of New York's Supreme Court, shocked by evidence in divorce cases, says: "Every girl about fifteen or sixteen years old should be put in a cage and shut up until she is twenty-five."

He thinks that would save girls from the disillusionment of early marriage. Girls do marry too young. We learn from the wise old Greek that women should have children after thirty and men after fifty, to develop a better race. But just now what we need is population, and women must bear the burden.

WHILE YOU get your hair cut, listen to the lady polishing the extremities of a gentleman in the next chair. Such young ladies are rarely dull, for instance: "She (the other) says, 'Pay me $20,000 and I will plant a monkey gland in you and you will be a boy of 18.' The man says, 'All right,' and he has the operation. And he only pays the doctor $2,000. 'I will sue you,' the doctor says. 'Didn't I make you a boy of 18 again?' 'You sure did, man. So go ahead and sue me. You can't recover from a minor 18 years old.'"

The barber laughs. The man just then having his ears and nostrils trimmed laughs. The young lady says, "I will tell you another." Your barber says, "Someone ought to get her to write for the papers. She's a wonder."

We are carefree in America—many of us.

THE REV. DR. GRANT, told by his bishop that he must preach pure Christianity, not his own ideas, or get out of the church, replies to old Voltaire. He asks the bishop, in substance, "Do you really believe that Christ descended into hell, which those that wrote the creed believed to be a dreadful abode in the centre of the earth?"

The layman reads with interest these discussions between experts. But for himself, as old Voltaire used to say, the best course is, "Not to question but to adore."

IN HIS most recent speech, Lenin, apparently not dying after all, confesses that his friends don't know much about finance or modern industry. But, with good reason, he adds that the combined mistakes of Bolshevism did not equal the stupidity of the Versailles Treaty, considering the troubles tied up in it.

"However, we are learning, and we Russians can learn," he concludes.

The last statement is true. Peter the great proved it.

$6,000 A YEAR TO SHAMPOO HIS LOCKS?

DR. MAGRATH AND HIS SILKEN HAIR

"Day by day, in every way, they get silkier and silkier." One can fancy Medical Examiner G. Burgess Magrath purring over his famous yellow hair, as he washes "every single strand of it—every day," according to his own admission. G. Burgess uses tar soap; hence it could be inferred that the $1,000 addition he seeks to his $5,000 salary, expense allowance and big private fees is to be used for more tar soap.

Maybe G. Burgess Magrath Needs $1,000 More Yearly to Buy Tar Soap for H's Leonine Mane

G. Burgess Magrath wants more money.

He has asked Mayor Curley for a $1 000 raise. The matter is before the Legislature. But G. Burgess will not discuss it with reporters. G. Burgess never discusses anything with reporters. He hasn't the time.

Every day G. Burgess washes his silken yellow hair with tar soap and water. He admitted it himself one day to a lady reporter, in the days when he used to speak to them. He said:

"Surely I wash it myself—all of it—every single strand of it—every day."

Using all that tar soap may be one of the reasons that impel G. Burgess to ask for a raise from $5,000 to $6,000 a year. Of course G. Burgess makes extra dollars by charging $5 a day for the use of his car. He garners an occasional $25 by testifying as an expert witness in murder cases. He lays up tar soap money by getting fees of from $100 a day up by going to other States to testify although his services are presumed to belong to Suffolk County.

TAKES LOTS OF SOAP.

There are 365 days in the year, in ten years there are 3,650 days. It took a lot of tar soap to shampoo G. Burgess' silken locks for all that time. In view of G. Burgess's refusal to discuss matters the hezard is permissible—of course it is only a hazard—that G. Burgess' desire for a salary boost is based on the high cost of tar soap.

G. Burgess did not always hold reporters at arms' length. Years ago, when he was a medical fledgling, more or less, charges were made against him which were heard by the then Lieutenant-Governor. These charges were submitted to Governor Walsh. When he read them he announced definitely that he would not reappoint the medical examiner.

SAVED HIS JOB.

A committee of reporters called on Governor Walsh and pleaded for leniency for Magrath. They pointed out that he was an able medical man, regardless of his personal shortcomings. They won the Governor over. He reappointed Magrath.

G. Burgess was grateful. He gave a banquet for the newspaper men. It was a good banquet, but G. Burgess was too busy to attend it. He has been too busy ever since to consider newspaper men when they asked him for information to which the public is entitled.

Recently G. Burgess performed an autopsy and gave his verdict in the case of a young girl as suicide. Later it was found the girl had been murdered—poisoned. The presumption of G. Burgess in thus withholding, not only from the press but from the police, the true facts of the case caused a public uproar.

The astonishing attitude of the medical examiner, who conducted this particular investigation as he did many others—as though it were a family affair—convinced many citizens that he was temperamentally unfit for his office.

The police inquiry into this particular case was halted twice because of the failure of G. Burgess to make a report.

Charges that Magrath frequently covered prominent men involved in scandals similar to the death by poisoning of Pauline Clark were made.

Friends of G. Burgess allbi his attitude by saying it is merely "artistic temperament."

It is the same artistic temperament, they point out, which caused him to attach to the auto which costs the public $5 a day a gong that a fire chief would blush at and i searchlight that could do duty on a battleship. It is the same evidence of dramatic instinct which causes him to give his silken hair a daily shampoo.

Already it costs G. Burgess almost twice as much to run his office as it costs Dr. Timothy Leary, medical examiner of the southern district of Suffolk County, to run his.

And he wants more money.

BRITAIN AND TURK FIGHT OVER DEAD

Lausanne, Jan. 27 (By the Associated Press).—Two separate conventions between Turkey and Greece will be signed next Monday. It is announced. One provides for mutual return of prisoners of war and hostages, and the other for compulsory exchange of minority populations.

Marquis Curzon, British foreign secretary, speaking today before the conference on the Turkish demand that cemeteries containing the bodies of British soldiers slain in the Dallipoli campaign be reduced, said Great Britain would never give way on this question.

"You cannot haggle over our soldier dead," he exclaimed. "You can haggle over everything else, as you have but over our dead, never!"

Ismet Pasha said Turkey was sound to none in respect for the dead, but that the British cemeteries included unnecessary land.

What England really desired, he charged, was consecration of a battlefield and a beach which once served for military operations and might be used again for the same purpose.

Copper Magnate Dead

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 27.—Peter Ruppe, Sr., director and treasurer respectively of the Calumet & Arizona and the New Cornelia Copper Companies, is dead here in his 79th year. Mr. Ruppe acquired a large fortune in the mining and mercantile business. He started as a pedlar.

QUITS WIFE FOR HER RIVAL

Winthrop Man Found Guilty of Serious Charge; Mate Is Ready to Forgive Him

Mrs. Mable Frey, who was a "moral companion" to James Whittaker, $20,000 a year Winthrop engineer, and who registered as his wife at a Back Bay hotel, was termed a "moral affinity" today by Judge Lourie when he found the wife-deserting engineer guilty of serious charges.

The judge asserted that while it might be possible for a man and his "darling" to register as man and wife merely to "have a place to talk over business" that he thought "it outraged law and decency."

Judge Lourie leniently postponed sentence one week in order that Mrs. Whittaker might make up with her husband.

WRITE ARDENT LETTERS.

Through her attorney, Joseph O'Neil, she made known her willingness to forgive her erring mate. And this in spite of the fact he abandoned her in exclusive Cliff House, Winthrop, and left her with a stack of unpaid bills. He is out on $500 bail.

Whittaker penned ardent love notes to his "moral compan.on" and today one of these was read to the court. It follows:

"Peggy Darling: Have just arrived here, dead tired. Did not want the day to pass without word. Wanted you to get a message at the Victory if you are still there. I wish I could be there instead. I wish you could see this room. I have never seen a prettier one in a hotel and my thoughts make it most dismal.

HIS "WONDERFUL GIRL."

"I feel disconsolate that all my hopes of meeting you tomorrow have faded, darling. I have tried to make it and I am tired.

"My only consolation is that another day is gone and I am that much nearer to you, dear. I am terribly impatient for a word from you, sweetheart, and it seems awful to wait until I can reach the Astor on Saturday.

"Sweetheart, I hope that you are all right and that everything is comfortable with you. Saturday I will be outside the gates of the Grand Central. I am dying to see you darling. Good night my wonderful girl. With undying love, every thought. Ever your Daddy."

ROYALISTS ATTEND PLATEAU FUNERAL

Paris, Jan. 27.—The funeral of Marius Plateau, leader of the Royalist direct action organization, the "King's Camelots," was attended by many well-known monarchists, including nobility.

Fearing clashes between royalists and radicals, the police guarded the cemetery, admitting only those and admitted only those having credentials.

Plateau was shot by the girl Anarchist, Germaine Berthon, last Monday in the office of the royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise, by which he was employed.

WANT TO TAKE YOUR WIFE TO COUNTRY?

Farmers are making their first call for experienced help. The State Department of Agriculture announces that it is now able to place experienced farm workers in good positions. Offers to pay $50 a month and "found" are being received. Married couples, including a husband who can milk and a wife who can cook, are being sought.

The department charges no fee for placing men and women in good positions on the farm.

IRENE CASTLE.

Irene Castle (Mrs. Robert Treznaiel, told a New York court in the suit brought by Hickson, Inc., modistes of Fifth avenue, that she fixed her own prices for her gowns and hats. When the famous dancer was at the height of her popularity five years ago, and when she was known as one of the "best dressed women in the world," she was paying a flat rate of $75 for gowns and $25 for hats, she declared. Consequently, she says she, she owes Hickson's nothing, much less the $669 they seek.

2 EXECUTED BY FREE STATE

Dublin, Jan. 27.—Two Republican prisoners were executed at Maryborough Prison today by the Free State military authorities. They were charged with rebellion against the government. Fifty-five have been executed since November 1.

The men killed today were identified as Joseph Byrne of Queens County, and Patrick Geraghty of Dillingar. Fifteen Republicans at Tullamore are under death sentence according to advices reaching here.

Joseph MacBride, a member of the Dail Eireann, has been captured by irregulars has escaped.

Four soldiers and two women were injured in the bombing of a military lorry.

Fighting is continuing in Wexford where the Republicans are attacking railway unions.

2 WAY RADIO TEST TO FRANCE TONIGHT

Hartford, Jan. 27.—The two way transatlantic radio test of the American Radio Relay League will start tonight. The first station to start will be 1-CKP, owned by George Olney at South Manchester, Ct., and operated by Charles A. Serder, assistant secretary of the Connecticut Radio League. The French station will be that of Leon Deglas at Nice, France. Greenwich time will be used and the test will be in half-hour intervals from 5 to 7 p. m. and from 10 to 12 p. m.

DEER CUTS UP IN CT. HOTEL AND ESCAPES

Willimantic, Ct., Jan. 27 (By International News Service).—Rev. Hiram Overton, standing in the Y. M. C. A. lobby here today bare a disastrous trouble when a young deer bounded through two glass doors of the lobby, explored the ground floor with Mr. Overton in pursuit and leaped through the glass of a side window, scaled a wall and splashed its way across the Shetucket River and disappeared in the woods.

PUTS U. S. IN "HICK" CLASS

Baldwin, British Chancellor, Says the Americans Think Only of Hogs and Wheat

Southampton, Jan. 27 (By the Associated Press). — Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, returning on the Olympic today from his debt mission to Washington, told newspaper men that settlement of the debt question in the United States was in the hands of Congress as the representatives of the people and that this situation constituted "the great difference between America and this country."

Explaining that in America "you may have an executive which is willing to do a great deal for you, but cannot because of difficulties" encountered in Congress, Mr. Baldwin said,

"In the early days, the Secretary of the Treasury could undoubtedly have arranged terms with the British government, but the situation is now complicated because the matter is in the hands of the American Congress.

"You are not settling in America with the Cabinet at one end or with business men at the other. You are settling with Congress and the Senate, which represents the people of America from one end of the country to the other.

IN HANDS OF POLITICIANS.

"In England if any terms are agreed on regarding the debt the government takes the responsibility.

"On the other hand, what the executives in America have to do is endeavor to force anything of this sort through Congress and in doing so they may be beaten."

The chancellor said he wondered whether the position which obtains regarding the debt is as clear in America as in this country. Continuing, he asserted:

"The great differences between America and this country is that the settlement of the debt of the United States is in the hands of politicians. We are bound in regard to that debt in the most stringent bonds you can possibly imagine."

NATION OF "HICKS."

Mr. Baldwin described Americans as "a nation of hicks, an urban people."

"They have men of our way of thinking in the Eastern States," he said, "but that does not cut any ice at all with regard to the other parts of America.

"If you look at the Senate, you will find that the MOST influential members come from the agricultural and pastoral communities, and they do not realize the existing position with regard to the meaning of the international debt.

"The bulk of the people in America have no acquaintance with it. Great Britain lives on international trade, but in America this is not so.

SELL WHEAT AND HOGS.

"The people in the West merely sell wheat and hogs and other produce and take no further interest in connection with the international debt or international trade.

"They are in very much the same frame of mind we used to be in regarding reparations, when a large number of people in this country thought Germany would send huge gold every Saturday night until the money was paid up. A great many people in America think that all we have to do is send money over here.

"The debt can only be funded on such terms as can be got through Congress and the Senate, and that is the root of the difficulty with which we are now faced."

Mr. Baldwin asserted that he might say more, but was obliged to discuss the question with the Cabinet. Asked whether he would return to America, he said:

"I should like to do so because I have been well received there, but I shall not be able to return as I have my own work to do at home."

Diva Denies She Has Husband

MRS. GRACE REEVES.

Mary McCormic, "baby" of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and protege of Mary Garden, today denied she is the wife of Chester A. Maconie, alleged leading figure in Chicago "boudoir tableaux."

The vivacious Mary further denied, and this with considerable feeling, that she was previously the spouse of Kenneth Joseph Rankin, or any other man, as far as that goes.

MACONIC CLEARED.

The allegation that Miss McCormic, who is to sing in "Carmen" with Mary Garden a week from today, is the wife of Maconie named in the sensational charges and counter charges of Thomas Reeves and his wife, Grace, in Chicago, landed like a bomb in musical circles.

It was followed by the assertion that the charming young singer was about to begin annulment proceedings as a result of statements made in the hearing of the Reeves divorce.

The charges against Maconie, who was arrested as the "other man," were dismissed last week but according to gossip in Chicago they bore fruit in the alleged contemplated annulment proceedings.

MARY GARDEN PROTEGE.

It was said that on June 16, 1906, Mary McCormic and Kenneth Joseph Rankin were married in Portales, New Mexico. On August 9, 1916, the Chicago stories declared Mary sued Rankin for divorce and asked for the custody of her daughter, Reba. In this action she was said to have been represented by Attorney Chester A. Maconie, in whom it is claimed she was married a few months after the decree was signed October 25, 1917.

The marriage was kept secret, it was charged, and then came fame and fortune for Miss McCormic as the "baby" of the Chicago Opera Company.

ACCUSE N. Y. LAWYER OF SWINDLING BANKS

New York, Jan. 27 (By International News Service).—With the arrest of Lazarus Shenfeld, a lawyer, on a police charge he has swindled banks and trust companies of sums totalling about $100,000. The lawyer demands that unclaimed moneys deposited in a financial institution be advertised periodically, the person's name and the amount held being given. Shenfeld, the police say, after reading the notice and the amount would proceed to forge birth certificates, death certificates and affidavits purporting to establish the claim of the missing person and collect on behalf of his "client."

REFUSED TO WED MAN OF WEALTH

Banker's Daughter Flees to Europe, While Wedding Bids Are Called Back

The aversion of youth to mating with a man "old enough to be her father" moved Mildred Colburn, daughter of a Lynn banker, to jilt Arthur D. Sykes, fabric tire manufacturer of Worcester, on the eve of their wedding, according to chums of the girl.

Miss Colburn is on her way to Europe. Sykes has left his home in the Commonwealth Club at Worcester and is reported in the South. Work on furnishing the luxuriously appointed bungalow recently completed for the couple, is stopped.

And some 300 friends of Miss Colburn to whom invitations were to be sent, are busily speculating as to the cause of the jilting.

TOLD HER CHUMS.

"There will be no wedding. Mr. Sykes and I have agreed to disagree." Miss Colburn told Mrs. Reeves W. Newson, wife of Water Commissioner Newson of Lynn, who was to have been maid of honor, and the Misses Ruth Peterson, Edyth Beardsell and Helen Thompson, who were to have been the bridesmaids. At least that is the only reason Miss Colburn cared to have them make public.

Other intimate friends of the girl, however, declared that some time after Miss Colburn began to wear the two-carat diamond, encircled by emeralds as the symbol of her engagement, she indicated that there was no certainty of her being married to the man she described as being "old enough to be her father."

Her father, Clifton Colburn, president of the Manufacturers' National Bank of Lynn, was completely in ignorance of his daughter's struggle to gather enough courage to jilt her fiance. Today he would not talk about the affair.

Then, despite his gift of an expensive motor car at Christmas, the mother of a trousseau from a Parisian designer, setting of the wedding for today and all the plans that go with a wedding as elaborate as was promised for her, Miss Colburn firmly declared to these confidantes that the wedding could never be, so they assert.

Only two weeks ago the girl was given a bridal shower at her home, No. 2 Sagamore street, Lynn. Not a shred did the girl betray of the ordeal she must have been undergoing.

Finally the wedding plans were completed. The Reverend Dudley Ferrell of the Unitarian Church was engaged to perform the ceremony. The musical program was arranged. Floral decorations were ordered. The delicate task of selection of bridesmaids was done.

Mildred herself ordered 300 wedding invitations and then—

Daddy Colburn cancelled the order for the invitations. Friends were notified that the wedding was off.

ST. FRANCIS PATRON SAINT OF WRITERS

Rome, Jan. 27.—Pope Pius today published an encyclical on St. Francis of Sales proclaiming him the patron of Christian writers.

St. Francis of Sales was born at Sales, near Annecy, Savoy, in 1567 and died at Lyons on December 18, 1622. He was appointed Bishop of Geneva in 1602, and later became one of the founders of the Order of the Visitation. Among his writings the most famous was "Traite de l'Amour de Dieu." He is commemorated on January 29.

MURPHY, ON STAND, DENIES THE KILLINGS AND DEFIES ACCUSERS

CHARGES FIELDING WITH "DIRTY WORK" ON CASE

ence. He has been pardoned by Pennsylvania for the paymaster holdup for which he was serving sentence when brought back to Massachusetts. He is confident of acquittal on the tea store murder charges. He cannot be sent back to prison in Pennsylvania. His attitude in court expressed his every viewpoint.

Another interesting statement in the cross-examination was Murphy's declaration:

"Before I quit school (in Worcester) I was working in the office of District Attorney E. Rockwood Hoar as an office boy. I worked there from time to time for a year."

DENOUNCES McGLINCHEY.

Murphy, in direct examination, denounced Herbert McGlinchey as a police informer. McGlinchey is the Boston youth who went to Pennsylvania with Walter C. ("Dutch") Mahan, a newspaper reporter, when Murphy says he signed a statement that "Billings did not kill Foley."

"You," answered Murphy with emphasis, when Attorney Scharton asked: "Do you know if Herbert McGlinchey is a stool pigeon?"

The phrase, "He has been a stool pigeon for (Inspector) Mike Morrissey for fifteen years. He conducted a school of crime for kids. He takes kids in knee pants and teaches them to go down in the darkest district and steal pocketbooks from poor old women."

PROLONGED TRIAL.

The defense had more witnesses after the State closed its cross-examination of the defendant. The State has several witnesses to call in rebuttal. The State has also sent Prohibition Officer Hackett of Philadelphia to bring to Boston a revolver with which, according to Fielding, Murphy shot and wounded his victim in the paymaster robbery in Philadelphia.

For these reasons the trial will run into next week. It was figured today that if final arguments of counsel and the judge's charges might be concluded so the case will go to the jury by late Tuesday afternoon.

When Murphy resumed the stand today for his continued defense he was asked by Attorney Scharton where he got the names of Stevie Mack and Butler, who were mentioned in the so-called confession to Fielding as two others in the tea store murders.

BUTLER AND MACK.

Murphy said he got the name of Mack from Major Thomas Walsh, that is, that Major Walsh told him Mack had been killed on a ferry boat. Therefore, Murphy added, he felt safe in using Mack's name.

He accounted for the Butler name by saying that this was the name of a colored man of the Philadelphia underworld.

"As there was no colored man on the tea store jobs," said Murphy, "I felt safe in using Butler's name."

At the time Major Walsh and others saw him at Fairview Sanitarium, Murphy said United States Senator David I. Walsh, the major's brother, called on the telephone and talked with Major Walsh.

The late United States Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania also talked over the wire to the prison warden and asked him to extend courtesies to the Walsh party.

BEEN "SPOTTING MAN."

When Fielding took Murphy for cross-examination, his first questions were on Jesse's boyhood. He said he quit school after the ninth grade in Worcester at thirteen years. After his statement of working for the late District Attorney Rockwood Hoar in Worcester there came the following interrogation:

Q.—Where did you ever work since then? A.—Oh, I've been a sporting man all my life.

Q.—Ever have any regular work? A.—Well, for myself, I ran a cigar store in Detroit from July, 1916, up to the time I was pinched in Philadelphia.

Q.—When I entered the room where the doctor was in Philadelphia do you remember what you said to me? A.—Yes, and I remember what you said to me. You said—

HAIR HAD CHANGED.

Q.—Was the first question asked "Do you know who this is?" (indicating Fielding). A.—No, you're mistaken. There was some talk. A fellow was sitting there with a portfolio. They said: "Don't you want to see these gentlemen? You know who he is, don't you?" And I said: "Oh, yes, that's District Attorney Fielding but the last time I saw him he had red hair."

At this Fielding queried: "Would it surprise you to know that it was brown, not red?"

"Well," retorted Murphy airily, "brown's a shade of red."

"Well," pursued Fielding, "had you seen me before this court?"

"Oh, yes," countered Murphy, "you tried to give me two years and Speaking of the "confession," Fielding asked: "You remember my saying to you 'I am here solely in the interests of justice. I want only the truth. If you tell me the same story you told me before, it may mean the electric chair for you'?"

Murphy: "Sure, but I knew that was only a bluff. Major Walsh told me to pay no attention to what you said; that it was all fixed. You didn't want the truth. If you did, you would have gone to Detroit and found my name on the hotel register there."

"Let me refresh your memory—"

"I'll refresh yours—"

Q.—When did you first give the names of Stevie Mack and Butler?" A.—Three days after Major Walsh told me Mack was shot on a ferry boat.

ON USE AT PLATTSBURG.

Q.—What did you shoot the bank messenger in Philadelphia with? A.—A 44-army Smith & Wesson, nickel-plated gun that I bought in Philadelphia. I was going to use it as a side-arm at Plattsburg Training Camp.

Q.—Wasn't there another gun down there?

"Oh, yes," shouted Murphy almost at a yell, "the gun that you and McCarthy (of the district attorney's office) planted in the office of Probation Officer Hackett (Philadelphia)."

Then Fielding asked his question why was not Murphy "fair" with him, which brought Murphy's retort that Fielding had "this nerve" after the "dirty work" on the case.

LOOKS LIKE $500,000--EH?

ONE OF THE FAKE MASTERPIECES STOLEN IN BACK BAY

Here's the "Madonna With Two Children" which Captain Bellini, the owner, declared was worth $1.5 million real dollars, but which a Boylston street art critic valued at less than $100. It is one of the three "art treasures," the captain says, were stolen from his apartment. All have been recovered by the police. The mystery has shrunk like the value of the pictures themselves.

secured today by the police that the paintings are merely mediocre copies of originals. It also appeared that the "$350,000 masterpiece theft" stories was a publicity plot and that the Boston Police Department was duped into innocently exploiting the same.

CAPTAIN IS OUT OF CITY.

The police obtained detailed descriptions from Manager Robertson of the two men who sold the pictures to him and are hunting them. They are eager to locate the dashing and debonair Captain Bellini who reported that he had been robbed of the pictures.

At No. 110 State street today, the offices of the Dominno Title & Stream Water Power Co., Captain Bellini, president of the concern, was reported to be out of town until Monday.

The pictures recovered by Inspectors Le Blanc, Augusta, Dorsey, and O'Neil are copies of the "Madonna and Child," the "Madonna, Two Children and Two Saints" and "Adoration of the Magi."

Inquiry among Captain Bellini's business and social acquaintances today indicated that he has been a fervent believer in any sort of publicity to exploit the Damiano Tide Water Power Company and sale of its stock. Officials in the Public Utilities Department at the State House also tend to support the theory that the $50,000 "theft" story was prompted by publicity.

NEGOTIATED FOR PRINTS.

The police call attention to the fact that Captain Bellini secured a warrant and that he is known as an art collector. They also called attention to the fact that he had been negotiating with officials at Boston Art Museum for purchase of the prints recovered today in Leonard's auction room. The police theory was that a young Italian who served Captain Bellini as chauffeur and man servant may have taken the paintings. He was reported in flight for Australia.

Captain Bellini first made his appearance here about eight months ago. Domenico Damiano had been in the city exploiting the Damiano Tide Water Power Company at No. 256 Hanover street. This project was capitalized for $10,000,000.

The Department of Public Utilities sent Professor Barrows to make an investigation and as a result of his report that the so-called turbine, hydraulic generating invention was worthless the department informed the officials that they must discontinue its advertising which the report set forth contained misrepresentations.

8 GUARDSMEN JAILED

ditory or giving them dishonorable discharge, we are sentencing them to jail."

Eight members of Company K, 104th Infantry, are undergoing the ordeal of confinement, and every company commander in Massachusetts knows of their imprisonment and every single one is getting ready to jail men of his command. This applies to every guard unit in the Massachusetts National Guard.

Six of the eight were sentenced to four days in Worcester Jail. They are:

Wilfred J. Lortie, Phillip M. Leger, George H. Trottier, Henry A. Leger, Henry J. Lamoreaux, all of Fitchburg, and Joseph d'Onfro of Leominster.

Two others are serving one-day terms. They are Joseph V. Antil and Edward Flanders of Fitchburg.

The court-martial board was headed by Captain Charles F. Ely of Westfield, a guardsman of wide repute with an enviable war record.

The company commander responsible for the jailing of his privates is Captain Harold F. Morris of Fitchburg.

He acted under orders that came from the State House. Prior to or simultaneously with the issuance of these orders Adjutant-General Stevens sent out special bulletins which instructed how to bring summary special and general courtmartial proceedings against guardsmen. General Stevens told this to the Boston American today.

MOTHER OF SLAIN BABY ARRESTED

New London, Jan. 27.—Charged with first degree murder, Miss Grace M. McSheffery of Manchester, N. H., self-confessed mother and slayer of the baby found in the field at the corner of Reed and Bliuman streets last Saturday, was arrested here today and removed to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital for medical treatment.

John J. Guinan, of Philadelphia, a sailor at the submarine base, with whom she had been living as man and wife in that city, is facing the same charge and was expected to be arrested late today.

GIRLS' DORMITORY AT COBURN BURNED

Waterville, Me., Jan. 27.—The third floor and attic of Coburn Cottage, the girls dormitory of Coburn classical institution, were burned at noon today. Ten girls, two teachers, the housekeeper and her daughter, and the janitor and his wife, got out without injury. A girl, ill in bed in her room on the third floor, was carried to safety. Damage estimated at $5,000.

Madrid (By A. P.)—An official statement today says the cession of the Spanish prisoners held by the Moroccan rebels has been effected.

FRENCH ALARM CAUSED BY BAVARIANS

Paris, Jan. 27. (By International News Service.)—The situation in Bavaria is giving the French government grave concern that may call for action within twenty-four hours.

Munich, Jan. 27. (By International News Service.)—All of Bavaria, east of the Rhine, today was declared by the government in a "state of emergency," as a result of the National Convention of Fascisti in this city and threats of fighting. Troops are massed in the city and suburbs.

Not only Bavarians, but supporters of the Fascisti movement are gathering here from all parts of Germany for the three days' convention.

Premier Von Knilling has issued a proclamation warning the people to remain calm and forbidding outdoor mass meetings. The chief fear was fighting between Fascisti and Socialists.

"A state of emergency" is a modified form of martial law.

More French Troops Arrive in Ruhr

Duesseldorf, Jan. 27. (By the Associated Press).—Fresh troops are continuing to arrive in the Ruhr. By tomorrow evening it is expected here will be twice as many as last Sunday.

During the night a train destined for interior Germany, drawn by four locomotives, where one would have been sufficient, was halted east of Dortmund and three of the locomotives returned to the occupied area.

The telegraph division employes of the postal service sent to General Simon today an ultimatum for removal of soldiers from their premises, failing which a strike would be called Monday.

Efforts of the German magnates to evade payment of the tax on coal due January 25 by journeying into the interior of Germany and paying the tax at Munster, Cassel, Hamm or other unoccupied cities was foiled by the French serving notices upon the magnates today declaring such payments null and void. The coal men were told they must hold themselves in readiness to pay again the entire amount at the Duesseldorf branch of the Reichsbank.

Martial Law in 2 Towns Outside Ruhr Valley

Paris, Jan. 27.—Martial law was declared at Treves and Kreutznach by the French today, following riots in which a number of persons were injured, said Mayence advices to the Petit Parisien.

Treves and Kreutznach are at the extreme southern end of the German territory taken over by the allies after the armistice. It is quite distant from the Ruhr and Westphalian coal districts seized by the French a fortnight ago.

A state of siege which is approximate to martial law has been prevailing in the newly occupied zones ever since the French went in.

Mother Drowns Her 3 Children in Tub; Dies by Poison

London, Jan. 27 (By International News Service).—"I have done for my dearies," exclaimed a wild-eyed, dishevelled woman as she ran from her home into the street today.

A policeman discovered that the woman had drowned her three children in the bath tub. She was taken to the police station where she was identified as Mrs. Grace Eliasdon.

She died later in her cell of a slow poison she had taken before drowning her children.

KU KLUX FACES SHOWDOWN IN CHICAGO TRIAL

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Selection of Chicago as the scene of the first formal trial of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, before the bar of public opinion and a judicial body was indicated here today by developments since the arrival of imperial officers of the organization.

William H. Green, whose suspension from the fire department for his alleged Klan membership brough the officers here, repudiated statements that he had resigned from the order. He admitted his membership and said he wished to stand trial for suspension before the Chicago Civil Service Commission on that ground.

"We have decided to make an issue of this case to prove to the world that the Ku Klux Klan is a law-abiding and legal organization and to prove that any city employe has a perfectly legal right to belong to it, if he wants to join," Green said.

Although he declined to say whether he had been requested to make that statement by the imperial officers, it was known that Green had been in conference with them.

At Green's suggestion Fire Chief Seyferlich drew a charge against him for presentation to the Civil Service Commission, which, in part, reads as follows: "That the said William H. Green, fireman, is an admitted member of the Ku Klux Klan and that he has subscribed to an oath of the said organization which is contrary to the provisions of the Constitution of the United States of America and which is evidence of his unfitness to remain in the service of the city of Chicago."

R'ght or Wrong ? Does It Pay ? "Last Minute" Cell To Cage Young Girls

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

WE DISCUSS questions of right or wrong in French invasion of Ruhr. The French, naturally, are concentrated on a more important question. Will it pay

French government bonds paying 7½ per cent. interest dropped below 89 yesterday, a new low record, and a dangerous price for such a security. You have been warned here often enough against buying foreign bonds at this time. The warning stands. They will be cheaper.

THE FRENCH have batteries of "75's" and larger cannon posted, ready to destroy Essen and its great Krupp works, if it seems "necessary." German patriots in reply suggest guerilla war, on lines of recent fighting in Ireland. That, however, is not the German style of fighting. There is a great difference between Celt and German.

FRANCE HAS spent 46,000,000 francs of her own money in the invasion so far. It costs her $60,000 a day. French blast furnaces close down for lack of coke. Rioting and shooting disturb Germany.

Friends of the former Kaiser tell the people they need a king. Emissaries from Russia tell them they need Bolshevism.

What they all really need is common sense, realization of the fact that war, invasion, etc., don't pay. Representatives of our government abroad report both France and Germany "at grips to stay."

A DISPATCH from big Sing Sing prison tells of a new death chair. The victim goes to it in such a way that others condemned know nothing of it.

Just before he is to die, the man is taken to the "last minute" cell, and there prepared, by clergymen that exhort him, and an attendant that shaves the top of his head and slits the leg of his trousers to facilitate applying the deadly electrodes.

Interesting expression, that "last minute cell." It opens upon the "death corridor." We are all inhabitants of that cell and are walking along the corridor, but we can't realize it.

JUSTICE FORD, of New York's Supreme Court, shocked by evidence in divorce cases, says: "Every girl about fifteen or sixteen years old should be put in a cage and shut up until she is twenty-five."

He thinks that would save girls from the disillusionment of early marriage. Girls do marry too young. We learn from the wise old Greek that women should have children after thirty and men after fifty, to develop a better race. But just now what we need is population, and women must bear the burden.

WHILE YOU get your hair cut, listen to the lady politicking the extremities of a gentleman in the next chair. Such young ladies are rarely dull, for instance: "So the doctor says, 'Pay me $20,000 and I will plant a monkey gland in you and you will be a boy of 18.' The man says, 'All right,' and he has the operation. And he only pays the doctor $2,000. 'I will sue you,' the doctor says. 'Didn't I make you a boy of 18 again?' 'You sure did, man. So go ahead and sue me. You can't recover from a patient 18 years old!'"

The barber laughs. The man, just then having his ears and nostrils trimmed, laughs. The young lady says, "I will tell you another." Your barber says, "Someone ought to get her to write for the papers. She's a wonder."

We are carefree in America—many of us.

THE REV. DR. GRANT, told by his bishop that he must preach pure Christianity, not his own ideas, or get out of the church, replies with questions. He asks the bishop, in substance, "Do you really believe that Christ descended into hell, which those that wrote the creed believed to be a dreadful abode in the centre of the earth?"

The layman reads with interest these distinguished divines. But for himself, as old Voltaire used to say, the best course is, "Not to question but to adore."

IN HIS most recent speech, Lenin, apparently not dying after all, confesses that his friends don't know much about finance or modern industry. But, with good reason, he adds that the combined mistakes of Bolshevism did not equal the stupidity of the Versailles Treaty, considering the troubles tied up in it.

"However, we are learning, and we Russians can learn," he concludes.

The last statement is true. Peter the great proved it.

DR. MAGRATH AND HIS SILKEN HAIR

"Day by day, in every way, they get silkier and silkier." One can fancy Medical Examiner G. Burgess Magrath purring over his famous yellow hair, as he washes "every single strand of it—every day," according to his own admission. G. Burgess uses tar soap, hence it could be inferred that the $1,000 additional he seeks to his $5,000 salary, expense allowance and big private fees is to be used for more tar soap.

Maybe G. Burgess Magrath Needs $1,000 More Yearly to Buy Tar Soap for H's Leonine Mane

G. Burgess Magrath wants more money.

He has asked Mayor Curley for a $1,000 raise. The matter is before the Legislature. But G. Burgess will not discuss it with reporters. G. Burgess never discusses anything with reporters. He hasn't the time.

Every day G. Burgess washes his silken yellow hair with tar soap and water. He admitted it himself one day to a lady reporter, in the days when he used to speak to them. He said:

"Surely I wash it myself—all of it—every single strand of it—every day."

Using all that tar soap may be one of the reasons that impel G. Burgess to ask for a raise from $5,000 to $6,000 a year. Of course G. Burgess makes extra dollars by charging $5 a day for the use of his car. He garners an occasional $25 by testifying as an expert witness in murder cases. He lays up tar soap money by getting fees of from $100 a day up by going to other States to testify although his services are presumed to belong to Suffolk County.

TAKES LOTS OF SOAP.

There are 365 days in the year, in ten years there are 3,650 days. It took a lot of tar soap to shampoo G. Burgess' silken locks for all that time. In view of G. Burgess's refusal to discuss matters the hazard is permissible—of course it is only a hazard—that G. Burgess' desire for a salary boost is based on the high cost of tar soap.

G. Burgess did not always hold reporters at arms' length. Years ago, when he was a medical fledgling, more or less, charges were made against him which were heard by the then Lieutenant-Governor. These charges were submitted to Governor Walsh. When he read them he announced definitely that he would not reappoint the medical examiner.

SAVED HIS JOB.

A committee of reporters called on Governor Walsh and pleaded for leniency for Magrath. They pointed out that he was an able medical man, regardless of his personal shortcomings. They won the Governor over. He reappointed Magrath.

G. Burgess was grateful. He gave a banquet for the newspaper men. It was a good banquet, but G. Burgess was too busy to attend it. He has been too busy ever since to consider newspaper men when they asked him for information to which the public is entitled.

Recently G. Burgess performed an autopsy and gave his verdict in the case of a young girl as suicide. Later it was found the girl had been murdered—poisoned. The presumption of G. Burgess in thus withholding, not only from the press but from the police, the true facts of the case caused a public uproar.

The astonishing attitude of the medical examiner, who conducted this particular investigation as he did many others—so though it were a family affair—convinced many citizens that he was temperamentally unfit for his office.

The police inquiry into this particular case was halted twice because of the failure of G. Burgess to make a report.

Charges that Magrath frequently covered prominent men involved in scandals similar to the death by poisoning of Pauline Clark were made.

Friends of G. Burgess alibi his attitude by saying it is merely "artistic temperament."

It is the same artistic temperament, they point out, which caused him to attach to the auto which costs the public $5 a day a gong that a fire chief would blush at and a searchlight that could do duty on a battleship. It is the same evidence of dramatic instinct which causes him to give his silken hair a daily shampoo.

Already it costs G. Burgess almost twice as much to run his office as it costs Dr. Timothy Leary, medical examiner of the southern district of Suffolk County, to run his.

And he wants more money.

BRITAIN AND TURK FIGHT OVER DEAD

Lausanne, Jan. 27 (By the Associated Press).—Two separate conventions between Turkey and Greece will be signed next Monday, it is announced. One provides for mutual return of prisoners of war and hostages, and the other for compulsory exchange of minority populations.

Marquis Curzon, British foreign secretary, speaking today before the conference on the Turkish demand that cemeteries containing the bodies of British soldiers slain in the Dardanelli campaign be reduced, said Great Britain would never give way on this question.

"You cannot haggle over our soldier dead," he exclaimed. "You can haggle over everything else, as you have but once over dead, never!"

Ismet Pasha said Turkey was second to none in respect for the dead, but that the British cemeteries included unnecessary land.

What England really desired, he charged, was consecration of a battlefield and a beach which once served for military operations and might be used again for the same purpose.

Copper Magnate Dead

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 27.—Peter Ruppe, Sr., director and treasurer respectively of the Calumet & Arizona and the New Cornelia Copper Companies, is dead here in his 78th year. Mr. Ruppe acquired a large fortune in the mining and mercantile business. He started as a pedlar.

QUITS WIFE FOR HER RIVAL

Winthrop Man Found Guilty of Serious Charge; Mate Is Ready to Forgive Him

Mrs. Mable Frey, who was a "moral companion" to James Whittaker, $20,000 a year Winthrop engineer, and who registered as his wife at a Back Bay hotel, was termed a "moral affinity" today by Judge Lourie when he found the wife-deserting engineer guilty of serious charges.

The judge asserted that while it might be possible for a man and his "darling" to register as man and wife merely to "have a place to talk over business" that he thought "it outraged law and decency."

Judge Lourie leniently postponed sentence one week in order that Mrs. Whittaker might make up with her husband.

WROTE ARDENT LETTERS.

Through her attorney, Joseph O'Neil, she made known her willingness to forgive her erring mate. And this in spite of the fact he abandoned her in exclusive Cliff House, Winthrop, and left her with a stack of unpaid bills. He is out on $600 bail.

Whittaker penned ardent love notes to his "moral companion" and today one of these was read to the court. It follows:

"Peggy Darling: Have just arrived here, dead tired. Did not want the day to pass without word. Wanted you to get a message at the Victory if you are still there. I wish I could be there instead. I wish you could see this room. I have never seen a prettier one in a hotel and my boughts make it most dismal.

HIS "WONDERFUL GIRL."

"I feel disconsolate that all my hopes of meeting you tomorrow have faded, darling. I have tried to make it and I am tired.

"My only consolation is that another day is gone and I am that much nearer to you, dear. I am terribly impatient for a word from you, sweetheart, and it seems ages to wait until I can reach the Astor on Saturday.

"Sweetheart, I hope that you are all right and that everything is comfortable with you. Saturday I will be outside the gates of the Grand Central. I am dying to see you darling. Good night my wonderful girl. With undying love, ever thought. Ever your Daddy."

ROYALISTS ATTEND PLATEAU FUNERAL

Paris, Jan 27.—The funeral of Marius Plateau, leader of the Royalist direct action organization, the "King's Camelots," was attended by many well-known monarchists, including nobility.

Fearing clashes between royalists and radicals, the police guarded the streets leading to the church and admitted only those having credentials.

Plateau was shot by the girl Architect, Germaine Berthon, last Monday in the office of the royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise, by which he was employed.

WANT TO TAKE YOUR WIFE TO COUNTRY?

Farmers are making their first call for experienced help. The State Department of Agriculture announces that it is now able to place experienced farm workers in good positions. Offers to pay $50 a month and "found" are being received. Married couples, including a husband who can milk and a wife who can cook are being sought.

The department charges no fee for placing men and women in good positions on the farm.

IRENE CASTLE

Irene Castle (Mrs. Robert Tremaine), told a New York court in the suit brought by Hickson, Inc., modistes of Fifth avenue, that she fixed her own prices for her gowns and hats. When the famous dancer was at the height of her popularity five years ago, and when she was known as one of the "best dressed women in the world," she was paying a flat rate of $75 for gowns and $25 for hats, she declared. Consequently, says she, she owes Hickson's nothing, much less the $669 they seek.

2 EXECUTED BY FREE STATE

Dublin, Jan. 27.—Two Republican prisoners were executed at Maryborough Prison today by the Free State military authorities. They were charged with rebellion against the government. Fifty-five have been executed since November 1.

The men killed today were identified as Joseph Byrne of Queen's county, and Patrick Geraghty of Tullmar. Fifteen Republican Sundails are under death sentence according to advices reaching here.

Joseph MacBride, a member of the Dail Eireann, who was captured by irregulars has escaped.

Four soldiers and two women were injured in the bombing of a military lorry.

Fighting is continuing in Wexford where the Republicans are attacking railway unions.

2 WAY RADIO TEST TO FRANCE TONIGHT

Hartford, Jan. 27.—The two way transatlantic radio test of the American Radio Relay League will start tonight. The United States station will be 1-CKP, owned by George Finney at South Manchester, Ct., and operated by Charles A. Service, assistant secretary of the Connecticut Radio League. The French station will be that of Leon Deloy at Nice, France. Greenwich time will be used and the test will be in half-hour intervals from 1 to 2 p. m. and from 10 to 12 p. m.

DEER CUTS UP IN CT. HOTEL AND ESCAPES

Willimantic, Ct., Jan. 27 (By International News Service).—Rev. D. H. Overton, standing in the Y. M. C. A. Lobby here today bare a side dropped trouble when a young deer bounded through two glass doors of the lobby, explored the ground floor with Mr. Overton in pursuit and leaped through the glass of a side window, scaled a wall and vanished across the fields tucked Riverside disappear in the brook.

PUTS U. S. IN "HICK" CLASS

Baldwin, British Chancellor, Says the Americans Think Only of Hogs and Wheat

Southampton, Jan. 27 (By the Associated Press). — Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, returning on the Olympic today from his debt mission to Washington, told newspaper men that settlement of the debt question in the United States was in the hands of Congress as the representatives of the people and that this situation constituted "the great difference between America and this country."

Explaining that in America "you may have an executive which is willing to do a great deal for you, but cannot because of difficulties" encountered in Congress, Mr. Baldwin said.

"In the early days the Secretary of the Treasury could undoubtedly have arranged terms with the British government, but the situation is now complicated because the matter is in the hands of the American Congress.

"You are not settling in America with the Cabinet at one end or with business men at the other. You are settling with Congress and the Senate, which represents the people of America from one end of the country to the other.

N HANDS OF POLITICIANS.

"In England if any terms are agreed on regarding the debt the government takes the responsibility.

"On the other hand, what the executives in America have to do is to endeavor to force anything of this sort through Congress and bring so they may be ratified."

The Chancellor said he wondered whether the position which obtains regarding the debt is as clear in America as in this country. "Certainly, he asserted.

"The great difference between America and this country is that the settlement of the debt of the United States is in the hands of politicians. We are bound in regard to that debt by the most stringent bonds you can possibly imagine."

NATION OF "HICKS."

Mr. Baldwin described Americans as "a country, not an urban, people.

"They have men of our way of thinking in the Eastern States," he said, "but that does not cut any ice at all with regard to the other parts of America.

"If you look at the Senate, you will find that the majority of the members come from the agricultural and pastoral communities, and they do not realize the existing position with regard to the meeting of the international debt.

"The bulk of the people in America have no acquaintance with the great Britain lives on international trade, but in America this is no sell.

SELL WHEAT AND HOGS.

"The people in the West merely sell wheat and hogs and other products and take no further interest in connection with the international debt or international trade.

"They are in very much the same frame of mind we used to be in regarding reparations, when a large number of people in this country thought Germany would send bags of gold every Saturday night until the money was paid up. A great many people in America think that we have to do is send money over there.

"The debt can only be funded on such terms as can be got through Congress and the Senate, and that is the root of the difficulty with which we are now faced."

Mr. Baldwin asserted that he might say more, but was obliged to discuss the question with the Cabinet. Asked whether he would return to America, he said:

"I should like to do so because I have been well received there, but I shall not be able to return as I have my own work to do at home."

Diva Denies She Has Husband

MRS. GRACE REEVES.

Mary McCormic, "baby" of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and protege of Mary Garden, today denied she is the wife of Chester A. Macombe, alleged leading figure in Chicago "boudoir tableaux."

The vivacious Mary further denied, and this with considerable feeling, that she was previously the spouse of Kenneth Joseph Hankin or any other man as far as that goes.

MACOMIC CLEARED.

The allegation that Miss McCormic, who is to sing in "Carmen" with Mary Garden a week from today, is the wife of Macomic named in the sensational charges and counter charges of Theron Reeves and his wife, Grace, in Chicago landed like a bomb in musical circles.

It was followed by the assertion that the charming young singer was about to begin annulment proceedings as a result of statements made in the hearing of the Reeves divorce.

The charges against Macomic, who was arrested as the "other man" were dismissed last week following gossip in Chicago that the fruit in the alleged cousins dated annulment proceedings.

MARY GARDEN PROTEGE.

It was said that on June 15, 1921, Mary McCormic and Kenneth Joseph Hankin were married in Portales, New Mexico. On August 5, 1916 the Chicago stories discovered Mary and Hankin for divorce and asked for the custody of her daughter, Reba. In this action she was said to have been represented by Attorney Chester A. Macomic. In court it is claimed she was married a few months after the decree was signed October 23, 1917.

The marriage was kept secret. It was charged, and then came Mary and fortune for Miss McCormic as the "baby" of the Chicago Opera Company.

ACCUSE N. Y. LAWYER OF SWINDLING BANKS

New York, Jan. 27 (By International News Service).—With the arrest of Lazarus Shenfeld, a lawyer the police charge he has swindled banks and trust companies of sums totalling about $100,000. The law demands that unclaimed money deposited in a financial institution be advertised periodically, the person's name and the amount held being given. Shenfeld, the police say, after reading the notes and the amount would proceed to forge birth certificates, death certificates and affidavits purporting to establish the claim of the missing person and collect on behalf of his "clients."

REFUSED TO WED MAN OF WEALTH

Banker's Daughter Flees to Europe, While Wedding Bids Are Called Back

The aversion of youth to mating with a man "old enough to be her father" moved Mildred Colburn, daughter of a lynn banker, to jilt Arthur D. Sykes, fabric tire manufacturer of Worcester, . . the eve of their wedding, according to chums of the girl.

Miss Colburn is on her way to Europe. Sykes has left his home in the Commonwealth Club at Worcester and is reported in the South. Work on furnishing the luxuriously appointed bungalow recently completed for the couple, is stopped.

And some 500 friends of Miss Colburn to whom invitations were to be sent, are busily speculating as to the cause of the jilting.

TOLD HER CHUMS.

"There will be no wedding. Mr. Sykes and I have agreed to disagree." Miss Colburn told Mrs. Reeves W. Newson, wife of Water Commissioner Newson of Lynn, who was to have been maid of honor, and the Misses Ruth Peterson, Edyth Bearsley and Helen Thompson, who were to have been the bridesmaids. At least that is the only reason Miss Colburn cared to have them know right now.

Other intimate friends of the girl, however, declared that some time after Miss Colburn began to wear the two-carat diamond encircled by emeralds as the symbol of her engagement, she indicated that there was no certainty of her being married to the man she described as being "old enough to be her father."

Her father, Clifton Colburn, president of the Manufacturers' National Bank of Lynn, was completely in ignorance of his daughter's struggles to gather enough courage to jilt her fiance. Today he would not talk about the affair.

Then, despite his gift of an expensive motor car at Christmas, the bride-to-be ordered a Parisian designer setting of the wedding for today and all the plans had go with a wedding as elaborate as was proposed for her. Miss Colburn frankly declared to these confidantes that the wedding could never be, so they assert.

Only two weeks ago the girl was given a bridal shower at her home, No. 2 Hagarstown street, Lynn. Not a sign did the girl betray of the ordeal she must have been undergoing.

Finally the wedding plans were completed. The Reverend Dudley Ferrell of the Unitarian Church was engaged to perform the ceremony. The musical program was arranged. Floral decorations were ordered. The delicate task of selection of bridesmaids was done.

Mildred herself ordered 800 wedding invitations and then—

Daddy Colburn cancelled the order and the jilting began. Friends were notified that the wedding was off.

ST. FRANCIS PATRON SAINT OF WRITERS

Rome, Jan. 27.—Pope Pius today published an encyclical on St. Francis of Sales, proclaiming him the patron of Christian writers.

St. Francis of Sales was born at Sales, near Annecy, Savoy, in 1567 and died at Lyons on December 15, 1622. He was appointed Bishop of Geneva in 1602, and later became one of the founders of the Order of the Visitation. Among his writing the most famous was "Traite de l'Amour de Dieu." He is commemorated on January 29.

MAN BURIED ALIVE IN SAND AVALANCHE

An unidentified man was buried alive today at the sand bank of the Massachusetts Sand & Gravel Co., at Newton Upper Falls. He fell into a hopper and was carried under the sand. The body is at the Newton morgue.

WIFE DECEIVED McLEISH AS TO 'MOTHERHOOD'

Newport, R. I., Jan. 27.—The newest development in the mysterious slaying of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fraser McLeish in their cottage on the Mrs. Paul FitzSimons estate, in the finding today of evidence that McLeish had for months been deceived into believing that his wife was to become a mother.

So far had this deception been carried, according to friends, that a seamstress had been engaged to make garments for the expected child. The autopsy showed, that the slain young woman was not to become a mother.

The fact also develops that McLeish had on many occasions entertained men at his home late at night. His "home brew" is supposed to have been the attraction.

That one of these callers may have been admitted to the house on the fateful night and may later have quarreled and murdered the two is a possibility that is being entertained by the investigators.

A person wishing to get into the McLeish cottage while the pair slept would have had little difficulty. A cellar window was always kept open to allow fresh air to reach dahlia bulbs kept in there during the Winter.

The doorway leading from the cellar into the kitchen was found unlocked when the firemen arrived at the house.

Today more evidence that a "peeping Tom" has been active in the Harrison avenue section of the city came to light. His nocturnal prowling has alarmed many residents.

AUTO PLUNGES IN CREEK; 5 DIE

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 27 (By International News Service).—Three women and two men were killed early today when an automobile in which they were riding plunged into Wills' Creek from near Cumberland, Md. The dead: Mrs. Clara McCullough, Miss Eva Dundee, 19; Miss Louise Dundee, 21, sisters; William J. Farrell of Cumberland and Edward A. Flynn of Hagerstown.

The bodies were badly crushed and mangled.

The machine struck the guard rail of the bridge and plunged thirty-five feet into the water.

TRIED BLACKMAIL TO FIX HIS EYES

New London, Ct., Jan. 27.—R. C. Plant, member of a local firm, received a blackmail letter, threatening him if he did not pay the writer $1,100.

Plant told the police, who said today that William Dwojakowski had been trapped into a confession that he was the letter writer.

Dwojakowski is cross-eyed.

Therein, the police, add, lies the motive. Dwojakowski told them he needed $1,100 to pay for an operation to straighten his eyes.

Rose Fessenden to Become Bride Today in Brookline, Says Betty Alden

BETTY ALDEN.

No need of paging Sherlock Holmes to ferret out today's social excitement—not with the Bigelow-Fessenden nuptials drawing such a fashionable crowd to the First Parish Church in Brookline at high noon.

Blonde-haired "Rosie" Fessenden has selected her sister, Louise, to attend her as maid of honor, while the Misses Florence and Nell White, as well as Mrs. Geoffrey L. Smith ("Kit" Coolidge) and Mrs. Richard Saltonstall (Mary Rogers), make up the bridesmaids group.

The bride, who has been much to the fore in the doings of her set ever since her debut about three Winters ago, is the young est of Mr. and Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden's four daughters. The eldest is slender, brown-haired Mrs. "Offie" Ames, Jr. (Caroline Fessenden), who has been making her home with her parents ever since the tragic death of her soldier-husband; then there's dainty Mrs. Freddy Busk, with all the "pep" and popularity of her Harriet Fessenden days, who looks so very much like her younger sister, Louise. The latter sings very nicely and is still most pleasantly recalled as the heroine of last year's Vincent Club show.

Edward Bigelow, the bridegroom, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forbes Bigelow of Chestnut street, and a Harvard '21 man. He's known as one of the best hockey players the Crimson ever had. His brother, Henry Forbes Bigelow, Jr., is to serve him as best man, while a corps of prominent young men have been asked to be ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hoar (Helen Warren) stopped over in New York for a few days on their way to St. Louis, where they are attending the marriage of Miss Isabel Lawrence Mauran to Mrs. Hoar's brother, William Wyman Warren of Beacon street. The ceremony takes place at high noon today.

Mrs. Hoar is to be a bridesmaid, while Mr. Hoar is of the usher's corps. The maid of honor is the bride's sister, Miss Elizabeth Mauran, and it will be recalled that both the Misses Mauran served as bridesmaids at the wedding of Miss Gertrude Bradlee and Dr. Lanman, solemnized last Fall out Chestnut Hill way. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence Mauran of St. Louis, who have a summer place at Dublin, N. H., the family extending their season there for the Lanman-Bradlee nuptials.

Mr. and Mrs. James Amory Parker of Mt. Vernon street have been stopping for a few days in New York at the Hotel Lorraine.

Miss Joan Whitney, who makes such a jolly addition to the younger set along the North Shore during the Payne Whitneys' season there, went over from New York to Washington the other day as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. James W. Wadsworth. During her stay at the capital—her cousin, Barbara Whitney, was there, too—she attended the dinner-dance which Mrs. Henry F. Dimock gave for Miss Margaret Eustis. Among the guests were Miss Anna Hamlin, a member of the Vincent Club here, as well as Miss Margaret Harding, who comes to make her home here in Boston about the first of February, and a close friend of the latter's, Miss Alice Mellon.

"JIM" LARKIN SPEAKS HERE TOMORROW

"Jim" Larkin, organizer of the Irish Citizen Army, will speak in Libertarian Hall, No. 184 Dudley street, Roxbury, tomorrow evening. Mr. Larkin was released last week from Sing Sing Prison, where he was sentenced for joint publication of articles opposing America's entrance into the war. This is to be Mr. Larkin's farewell message to the people of Boston before his return to Ireland.

NEW CIRCUIT DEVISED FOR WD-11 TUBE

A novel circuit devised especially for WD-11 vacuum tubes similar to the circuits used by the Westinghouse Company for these tubes and employing a split variometer in the plate circuit is shown in the accompanying diagram.

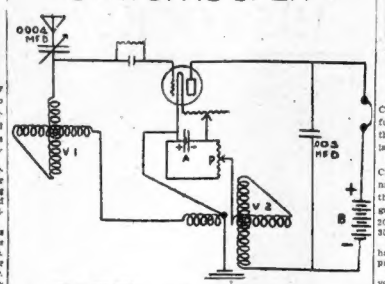
The variometer in the primary circuit (V1) has 45 turns on the rotor and 45 on the stator. Fine tuning is done with this variometer, and only the rough tuning by the variable condenser.

The second variometer (V2) is wound similarly, but the stator is used as shown in the diagram. Otherwise the plate circuit is similar to an ordinary regenerative receiver.

The shield is grounded and connected to the positive side of the A battery.

It will be found that the plate connections will work better in one direction than in the other. The potentiometer may be used, but it is not necessary, and is merely shown to assist those who already have them.

PLATE VARIOMETER STATOR IS SPLIT



WD-11 CIRCUIT.

Circuit devised by A. A. Stockellbourg especially for WD-11 tubes. Note that the stator of the plate variometer (V2) is divided in the middle.

RESCUES CREW FROM SINKING VESSEL

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 27.—The barkentine Maid of England was reported today sixty miles off Chebucto Head leaking badly and with her foremastmast and all sails carried away. The steamer Manchester Importer is standing by taking off the crew. The vessel is from Baltimore with a cargo of fertilizer.

HUB STEAMSHIP IN DISTRESS; CALLS FOR AID

The United States Coast Guard Cutter Tampa left Boston today at full speed to go to the assistance of the Dollar Line freighter M. S. Dollar, who wirelessaed she was helpless.

The S. O. S. was picked up by the Charlestown Navy Yard and transmitted to the Coast Guard office in the Customs House at Boston. It gave the position of the freighter as 200 miles south of Sable Island and 350 miles due east of Boston.

The radio stated that the freighter had run out of fuel and could not proceed.

The M. S. Dollar is loaded with a valuable cargo from the Far East, for Boston.

OLD FASHIONED FAMILY REMEDY FOR COLDS, GRIP, PNEUMONIA AND BODY BUILDING

Father John's Medicine Builds New Strength During the Getting-Well Stage After Any Illness.

A Doctor's Prescription, Free From Alcohol and Dangerous Drugs—67 Years in Use.

The getting-well stage of grip is the most dangerous of all because the body, weakened by the grip, is wide open to attacks of other lurking disease germs.

That is why all the organs of the body must be kept in their best working order, not only to drive out the poison left by the grip germ, but that the patient shall regain strength as soon as possible to avoid further attacks resulting from the poisons in the system.

As a means toward good health after the grip Father John's Medicine builds up the body because it is all pure, wholesome nourishment and free from opium, morphine, chloroform or other poisonous drugs or alcohol. Father John's Medicine has had sixty-seven years' success for colds and throat troubles, coughs and sore throats, and as a tonic and body builder.

ASSOCIATED PAPER INDUSTRIES

NEW FINANCIAL PAPER TO BE ISSUED

Believing that business conditions during 1923 will be the best yet experienced, Gilliam's Mailing Bureau, of which Miss Gladys Gilliam is the proprietor, has arranged to open a branch office in a centrally located office building. Arrangements regarding the lease are now underway.

This new office will be in addition to the present office of the Bureau, which occupies the entire second floor of No. 42 Batterymarch street.

Plans are underway, also, for the starting of a new financial paper, to be called the Boston Curb and Mining Outlook, which will be published by Gilliam's Bureau. Edward Gilliam, a financial writer for the past twenty years, will be the editor-in-chief. The new paper will be mailed to financial houses and their customers.

Gilliam's Mailing Bureau, which was established in 1911, numbers among its customers many of the city's prominent financial and manufacturing organizations. Miss Gilliam assumed active management in 1918 and under her direction the Bureau has made rapid strides.

Miss Gilliam is one of the best known business women of Greater Boston. At the last election she was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress. She holds the unique distinction of having refused a membership in the Boston Chamber of Commerce and having rebuked publicly the organization for its stand toward women members.

Twelve Millions in New Contracts for Week

Contracts awarded in New England during the week ending January 23 amounted to $13,220,900, the largest amount ever recorded for this week during the past twenty-three years, according to a compilation of building and engineering statistics made by the F. W. Dodge Company.

The next largest total was during the corresponding week of 1917, when a total of $4,731,000 was awarded. For the same period of 1922, awards totalled $3,976,000.

TO MAKE NEW TYPE MILK CAPS

Another New England industrial organization, which should find an ample market for its product all over the United States, has been formed for the purpose of manufacturing a new, one-piece, sanitary milk bottle cap, called a Seal-Kap, and a $50,000 factory, opposite the B. & M. station, at Natick, has been purchased and equipped with a complete machine shop.

This organization, known as the Baum Dairy Appliance Company, has developed modern, high speed, automatic machines that convert a huge roll of heavy paper into many thousands of milk bottle caps, thoroughly sterilized, waterproofed and packed in paper tubes, ready for shipment to milk dealers. These tubes are intended for insertion into a capping device called a Seal-Kapper, invented, developed and manufactured by this company.

Mr. E. G. Baum, the inventor of the Seal-Kap, and president of the Baum Dairy Appliance Company, is a trained sanitarian, whose experience with the ordinary flat disc, so commonly used for capping milk bottles, impressed him with the real need for capping device such as he has invented. With the new cap the milk cannot leak from the bottle, and no dirt, water, or other contaminating product can come in contact with the milk.

The Seal-Kapper, the machine which applies the caps to the bottles, is attached to and becomes an integral part of the power filling machine used by milk dealers.

Some indication can be had of the probable demand for this product, once its advantages are thoroughly known, when it is learned that about 30,000,000 milk bottle caps are used daily in the United States. After the sale of the capping machines has been made, the milk dealer must order from this company the caps needed to operate the machines, as broad patents covering both the machines and the caps have been obtained in the United States and all the principal countries of the world.

So ingenious are the various mechanisms used in the manufacture of the Seal-Kaps, and so closely has the manufacturing cost been reduced to the minimum, that the company claims to take a 100 per cent. profit on its turnover and still sell its improved product at half or less than half the price of the flat disc bottle cap.

'VALKYRIE' IS TRIUMPH FOR VAN GORDON

By ZOE FABER.

The production of "The Valkyrie" (Wagner) at the Boston Opera House quite took one's breath for singing, for beauty of orchestra, for excellence of ensemble, and last, but not least, for gorgeousness of setting. Mr. Polacco is to be congratulated on the result that he attained.

To produce so difficult an opera as the one in question and maintain the standard of fineness throughout is no small achievement. It is needless to say that the orchestra did its full share and more to make all the music, but especially the "Magic Fire," the thrilling volume of tone that it should be.

Honors of the evening went without qualification to Cyrena Van Gordon. Her voice is a big one and a gorgeous one and she used it to the fullest scope and the results were magnificent. That she can act the part as it should be done was also noteworthy. The famous "Yo Ho" song was tremendously effective.

Georges Baklanoff as Wotan was a commanding figure, both musically and histrionically. He was a god in every sense of the word and his voice from first to last was remarkably fine.

Siegmund was well sung by Forrest Lamont and Sieglinde by Grace Holst, whose voice has more power than color and quality.

Fricka was taken by Maria Claessens, who has the good, old-fashioned kind of voice that is heroic in the extreme and well suited to Wagnerian roles.

Hunding was very well interpreted by Edouard Cotreiul.

SYMPHONY OFFERS UNUSUAL PROGRAM

By ZOE FABER.

Mr. Monteux elected to dispense with a symphony and a soloist at the Symphony concert yesterday afternoon. He chooses, rather, to put on only two numbers, but as they were interesting, nobody had any fault to find; probably a good many were glad of the change as soloists can stand a little variation now and then.

The program consisted of the Holst "The Planets" and the MacDowell "Indian Suite." The first has to deal with Mars, the war-bringer, Venus, the peace-bringer; Saturn, who ushers in old age; Neptune and the various others that make up the celestial bodies. The music was written by an Englishman who is now living in London and it is beautiful music; some of it more so than others. The Saturn and Neptune were especially lovely.

COUE TO LECTURE HERE TUESDAY

Seldom has a distinguished visitor from abroad aroused such nation-wide interest as M. Coue, who is to lecture at Tremont Temple, Tuesday afternoon and evening of next week. Since his arrival from France he has become the foremost topic of conversation. In his forthcoming lectures here M. Coue will give a clear and easily understood account of his work of healing by means of his system of auto-suggestion. His overwhelming success in curing even the most deep seated ailments and restoring health to those who had despaired of ever being well again, has already made him famous throughout the world, while his striking personality has impressed all who have heard him speak.

A somewhat prevalent impression that he is merely a country druggist is far from being correct. M. Coue took his degrees of B. A. and Bachelor of Science at one of the French Universities before he began the study of pharmacy, and for years he has made a deep study of psychology

DOUG DECLARES HAYS VERY ABLE; DENIES "DEFI"

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 27.—Douglas Fairbanks today denied he had referred to Will Hays as a "flier" for the film business.

Fairbanks issued a statement in which he said:

"I never made any such statement. Mr. Hays, himself would be, I am sure, the last man to pose as dictator of the motion picture industry, or sponsor for its morals. I do not wish my attitude toward Will Hays to be misconstrued. Let me be clear about that. I regard him as a very able and courageous man and respect his achievement."

The original report was coupled with another in which Fairbanks announced that a group, including himself, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Poll Negri and Harold Lloyd, intended to become independent producers in defiance of Mr. Hays.

In reference to this Mr. Hays said: "If it is true that Douglas intends to produce pictures himself, it is a piece of news that I welcome. I only wish he could give us a 'Robin Hood' every week. Douglas and I have always been very good friends. I am his admirer."

However, there appears to be no doubt that Fairbanks' statement concerning Harold Lloyd and Poll Negri, if true, was ill advised. Hal Roach, now in New York, has Lloyd under contract for two years, and Famous Players-Lasky, to the best of its knowledge, has Negri under contract.

NEW HAVEN RUINS THEATREGOERS' PLANS

How the New Haven Railroad ruined the plans of Bristol, Ct., theatregoers on a trip to Hartford, is shown by the following letter received by the American from Hartford, Ct.:

"Editor American:

"The train for Bristol to Hartford, due to make up and leave Bristol at 6:36 Thursday night largely used by theatregoers from Bristol holding tickets for Hartford theatricals, left Bristol forty-five minutes late, arriving in Hartford one hour and five minutes, at 8:30, or too late for the theatre.

HOLMES LECTURING AT SYMPHONY HALL

Burton Holmes, taking as his subject matter, "Modernizing Chosen and Manchuria," delivered another of the pleasing and instructing travelogues in his present series at Symphony Hall. Motion pictures and colored slides, the whole interpreted and illuminated by Mr. Holmes' talented comment, completed the program. The lectures will be repeated this afternoon.

WATCHFUL WEIGHING THE TOILSOME ROAD TO SLIM FIGURE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THERE wasn't any doubt about it—we agreed to a man that a lady so distinguished in her profession must have an important message for her sisters. It's the way of art and the luxury of the artist. We were speaking of Pauline Frederick, an artist in two branches of dramatic sport and, as such, unquestionably weighed down with a message that craved the air. Lately of the celluloid drama and one of Hollywood's most beautiful toilers, Miss Frederick may claim a legitimate right to carry a message, though it is only fair to the lady to say that she did not introduce the subject. In a manner of speaking, it was forced from her—not with difficulty, perhaps, but still with some slight coaxing. Her reluctance was but another token of her art.

FRESH FROM FIELDS OF AFFLUENCE

Eight years of affluence in circles bounded by hard-boiled directors, indifferent camera men and nervous producers had worked no great outward change in Pauline Frederick—she was still as easy on the vision as when you last took notice of her in person in the magnificent spectacle, "Joseph and His Brethren," in which, as Mrs. Potiphar, she raised hob with Joseph's sense of moral duty and nearly made him forget the starving children of Israel. Our impression of that play in general and Miss Frederick in particular was that you could hardly blame Joseph for tottering and you never could understand just how he was able to so successfully resist the charming lady of Egypt.

PAULINE FREDERICK Ike Points the Way to a Smart, Lean Waist.

It was unquestionably that final contribution to the art of the stage that marked Pauline Frederick for the films, for in another season she blazed forth as one of the sobbiest sobbing heroines the screen has ever known. For eight long and weary seasons she has been abused, neglected and betrayed by the most gifted villains money could buy, and that means she has been given expert attention. It has been said that a closeup of Miss Frederick, with tears trickling past her nose, is always good for an extra $25 in the daily receipts of any neighborhood theatre.

And now, lured back to her first love, the spoken drama and doing her daily stint in "The Guilty One" at the Selwyn, Miss Frederick tells you that the torture of the screen at its worst is as nothing compared to forgetting your lines in the real dama, which little thing happened the other night in the face of an audience that had stopped the action of the play with its riotous greeting of welcome. "The reception was too much for me," explained Miss Frederick, "and I responded by forgetting everything. I don't believe I could have told you whether I was in the Selwyn Theatre or back in Hollywood. It was a fearful experience."

SHE HAS FELT THE CURSE OF PASTRY

It already had been suggested that she must have a message for the good folk who applaud her art so nobly and who mingle their tears with hers when life on the screen goes wrong, but she parried the question by fondling a fresh cigarette and lighting a match with the flick of a thumbnail. "This is Bill Hart's stuff," she remarked, blowing a perfect smoke ring. "He taught me how to do that without burning my fingers or spoiling my nail. You see, I am a good wild West actress in that extent, but I can't roll a cigarette with one hand. When I have acquired that final trick of the cowboy actor my art will be complete."

"But your message," we repeated; "your message to the eager sisters who take you as their model; the girls who have scrimped on luncheons that they might suffer with you in the evening at the little theatre around the corner; girls who may envy you for your fine clothes and who certainly must be envious of that lean, "figure."

"That's it," she exclaimed. "You've discovered it—my message. It hadn't occurred to me until now. I do have a message for my unfortunate sisters, at least for such of them whose misfortune runs parallel to mine, a message for the girl who sorrows and mourns at 150 pounds when she could be so happy at 120. It's more of a story than a message—a story of watchful weighing, of courage and of abstinence. It takes all three, and the greatest, of course, is courage. The cold, hard fact in my own case is that nature intended me to weigh 150 pounds or more, while my pride set 120 as the proper figure for a young woman of my temperament. For a long time nature had much the better of the argument, and I was about the pumpiest thing in the land outside the well-known side show. Of course, I began life with plainly defined New England traditions, handed down, I suppose, by my ancestors, all of whom probably ate three good meals a day, with pie for breakfast, pie for dinner and pie for supper. You see, I am speaking in terms of old New England—the New England that quite properly turns up its nose at the French menus of Copley square and 4 o'clock tea. It's the New England that begins the day early and goes to bed early, but which has plenty of time for three full-sized meals. That is what I inherited from a long line of rugged ancestors, right back to the old Massachusetts Bay Colony and, believe me or not, I never did have to learn how to eat pie for breakfast—I just naturally was born with the gift.

PROMISES TO SOB AGAIN ON SCREEN

"And that leads us to the saddest part of the story. I couldn't remain true to my New England tradition and weigh an ounce under 150 pounds, and I couldn't stay happy with any such grand total as that blinking back at me from the drug store scales. So I parted company with rich cooking—in fact, I did about everything in the shape of dieting except go without food altogether. That is what eats into your courage and leaves you sore at the world. But it is courage that wins, and that is my message, if you must have one, that I offer to my sisters in distress. Just turn your face away from mother's cooking or you're lost. To my weight-laden sisters I can only say: 'Look not upon pastry when it is sugar-coated, nor upon pies at breakfast time. And, above all, have courage.'"

Miss Frederick's little journey through the spoken drama with "The Guilty One," while not exactly a passing fancy, is but a temporary excursion into neglected fields. She will be seen sobbing again on the silver sheet—she makes it a definite promise. As a matter of fact and exclamation, she deserved it is more than likely that she will change in screen and drama at regular intervals. One is no more difficult than the other, and the temptation to play before audiences is great to be resisted. "There is no difference between stage and screen as far as methods are concerned," she admitted. "I like to tell me about a difference in technique, but frankly I don't know what that means. They imagine that I use my hands more, but I know it isn't true. Anyway, I am going to be seen on the screen just as long as I can find managers and plays." Pauline Frederick's real name is Beatrice La Pierre. She was born in Dorchester not so many years ago. The press department writes that when she was in school on Dudley street she wore her hair in braids, questionably a perversion of fact. She has never worn two braids. She isn't old enough to be a Dorchester during the two-braid period.

Might Make You Forget Husband

Here is a matter for psychologists.

Nightly at the Wilbur Theatre when performances of "The Bat" are over the ushers find underneath or on the empty seats an unusually large number of articles forgotten by their owners. While it is customary for theatre cleaners to find a few articles occasionally, such as overshoes and umbrellas, it is remarkable that so many belongings should be left during the run of "The Bat."

In addition to umbrellas, purses, handbags, the to-be-expected articles, the ushers have found such inexplainable articles as false teeth, one lady's shoe, one man's necktie, three phonograph records, and one ear trumpet. Seven partly consumed boxes of candy have also been found. The number of umbrellas is now 67 and a jeweler has appraised the value of the accumulated meshbags at over three hundred dollars.

The Wilbur management is using one of the spare dressing rooms to store the uncalled-for articles.

Marcelle's Dialect No Imitation

When you need a spirited young woman for the part of a temperamental Parisienne, why not go to France and get her? That is evidently the way Jules Hurtig figured it out when he engaged players for "Just Married," because, when he had finished casting the play, he had Marcelle D'Arville on his pay roll for service in an American farce—and she could speak hardly a word of English. But she could act, however.

Marcelle D'Orville

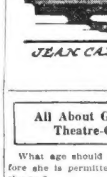
Miss D'Arville—or Ma'm'selle, perhaps, would be better—made a brave struggle to master the lines of her role. She isn't supposed to speak perfect English, anyway. She does, however, add a dash of spice to "Just Married" that gives you both a thrill and a laugh. One thing is certain, there is nothing of the imitation in her dialect.

The young lady is the daughter of a prosperous French business man. She was educated at the Convent of Sister de la Providence in Paris.

All About Girls and Theatre-Going

What age should a girl reach before she is permitted to attend the theatre?

"Well, my dear," exclaimed Miss Florie Florie of the Bringing Up Father" company at the Arlington, "that is a mighty hard question to answer, but it really depends on the girl. When a girl reaches the interrogative age, to my notion, is when she should be allowed to see proper plays presented by competent players. Some mothers object to their daughters viewing scenes of love, but the human heart is born to love, and as the theatre a girl can see interpreted the most beautiful love stories known to history and to fiction.



Florie Florie

"Nowhere in the world is right and wrong so carefully placed before the mental vision as in the theatre. In New York and Boston the larger part of the matinee audiences is made up of children ranging from ten years upward. Their small faces show their disgust of the wrong, while their tiny hands become thunderous with joy when right prevails. I believe that proper plays are as much a part of a girl's education as the lessons from books, and my belief is sustained by fathers and mothers who are students of present day conditions."

Sigrid Onegin, a Swedish contralto will make her Boston debut in a concert in Symphony Hall on Thursday evening, February 8.

Toscha Seidel, a Russian violinist, will be the soloist at the next pair of Symphony concerts on Friday, and Saturday, February 9 and 10.

They Bury a Play Every Saturday Night

Walter Gilbert is to be seen this week in the part of Jack Doogan, the crook who answers an emergency call for a detective in "Stop, Thief" at the St. James. Mr. Gilbert has made many friends since he has been playing in the Boston Stock Company, and he has proved himself a good actor. He jumps readily from character parts to comedy; from youth to old age, and he is equally good in the characterization of either one. Many people think that the life of an actor is something that is an easy one, but you only have to talk with Mr. Gilbert, or any other actor to see what a really difficult job an actor has—especially an actor in a stock company.

The actors play in ten performances during the week and have five rehearsals. While they are putting on one show, they are rehearsing for the next one to come. Mr. Gilbert says that when he studies a part at night he wants to get in the most uncomfortable position that is possible so that his mind will be fully occupied with the play which he is learning. The stock company actor he says, must forget his part Saturday night. Every play is in turn buried Saturday night and the actor starts off fresh Monday morning.

Mary Clark, the soprano, will give her novelty concert in Symphony Hall on Wednesday evening, February 7. She calls it a "color concert."

Maria Ivorun, the Hungarian operature soprano, will be heard in a concert in Symphony Hall, Sunday afternoon, February 7.

"The Dream of Gerontius," by Sir Edward Elgar, is to be given by the Handel and Hayden society in Symphony Hall, a Sunday afternoon, February 4.

The WILTON SISTERS—KEITH'S.

Specializes in Royal Roles for Films

Philip Tonge of "The Bunch and Judy" company at the Colonial, has specialized in royal roles. His first appearance in the movies in England was doubly "royal." It was with The London Film Company, in one of the first pictures in which the double exposure was used. He impersonated both the Prince of Wales and also King George V.

With the make-up of King George, of course, the matter of resemblance was much more difficult. He had to don a wig, a beard, a mustache, also a full admiral's uniform. It took him almost a week of constant work and study to fill the King's role. In one of the scenes Mr. Tonge appeared as the Prince of Wales and King George at the same time and Tonge says they spent many anxious hours before they could get the "close-up" double exposure timed correctly.

Keith Star Has Talking Machine Voice

"I don't remember your face, but your voice is very familiar." This is getting to be an old story to Aileen Stanley. Everybody with a phonograph knows her.

The pretty Keith headliner is an intimate friend of most American households. In the last two years Miss Stanley has made more records of popular songs than any woman in the world. At present the six leading companies in the country are making Stanley records.

It was merely the toss of a coin which started Miss Stanley in the record making business. Two years ago she was appearing in William Rock's show, "Silks and Satins." An expert who heard her told her that her voice had a peculiar touch of "personality" and her diction was so perfect that she should be a great success as a maker of records. The first record proved a perfect one, and for a year and a half Miss Stanley spent all of her time in studios, singing popular songs into machines.

PLAYS THAT REMAIN

Being Something of a Directory and Guide to Shows That Are Continued at Theatres

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

"The Passing Show of 1922" at the Shubert. (Third week.) Eugene and Willie Howard and Fred Allen in low comedy, with a background of scantily dressed young women to hold the eye.

"The Bat" at the Wilbur. (Twenty-second week.) The dramatic thriller that holds the season's record for continuous business. Engagement nearing its end, as last three weeks are announced.

"Just Married" at the Plymouth. (Third week.) Vivian Martin and Lynne Overman in an amusing farce of the "bedroom" variety, except that a stateroom is utilized for the scene.

"Molly Darling" at the Tremont. (Third week.) Spirited musical show with Charlestowns favorite comedian, Jack Donahue, doing his best to make it move at high speed.

"Lightnin'" at the Hollis. (Sixth week.) Sentimental hokum in the form of comedy that never fails to thrill its audiences. Breaking box office records here, as in every other city.

Pauline Frederick in "The Guilty One" at the Selwyn. (Third week.) Famous screen star presenting evidence that the spoken drama imposes no great handicap on her brand of art.

"The Bunch and Judy" at the Colonial. (Second week. Typical Dillingham musical play, showing wealth of scenic beauty and costumes, with Ray and Johnny Dooley making the comedy. Last week.

"Bringing Up Father" at the Arlington. (Third week.) Celebrated characters from the comic strip brought to life in dramatic form. Jiggs and Maggie in new adventures.

STAGE AND SCREEN

BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN

SATURDAY, JANUARY 27, 1923.

Scene from "THE NINETY AND NINE" at TREMONT TEMPLE

Scene from "DOING A MAN" at LOEW'S ORPHEUM

Scene from "MY AMERICAN WIFE" at KEITH'S STATE

Coming Events

"Naughty Diana" is the title of the musical comedy due at the Shubert Monday, February 5. Charles Ruggles is the featured player.

Irene Bordoni, in "The French Doll," will be the attraction at the Tremont beginning Monday, February 5.

Ed Wynn, in "The Perfect Fool," will come to the Colonial on Monday, February 5.

"The Town That Forgot God," a William Fox picture spectacle, will come to Tremont Temple on Monday, February 5. There will be two showings daily.

Channing Pollock's sensational play, "The Fool," with a company specially organized for the Boston engagement, will move into the Selwyn on Monday, February 12.

The attraction at the St. James Theatre for the week beginning Monday, February 12, will be "Grumpy," which has not been presented in Boston since 1914, when Cyril Maude appeared in the play at the Plymouth Theatre.

"Blossom Time," with music from the melodies of Franz Schubert, will be the attraction at the Boston Opera House beginning Monday, February 12.

Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will give an evening of music and dancing at Mechanics Hall on Saturday, February 10. Mr. Whiteman is making a whirlwind tour through the country.

Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn and their company of dancers will be seen in a return engagement at the Boston Opera House for a single performance on Friday afternoon, March 2.

Photoplays Remaining

"The Ninety and Nine," at Tremont Temple. A picturization of Ramsay Morris' great play. A highly dramatic story of many thrilling episodes, including a forest fire and heroic rescue. The last week.

* * *

Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood" at the Park. Final weeks are now announced for this spectacular photoplay. Mr. Fairbanks has won new honors through his splendid work in this picture.

STEINERT CONCERT

Albert Steinert's series of concerts, beginning at Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon, will bring forward a singer much favored by the Boston public and a Russian pianist who deservedly has won his way into favor here. Mme. Frances Alda of the Metropolitan Opera Company will present a diversified list of songs, and Mr. Silfoi will be heard in an especially interesting group of compositions. Lester Hodges will be Mme. Alda's accompanist.

Frances Alda

HAYDEN RECITAL

Ethyl Hayden, soprano, who was heard in Boston with Cyril Scott, two seasons ago, and who recently assisted the Handel and Haydn Society in Symphony Hall, will give a song recital in Jordan Hall on Wednesday evening, January 31. Mr. Edward Harris will be her accompanist. There will be an aria from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," a group of German songs, a few in French and two Spanish songs arranged by Frank La Forge. Mr. Harris has dedicated a song to the artist which she will sing at this recital.

Ethyl Hayden

SYLVA CONCERT

The recital that Mme. Marguerita Sylva will give at Jordan Hall Monday evening is classified by her as an "At Home" entertainment because of its informal nature. Mme. Sylva was the first singer of eminence who dared change the method of presenting a concert program and thus making the occasion one of real entertainment.

TILLOTSON CONCERT

A piano recital of more than ordinary interest will be given by Frederic Tillotson in Jordan Hall Sunday afternoon, February 4. Mr. Tillotson is an artist of ability who will be remembered by music lovers for his playing at former recitals in this city.

Dorothy Fairbanks, soprano, will give a recital in Jordan Hall on Tuesday evening, February, when she will be accompanied by Mrs. Dudley Fitts.

Real Barroom Shown in "Ninety and Nine"

One of the sets for the "The Ninety and Nine," at Tremont Temple, is the real interior of a barroom, such as was common for the days before prohibition. This scene is typical of a popular small town tavern, such as used to exist in the country, and shows some of the fights and brawls as used to take place in these places. On the walls are pictures of race horses, sports, pages from the Police Gazette and other decorations as used to adorn the interior of the tavern.

It is a mystery where Vitagraph secured all the odd-shaped potteries and paraphernalia used on the shelves, but it is suspected that these were collected previous to July 1, 1919, and have been highly prized by the property man for use in a scene of this type. The scene is naturally in keeping with the picture, which deals with the life of a youth on the downward path, who is being saved by the village belle.

MONDAY SYMPHONY

The second concert of the special evening series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conductor, will take place Monday evening in Symphony Hall. The soloist will be Renee Chemet, the French violinist, who is considered one of the finest living virtuosos of the violin.

JANE OAKER ANSWERS CRITICS

Jane Oaker insists upon the truth—and she begs everybody to please take notice. What she said a few days ago about the doubtful value of stock experience she now reiterates—even in the face of hostile criticism.

JANE OAKES.

"I had no idea," said the leading woman in "Lightnin'," on being shown Adelyn Bushnell's defence of a stock training, "that I would be taken so literally. I didn't mean that a little stock training isn't a good thing. It is, in a sense; but it is only a means to an end, and not an end in itself. Miss Bushnell is reasonably correct when she states that many clever actresses have come from stock. There is Marjorie Rambeau and Jane Cowl, for instance, who started in this way. However, one doesn't see them going back to it.

"And as for the argument that playing one role for any length of time makes one mechanical if any inference were to be drawn it seems to me it would be entirely in favor of long runs, for the longer one plays a part the more mellow it should grow. There is David Warfield, for instance; he has played 'The Auctioneer' and 'The Music Master' more than two thousand times each. And he has confessed many times that there is no such thing as playing a part too long.

"Some experienced and successful playwrights confine themselves to turning out one play a season, in the belief that their work must suffer through haste. Then, isn't it rather a big order for a player to imagine that he or she can master a role in the short space of a week and give a satisfactory interpretation?"

DONOHUE INVITED.

Jack Donahue of the "Molly Darling" company is to have a special luncheon served in his honor by the Mosis associates and Frank M. Archer. Although the invitation has been sent the date of the affair has not been settled.

Mr. Donahue was dressing for a performance when the stage door guardian at the Tremont told him there were two messengers outside with a package, and that they insisted upon seeing the actor personally. The package proved to be the invitation to the luncheon. The only difference between this invitation and one from a fashionable stationer was the size this one being printed on a highly illustrated card about four feet square.

DOWN TOWN HOUSES SHOW NOTHING NEW

The new week will bring no changes at the downtown theatres except in vaudeville, pictures and burlesque. At the St. James, however, you may enjoy "Stop Thief," and over in Somerville, at Mr. McArdle's playhouse, "By Right of Purchase" will be presented. A quiet week is promised for the reviewers.

ST. JAMES—The Boston Stock Company will next week be seen in Carlyle Moore's play of several seasons ago, "Stop Thief." The original production, seen here in Boston some time ago, had in its cast the late Frank Bacon, Mary Ryan and Richard Bennett. These three roles will fall on the shoulders of Mr. Kent, Miss Bushnell and Mr. Gilbert. The play revolves around two kleptomaniacs, a doddering old man and his son-in-law-to-be. The play will call for the full strength of the company and several extras.

ORPHEUM—Jack Holt in "Making A Man", will be seen at Loew's Orpheum Theatre next week. The vaudeville will be Lew Canton's unit productions. The principal act will be "The Manicure Shop," a musical comedy with special trimmings. Other features will be Brooks and Brown, "The Brainless Wonders;" Francis and Marcelle, delineators of melody, harmony and syncopation; Sherlock Sisters and Clinton in "Musical Comedy A La Carte;" and Walker and Dyer, originalities in nonsense and tunes. A new comedy and a News Pictorial will also be shown.

MAJESTIC—Shubert vaudeville of the coming week at the Majestic theatre will be headed by Frances White, the diminutive comedienne. Since heading the vaudeville bill at the Majestic last season Miss White has been starring in "The Hotel Mouse." It is needless to say that she will have a new repertoire of character songs and stories for this engagement.

IDEAL'S STATE—A Spanish-American sport romance with Gloria Swanson in the stellar role and another splendid "Boston Blackie" crook story with Allen Brady in the leading role, will be the offerings at Loew's State Theatre the coming week. Miss Swanson will be seen in "My American Wife," the scenes of which are laid in Argentina and the story deals with the love romance of an American girl who is involuntarily enmeshed in a political plot. Miss Brady will be seen in "Missing Millions." A comedy and News Pictorial will also be shown.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Funny foibles of the flapper are featured in "Broadway Flappers" at Waldron's Casino next week, with Mae Dix as a particularly frolicsome exponent of that phase of feminine fancy. Dramatic motion pictures and selected vaudeville will round out the three-in-one continuous programme.

Miss Dix, who was one of the feminine high lights in "Follies of the Day," is featured as princess of flappers in the opening burlesque, "The Flappers Review." She also sings and dances her merry way through the second part, "Finale Hoppers on Trial."

GAYETY—James E. Cooper's musical revue, "The Big Jamboree," is expected to jam the Gayety Theatre next week, for Frank Hunter is the featured comedian and Lew Kelly, the original "Professor Dope," is an added attraction.

These two actors constitute a show in themselves but the company has seven other talented principals and a chorus of twenty spirited young women. The reappearance of Lew Kelly will be sunshine news for burlesque patrons as he has been sadly missed in the circuit during his three seasons in vaudeville.

SOMERVILLE—"By Right of Purchase," a new comedy drama written by Harry Bond, leading man of Clyde E. McArdle's Somerville Players, is announced as the attraction at this playhouse for the coming week. This piece, which at present bears a temporary title, was produced last Spring and met with success. Mr. Bond will appear in the leading role with Ann Hamilton as the heroine.

CENTRAL SQ.—Jackie Coogan in "Catch My Smoke" and Dustin Farnum in "Wolfe Justice Waits" are the features of the new bill at this house, with several vaudeville acts for good measure.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM—"The Girls from Reno," with Billy Spencer, an Irish comedian, will furnish the entertainment at the Old Howard next week.

CAPITOL—Richard Barthelmess in "Fury," with Dorothy Gish, will be the photoplay feature at Gordon's Capitol Theatre, Commonwealth avenue, next week. This is described as a stirring drama in which love and adventure are mingled in most engaging fashion. There will also be the usual screen, musical and vaudeville features on the bill.

OLYMPIA—The feature picture at Gordon's Olympia Monday will be Richard Barthelmess in "Fury," supported by Dorothy Gish. This is a sensational picture of sea life. Besides this photoplay there will be several smart vaudeville acts, with a news and comedy reel.

MODERN AND BEACON—The picture version of "Bull Dog Drummond" will be shown for the first time in Dorchester at the Modern and Beacon next week. The companion photoplay will be "Environment." There will also be a news reel and a comedy.

GLOBE—For the first three days of the new week Lon Chaney in "Flesh and Blood" and "Notoriety" will be shown. Beginning Thursday, "The Bond Boy" and "Her Story" will be features.

SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA—Marion Davies in "When Knighthood Was in Flower" and several vaudeville features make up the bill for next week at the Scollay Square Olympia.

STRAND—For the first three days of the new week "Ebb Tide" will be shown. On Thursday Elsie Ferguson in "Outcast" will be the feature.

CODMAN SQ.—Laurette Taylor in "Peg O' My Heart" will be the feature the first three days of next week, with "The Flirt" taking the screen on Thursday.

LANCASTER — "Peg O' My Heart," with Laurette Taylor, will be the picture feature at the Lancaster for the first three days of the new week. On Thursday Gloria Swanson in "The Impossible Mrs. Bellew" will be shown.

PRIZE FOR TITLE

As the means of obtaining an appropriate title to Hdrry Bond's new play bearing the temporary title of "By Right of Purchase," Clyde E. McArdle, manager of the Somerville Players, announces a cash prize for a new title. Mr. Bond, the author of the above-named play, is leading man for the Somerville Players.

BURTON HOLMES

Burton Holmes will close his thirtieth annual series of travelogues in this city next week with "East of Suez," an illuminative presentation of the world-famous things that are the objectives of every traveler in India and Burma, Ceylon and Siam, the Malay States and other colorful countries of the radiant Far East. He will give "East of Suez" at Symphony Hall on Friday evening, February 2, and Saturday afternoon, February 3.

Mr. Holmes will give an extra travelogue entitled "Three Decades of the Passion Play of Oberammergau" at Symphony Hall on Saturday afternoon, February 10, for the benefit of disabled ex-service men now in hospital.

GRIGGS LECTURES

Under the title of "Moral Leaders," Dr. Edward Howard Griggs will give a series of lectures in Tremont Temple on Saturday mornings, beginning February 17. The first lecture will be "Socrates."

JORDAN HALL NOTES.

The first of the concerts by the Boston Symphony Ensemble for the benefit of the Simmons College Endowment Fund will take place in Jordan Hall on Friday evening, February 16. Harry L. Gideon will give an informal talk in connection with the music.

At its second concert of the season, to be given in Jordan Hall on Wednesday evening, February 14, the Flonzaley Quartet will play the following program: Schubert Quartet in A Minor, Op. 29; Arnold Bax Quartet in G major, Beethoven Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

ANOTHER WEEK OF CHICAGO'S OPERA

Out of the eight operas to be presented by the Chicago Opera Company for its final week at the Boston Opera House, only three will be repeats, and one of these, "Tosca," will differ from last week's presentation in having the title role sung by another prima donna, Claudia Muzio, whose work in "Aida," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" during the past week strengthened the esteem in which she was already held by Boston audiences. The other two repeats will be "Amore Dei Tre Re," (Love of the Three Kings) with Mary Garden, Monday night, and Wagner's "The Valkyrie," Thursday night.

Cyrena van Gordon

Mr. Polacco has given Boston such fine results when he conducted the opera that there is much interest in the particular operas that he will conduct during the final week.

The two Wagner operas, "Parsifal" and "The Valkyrie," are so seldom heard in Boston that it is an opportunity that should not be overlooked. In both cases, the cast promised is very good.

With the recent production by the Russians of "The Snow Maiden," it is going to be interesting to see how it will be sung and staged by the Chicago. By all precedent it should be a charming opera.

The repertoire for the final week will be: Monday, "Love of Three Kings"; Tuesday, "Parsifal"; Wednesday matinee, "Snow Maiden"; Wednesday evening, "Tosca"; Thursday, "The Valkyrie"; Friday, "Madame Butterfly"; Saturday matinee, "Carmen," and Saturday evening, "The Jewels of the Madonna."

FINAL CONCERT

Ernest Hutcheson, pianist, will give the last of his popular recitals, "The Great Masters of Piano Music," today at Jordan Hall, playing a program entirely from the pen of Franz Liszt. These concerts have given a great deal of enjoyment throughout the series and have contributed definitely to the educational side of the musical season.

WENT MAD AS DRUGS WERE DENIED HER

Known in the radical art colony in Boston as "Tarzan." She was locked in a room and drugs were denied her. She went through all the horrible stages of the socalled "withdrawal symptoms." Her body burned. Her uncontrollable motor nerves whipped her about the floor until she shrieked with the pain of many bruises and tortured nerves. She was as truly a mad woman as any maniac who is struit-jacketed in an asylum, when, finally, she splintered the door with a chair and rushed past the guard into the street. She eluded the surprised detectives with maniac cunning and she disappeared.

EVELYN STANFIELD

PRY INTO RELIGION OF HUB JURORS

Girl Bares Depth of Drug Torments

ADDICT, HER SHATTERED NERVES SCREECHING, CURSES TWO MEN

By JAMES WHITTAKER.
Copyright, 1923, Universal Service.

Convinced that she had finally approached too near to the doors of death to turn back toward life, Elizabeth Houde dropped her nurse's fountain pen at the point where yesterday in these columns the printing of her diary was interrupted.

Dismissed by Dr. Michael Stevens, the Woburn physician, from her place in his office and affections to make room for hapless Grace Logue, she had wandered all over New England searching for cure of her morphine habit—or death.

In her wanderings she was twice associated as informer with the Federal Narcotic office of Boston; which association did her and her morphine disease no good. Among her effects is a letter from Dr. Edwin C. Ruth, head of the Boston Narcotic Bureau, recording the payment to her of a small sum from his fund.

But poor Bessie was too ravaged by her drugs to become, as were like Cookson and Ruth Merrill, a movie darling of the Boston agents. Mac and Ruth were still fresh. Ruth and Fry attached them to the movie payroll. Bessie wasn't. She moved on.

Remember as you proceed, that you are reading the thoughts of a dying girl—and remember also that they parallel in every word and phrase the unrecorded sensations of Grace Logue, who did die in Dr. Stevens' office, and for whose death Dr. Stevens was placed on trial and acquitted.

Well, I nearly died getting my cure

I had risked complete loss of memory by taking the large doses of hyoin, which I did the night my suffering reached the climax (I have known some patients to lose, and never regain memory with smaller doses of that drug than I was taking).

I went into the valley of the shadow, where I am walking now And to think I had become an addict again in a few short weeks!

It would not usually take such a grip upon one in so short a time; but I had just gone through it all, and my nerves, worn out and raw, were in the condition to pounce upon the food and it took but a short time to make me its complete slave again

Another "hypo." One half grain this time (by mistake) one-half hour from the last.

I can't see a thing I'm writing. My pain is less frequent. Please God I may pull through. If I get through this day my morphia habit will be over.

But the cocaine may have some pretty bad effects. I don't care. If I had not had it, I would have jumped out of the window or gone after morphia. No human being can stand more than twenty-four hours of torture and know relief is near without getting it. Perhaps it is lack of will Anyway, this other deadly stuff is helping me in a fashion, and I am not out searching for morphia.

I don't dare lie down. I feel as though I was suffocating. There are only four physicians among the many I have known who deserve credit for withholding morphia until all else has been tried. If they ever read this, they will know that I thank them, though at the time I could and did curse them, in my great need

Two Men She Curses

There are two men in this world I curse.

The one who got me into it first and the one who got me again the second time. These two were men who were with me day by day, and knew the amount I was taking and did not warn me. One tried to undo it by sending me to sanitariums, where I suffered torture and cam- away unsecured, and the one who started me the second time was an addict himself and didn't care.

To be sure, when he found I was using supplies he needed himself he gave me a half hearted, murderous twenty-four hours of "cure," which was no cure at all Dr. Baldwin and Miss Jose really cured me. This time I am curing myself.

Here Bessie Houde collapsed. She had finished her pitiful message to a world which would not listen she thought with brave words, scrawled her signature There followed an hour of a hell in the locked room of the Livermore Falls hotel which our 'magination cannot plumb and which, when she resumes writing, her pen cannot venture to describe.

Now she is close to the line which separates sanity from madness, and there is taint of the latter in what comes below

I've got to keep on writing Things are quite beyond me I received a letter at 10 o'clock I can't read it. I might be able to see, but it is not interesting enough to concentrate on My flying pen is much more agreeable to me. Besides I said I would write until I collapsed I want to see if I have will power enough to do It

If anyone sees this he will think I am crazy—that it is cocaine talking. In a sense it is but I know and understand what I am saying and why

I started to do this my family who don't care a little bit for me could not be happy with their righteous thoughts of "I knew she would die a drug fiend, but didn't think she was taking coke, too" though I could tell she was after the morphia again."

I heard my father and brother say they would rather see me dead than using it. Well, this proves I would rather be dead myself.

If there is any pleasure in taking cocaine show it to me There is no pity in my heart for a cocaine habitue. He takes it to satisfy a desire for morbid pleasures, or to forget unpleasantness, instead of meeting it and conquering it, or else he lacks courage and things to find it in the enervating exhilaration of "coke" It is all a bluff—those things we have been told—or else I am not as good a "coke" subject as I was a dope subject.

No Pleasantness in Cocaine

In cocaine there is no pleasantness, no slightest chance to forget unpleasantness. It is all made a thousand times more unpleasant because there is no false courage to fit for me.

My loneliness is welcome for the first time. (The stuff has a resuscitative power making people talkative) I couldn't talk if I wanted to and I do not, indeed.

I am not courageous and full of daring; could not do brave deeds or write a book. Instead, I am frightened to death some one is going to rap on my door, and although I could refuse to answer, I am too frightened to do that.

What am I afraid of? Not of bodily harm, not of death (if I take a quick move), because I expect that, but the fear that some even more. Even my arm is hardone will see something wrong and have suspicions verified.

I feel as though, I could not fly moving. I only want to sleep, not move houses. I am not onhilarated, but down hearted and worrying for fear I have taken this poison and I won't be cured by it.

I have two grains or so left, and I have only taken two and a half grains so far, that my pain and "own pain" are increasing by the stimulating effect of it. I am afraid, too, that I cannot sit quietly and write much longer. My nerves are screeching for me to be on the move.

It is an interesting thing, really or would be, if it were impersonal—to wonder which is going to win out, the cocaine or the agonies that are crying for morph

There are pains from end to end

It resembles a convulsion quite closely, but differs in that it is always for perhaps fifteen minutes. A convulsion caused by a stimulant is usually rapid and more weakening.

Fear, which has been present all the time. The fear of being discovered and forced to confess or tell that lie I had prepared Fear that I will become too "muddled" to Remember what I am saying and give myself away

If anyone suspected I was using "coke," Wouldn't they sneer and say I was not even worth letting live? I can see the expression upon the doctor's face if they find me when I am unconscious and he learns I have been using "coke" by proxy, and I can't tell my little story. He will try to save my life, of course, but is he sympathizing with me? Not much!

But he will when I come out of it.

My little story will bring him around, or (when I die) he finds this.

It ought to melt a heart of stone, such a tale of woe.

Through the heroism of Helen Crowley, fourteen, of No. 819 Salem street, Malden, five persons were saved from asphyxiation while they slept. Awakened by coal gas the girl jumped from bed and ran through the house, warning her parents, grandparents and an uncle. Then she telephoned for a doctor.

$140,000 SUIT OVER SALVAGED SHIP

Damages of $140,000 are sought in a suit filed today in Federal Court by the Merritt & Chapman Derrick & Wrecking Company of New York against the steamer Switzstar. RELIGION OF JURORS LISTED

Secret Police Questionnaire Also Contains Political Creed of Prospective Talesmen

Police sleuths, checking up the fitness of Boston citizens drawn for service on Grand and Petit Juries, are compelled to ascertain the religion of every prospective juror, according to disclosures today.

They must ask if the juror candidate is a college graduate.

They must find out his politics. His lodge affiliations.

His affiliations with politicians.

And whether he is related to any member of the Boston police force that went on strike in 1919.

This scrutiny of talesmen is carried out under secret police orders The data thus collected is supposed to be strictly confidential. It is to be used solely to aid the police department, the district attorney's office and the attorney general's department.

But—

Citizens whose private life has been thus probed report that they soon hear all about the "confidential stuff" from neighbors who are the only ones approached by the investigating patrolmen and upon whose temperament and veracity said information depends.

COUNTER AGITATION.

The drive made by former Attorney General J. Weston Allen and others for jury reforms and selection of jurors by a special commission has revealed a strong counter agitation against the police methods and interrogatories.

Citizens in many sections of the city resent any checking up as to his religion, political and fraternal affiliations. They claim these should not figure as part of the police inquiry and they particularly object to neighbors being made the chief and often the sole source of information.

The talesmen are supplied with secret slips bearing twenty-two printed questions, with blank spaces to fill out. This system, unpopular from its inception, but vigorously assailed since Mr. Allen's jury reform campaign, was inaugurated by the state Police Commissioner Edwin U Curtis during the regime of Attorney C. Pelletier as district attorney for Suffolk County and is still in vogue

THE TWENTY-TWO QUERIES.

The twenty-two queries which must be answered follow:

Name, residence, mode of living, locality, business, property owner, married or single, character and associates, habits, is he a man addicted to drinking? does he lead a fast life? politics, religion, is he a college graduate? lodge affiliations, affiliations with politicians, relations with law and lawyers, ever served on jury? is he related to any employe in city, county or State? was he ever in the employ of the city of Boston? is he related or marriage or otherwise to any former Boston police officer who dismissed his duty on or about September 9, 1919, or who was dismissed from the department for causes arising out of the situation? has the above named a criminal record?

A committee of reformers visited the Election Board last week and asked that "working men in South Boston, East Boston, Charlestown and Roxbury be left off the list."

They were told by the commissioner from South Boston that any such attempt to "have twenty-five per cent. rule the other seventy-five per cent." would not be sanctioned by the election board.

'Perfume Gas' Used to Rob Sleeping Princess of Gems

New York, Jan. 27.—"Perfume gas" is the latest means employed by German crooks to rob their victims, according to Countess Vera Von Bluecher of Brooklyn who returned from Germany on board the United States liner President Roosevelt.

Countess Von Bluecher was robbed of $3,000 worth of jewels while under the influence of this perfumed gas in a hotel in Frankfort. When she reported her loss, the police told her of the band of thieves that had been using the mysterious fumes to render sleeping victims, spraying it through keyholes.

GROCERS STOP SALE OF POOR BAG COAL

Somerville stores that deal in coal in 25 pound bag quantities are crossing that article from their stock because of the poor quality of the coal.

In justice to their regular customers, the storekeepers have decided to lose the small profit they can make on the coal about three cents a bag, in order that they may retain the good will of their patrons.

For the coal is absolutely unfit for home consumption according to one grocer

WAS MAKING ENEMIES.

This business man, who has a store on Beacon street, told the Boston American today that he found he was making enemies for himself by selling coal that would not burn

Therefore, to protect himself against any blackening and, at the same time, protect those who have given me their patronage in past years I have cut out selling coal in small bags. I have to pay $7 cents per ton ing and I sell them for 30 cents, so you see I didn't get much profit out of the coal.

The grocer explained that the coal which he had been selling would burn for a short time, until the gas had been consumed, and then it would turn white and clog up the stoves with slate

It was reported today that dealers were "hitting the high spots" in the Mattapan section, charging $12 per hundredweight, or $28 a ton for their coal.

PEDDLERS IN MATTAPAN

And the peddlers have Mattapan "sewed up tight" in true American expression Regular dealers for some reason or other have been keeping realistic on the waiting list for weeks at a time So they must patronize the peddlers and pay their exorbitant prices

There is a white just to show that they are not looking for high profits so they tell the housewives some of the peddlers will charge only $12 a ton or at the rate of $24 per ton But this does not happen often

The peddlers in Mattapan have pointed out that their price included delivery, forgetting to mention that the bag stations being operated with the approval of the Boston City Fuel Committee are charging at rents a bag a difference of 50 cents

DRIVER INJURED WHEN TRUCK HITS TROLLEY

A motor truck today crashed head on into a Middlesex & Boston street car near Munroe station in Lexington.

George Whalon, the chauffeur was badly cut by flying glass and suffered a broken leg. 8 passengers on the trolley were jolted from their seats, but none was hurt, nor was Motorman Geo [illegible] Ingvers

Whalon who lives at No. 225 Broadway, Cambridge was running at a sharp curve that hid the street car from view until he was so close it was impossible to avoid the collision.

DEATH TOLL IN OIL SHIP FIRE NOW 10.

Tampico, Mex., Jan. 27.—The death list in the burning of the Angelo Oil Company's tank ship San Leonardo in the Panuco River, was placed at 10 today As the ship's master, Captain Jose Medina and many members of the crew were on shore leave when the fire broke out Friday it was difficult to check up the exact number of missing

STORE MANAGER FELLED BY AWNING

Samuel Gordon of No. 14 Fordham street, manager of the United Cigar store at Washington and Boylston streets, attempted to lower the awning today. The frame fell, striking him to the ground. He is at Haymarket Relief Hospital with lacerations of the scalp.

MISS TUOHEY TO WED CIVIL ENGINEER

The engagement of Helen Marie Tuohey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Tuohey of Winthrop, to Victor Joseph Gallini, son of Mr. and the late Eletta Gallini of Somerville and Boston was announced today.

Miss Tuohey was born at Beachmont and was educated in the Revere and Winthrop schools. She has been an attendant at the Lady of Lourdes Church, Beachmont, where she has taught Sunday School and been a member of the choir as well as soloist.

Miss Tuohey has a world-wide circle of friends. During the war she did splendid work in the Liberty Bond and other drives and was honored by the British commission through her selection as a guest of honor on the Tank Britannia when that machine made its appearance in Boston.

Mr. Gallini was born in Rika, Italy, but came to this country when a child. He attended Elliot Grammar and Mechanic Arts, where he was one of the Franklin medal winners. He graduated from M. I. T. as a civil engineer in 1914.

At the outbreak of the war he joined the 301st Engineers at Camp Devens, but was later sent to the Officers' School at Camp Lee, Va., where he won his commission.

He is associated with the S. M. I Engineering Company in their Boston office.

MILD FLU CASES FLOURISH ALL OVER STATE

Scarlet fever, influenza and lobar pneumonia are flourishing in all sections of the State.

The cases are mild, however, are under control of the health officials and there is no immediate danger of an epidemic, Dr. Bernard W. Carey, the State Epidemiologist, said today.

There have been 894 cases of scarlet fever reported this month, 483 cases of influenza and 696 cases of lobar pneumonia. The deaths from pneumonia and influenza for the first twenty-five days of this month totalled 261, as compared with 811 for the entire month of January last year.

Dr. Carey said the influenza cases are mostly the cough-and-sneeze variety of the old-fashioned grippe.

Scarlet fever cases are largely due to changeable weather and the failure of parents to withdraw their children from school at the first show of symptoms, he said.

"See a doctor, obey the quarantine and don't give back the milk bottle to the milkman until they have been thoroughly sterilized," is his advice.

MALDEN JITNEY WAR PEACE NEAR

Malden's jitney war appears to be nearing the end. A special committee will urge the City Council Tuesday to grant licenses to Joseph Hart and the Boston Elevated. The war started when the City Council revoked Hart a license to operate busses between Malden and Maplewood squares at five cents a ride.

Wanted in Malden

Samuel Lurie, twenty-one, was arrested in Baltimore today for the Malden police on a charge of the larceny of $300 from the Boston Dye House, Inc., of Malden. The police charge that the accused took the money when he was a truck driver for the company Lurie has been missing since Spring.

SPORT WORLD GROGGY FROM WORD BATTLES

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY.
Sporting Editor

The week in sport
Every Saturday in the Boston American.

A new, big, smashing feature

It will please, for the various reviews will be written by the leading sporting writers in America the Boston American's all-star staff.

The real "inside," straight-from-the-shoulder facts will be given the fans. No bunk, press agent yarns or cheap propaganda.

The Boston American, as usual, will tell you what has happened and also explain why things came to pass.

Our [illegible] reviews are for the fans. They may offend [illegible] promoters. If so, we shall be delighted. We don't care a hoot for these commercialized gentlemen. Our aim is to protect the boys who pay the cash in the box office

Which causes us to ask

Where did the $1 boys get off at the hockey fiasco at the Boston Arena Wednesday night?

When the Westminsters failed to show up, money was refunded to persons who held seat checks. There were, however, some 1,500 to 1,600 fans who only had admissions. And they don't give you a seat check with an admission ticket. The entire ticket goes into the box at the entrance. The $1 boys did not have anything to show for their money. They got bunked as usual. 'Twas ever thus.

Basketball has come to stay. Bob McKirdy put over a banner attraction at Mechanics Building when the Celtics defeated the Boston Wh[illegible]. It was a sell out.

The fans witnessed a bang-up game. McKirdy got some money

Everybody was happy

Let's have some more big basketball nights

Boston Hockey Gets Black Eye From Arena Mixup

By CHARLES E. PARKER
(Hockey Editor)

Hockey in Boston, after a splendid start, was handed a rude jolt when the Westminster Club refused to come to the Arena and play the B. A. A. and thereby disappointed the huge crowd of fans that ever want to see a game here. The Arena management or the Boston Club officials were in no way to blame but the popularity of the sport suffered, and nothing but an unusual switch in the league race will fully efface the results of the New Haven outfit's bloodvisted action.

Reports for the Lisbonm team had some consolation in the fact that they outclassed every other B. A. A. practical title in the Eastern section of the League. The leaders haven't been pressed by any opponent thus far, and on their playing figured to be at least a match for the imported Westminsters, who have been ruled out of things.

The Unicorns [illegible] skip to Pittsburgh, also, and disposed over the team there, a favorite from the western section, on two successive occasions. The playing of Jerry [illegible] and both contests, and Jerry is now the leading candidate in the scramble for high scoring honors.

Boston Hockey Club seems to have fired all its ammunition, for after beating the Westies, the team slowed down, and was victim of a surprise defeat by the St. Nicks over in New York.

The next Harvard-Princeton game will settle the championship of the collegiate Big Three, [illegible] clubs which would not do the game assimilating a couple of [illegible]

Red Sox Fail to Put Through Deals to Strengthen Club

By NICK FLATLEY.
(Baseball Editor.)

Baseball keeps right on being as dull as the razor you use for sharpening pencils.

Even the imaginary deals, like the one that brought Johnny Rolev to the Red Sox, have passed out of the picture. The home fans are satisfied to take chances with only such minor leaguers, or have to be. Bigger [illegible] of busn league phenoms than ever will be taken on Southern vacations, which will make the early Spring practices unusually heavy. Both Boston clubs will have to start the season with married material in the line-up, or forfeit games for not having a man on the field. Both will experiment to [illegible] which one infield line which will [illegible] be interesting.

Judge Landis' [illegible] now making a round of minor league banquets, has praised his statements and [illegible] that there's no [illegible] of a war with the little fellows about the draft. That barrage of [illegible] was merely a [illegible] publicity campaign. But as nobody read it, it didn't do any harm.

Nick Flatley

The rumor keeps cropping up in New York that Wilbert Robinson will desert Brooklyn after this year's campaign, and succeed Mc Graw as manager of the Giants. The same yarn is a hardy perennial, which will event ally come true, and the time isn't so far away when the Gotham builder of champion teams will get out of active service.

He has plenty of money, and looking after it will take up his time within a year or so. Besides I has done everything that one man can do in the national pastime, even up to writing a book. Robby is a Mc Graw product—played on the Orioles with him and everything—and seems to be the logical successor, what time John J. retires.

The Speaker just can't keep out of the public prints. He has popped up in the past [illegible] the wedding prince [illegible] of the A. L. in '22. Spoke [illegible] to half the [illegible] roled out [illegible] hits and drew five walks [illegible] or some-thing like that. Which [illegible] wasn't bad for a youngster of [illegible] four thirty-six. And he acted as [illegible] pinch hitter only when his [illegible] leg was so lame [illegible] that he couldn't patrol the outfield.

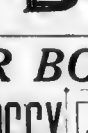
Real Boston news is just the same as ever—missing.

Arlington Plays Stoneham

Arlington High hockey team will play Stoneham this afternoon.

Johnny Dundee Is Riled by Jack Conway's Criticism

Johnny Dundee is rather upset as a result of a recent criticism by Jack Conway. The junior lightweight champion of Madison Square Garden had his publicity department send the following:



Johnny Dundee

"You, Mr. Conway, apparently are not familiar with the facts concerning my recent bout with Vincent (Pepper) Martin.

"You intimated that the Fenway A. A. lost money on the venture, owing to the heavy guarantee paid the so-called junior lightweight champion. This is not true.

"The fact of the matter is, I was to get 40 per cent. of the net receipts, but received 35 per cent., which amounted to $1,805—the same as Martin got.

"It seems to me that it isn't my fault that the promoters lost money because they were foolish enough to distribute more percentage that what they could afford. Poor business men, that's all. Hence there is no reason why I should be blamed for the mistakes attributed to other people.

"Further, you stated that I refused to box for a $1,800 purse for an Italian charity and that I told the committee that my price was $3,000, regardless of for what purpose the show was to be staged. This is untrue also, and I can't understand why you made these rash statements.

"I agreed to box any one of three men that I mentioned—Willie Jackson, Jimmie Hanlon or Gene Delmont—not for $3,000, as you say, but for NOTHING! Neither of these boxers was suitable, however.

"Then, to my surprise, I received a wire from one Tom Goodwin, a promoter, I think, asking my terms to box Johnny Sughroe for the benefit show. It struck me funny that after agreeing to box for nothing and doing business directly with G. A. Galbo, an honorable man, for the cause, I should receive a telegram from Goodwin, an outsider, who runs an independent club.

"Something was wrong, I am sure, so I promptly sent Goodwin my terms, figuring he wanted that match for himself, and also got in touch with Galbo to determine Goodwin's connections, if any, with the cause.

As I had expected, Goodwin had nothing whatsoever to do with it, and was merely working for his own selfish purposes, using Galbo's name and influence to strengthen his malicious efforts. Mr. Galbo can prove this.

"In closing I wish to say that this letter is written in the hope that it is neither bold nor offensive to you in any way."

Note by Jack Conway.—Dundee should have offered to pay each fan $100 who would have had courage enough to watch him in a bout with Willie Jackson, Jimmie Hanlon or Gene Delmont Anyhow, Dundee had a good idea of the value of such a contest when he offered to act for NOTHING.

We feel that our little criticism, which was offered with the best intentions, will enable our local Italian committee to get Dundee for a real bout (not an act) at a fair price. If so, we shall be satisfied

Dempsey and Pesek Stand Out as Real Champions

By JACK CONWAY.
(Boxing and Wrestling Editor.)

Jack Dempsey is back in New York. Therefore, it is natural that the heavyweight champion should control the boxing situation. Everybody likes heavyweights, even the cake eaters. Flyweights, bantamweights, featherweights and the rest of the noble crew have to get off the deck when the big fellows hop onto the bridge. And Dempsey is the admiral.

Thousands of columns of "news" have been sent out from New York since Dempsey started his stroll along Broadway. Most of it has been plain, unvarnished bunk and has been released merely for publicity purposes.

Tom O'Rourke, who manages fighters and also makes matches for the Republic Club, offered Dempsey a million bucks to engage in three fights.

Tex Rickard then stepped into the picture and paid Dempsey $1,000 for an option on his services.

Nobody but Rickard has a chance to slam the champion. It was Rickard who gave Jack his chance to fight Willard at Toledo. He has also promoted every match in which Dempsey has taken part as title holder. This includes the Dempsey-Miske bout, too, in which a figurehead was placed and found.

Dempsey, of course, should be grateful to Rickard. There is no such word as grateful, however, in the boxing game. The champion knows how to use Tex and how to get his matches over.

Harry Wills, most dangerous challenger, appears to have been given the air. He won't get a Dempsey match. This is an outrage, but such things are not new to the boxing game.

Jess Willard and the winner of the Tom Gibbons Floyd Johnson bout will be Dempsey's opponents.

Jack Taylor, a cheese fighter, exploded at the Armory Club Tuesday night. Battling McCreary did the exploding.

This was the only local pro show of the week. The amateurs showed at the B. A. A. and at the 5th Regiment Paddy Owens at the Armory Club next Tuesday. Eddie Harris battles Dave Shade at Mechanics Building on Saturday evening.

John Pesek, World's Greatest Wrestler

John Pesek, Nebraska Tiger Man, proved a riot at the Old Howard's show at the Grand Opera House. He crushed Nat Pollston, Olympic champion.

Pesek is the world's great est wrestler. Although he only weighs 185 pounds, he can defeat any man in the world.

Jack Curley and other members of the wrestling trust have put up the bars on Pesek. He is too aggressive and tough for their hothouse wrestlers.

Curley has had Pesek barred in New York on the charge he is an eye gouger. Max Rauman, manager of Pesek, intends to go to New York and attempt to have the ban lifted on Pesek.

George Calkins, Italian champion, is in Boston and is training for his match with George Hill, Wisconsin champion. Which will be staged at the Grand Opera House next Thursday night.

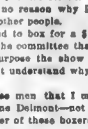
Lynn Schoolboy Bids for Fame in Big Leagues

By Fred C. Lane.
(Schoolboy Editor)

When the Detroit Tigers signed up Leslie Burke, Lynn English High schoolboy, it caused a flurry of comment in scholastic ranks. All that were acquainted with the ball playing of the lad knew it was only a question of time before he would succumb to one of the many tempting offers made by the five big league clubs that were after his services.



Fred Lane

When a major league club raids the scholastic ranks to fill a gap in its infield and picks a New England lad for that position from the thousands of ball players throughout the country, it certainly speaks well for the lad's playing.

Clarke filled the keystone sack position for Ty Cobb's team last year, but failed to impress the Georgian peach. Burke lacks big league experience, but nothing else.

His tenderness of age may prevent him from getting in the line show this season. Burke is only twenty years of age, making it necessary for his father to give his consent before transportation was advanced for the trip South in March.

The Lynn youth hits from the left side of the plate with good results. Chick Davies and King Bader, both leading twirlers in semi-pro ranks last season, failed to baffle the hitting qualities of the high school wonder

The wave of illness that spread over the Newton High hockey team, causing four of its best players to be put to bed, was a sad blow to the Garden City aggregation.

The team was making rapid strides to the championship when this misfortune overcame it. Dr. Martin, coach of the team, reports that all will be in shape with a week's rest and the baton taken up where it was dropped when the blight occurred

The sterling performance of the Hyde Park track team in scoring a win over East Boston High and West Roxbury in a recent triangular meet at the East Armory has begun the talk of Boston high school athletes.

To win over East Boston champions for years, rated a furore, for none expected Coach O'Brien's Noddy Island athletes to bow to the charge of Coach Leo Daly.

DILBOY POST TO STAGE SHOW

The George Dilboy Post, V. F. W., will conduct its regular monthly amateur boxing tournament in K of C Hall, Somerville, Thursday evening, February 5. Preparations are being made to handle the largest crowd to yet witness a tournament staged by this post, due to the excellent card that the committee has arranged. The classes to be contested are as follows: 112, 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds. Entries close Tuesday, February 4 with George A. Bowles, room 3, K of C. building, Somerville.

Long Shots Win in Week of Big Racing Upsets

By GUS DALY,
Horse Racing Editor.

The percentage of winning favorites at the Fair Grounds at New Orleans this Winter has been less than any year of its racing career.

Long shots are winning with surprising regularity, and it is to be wondered at how the "talent" stands up under these conditions. In the old days at this Southern city, when the latch key was thrown in the discards, the custom was to go with a firearm or two. Times have changed. Smelling salts are now the order of the day.

Further South, Havana is about half way through the most successful meeting ever staged at this popular Winter resort. The attendance has been the best ever, and the same goes for the racing.

Both mutuels and straight booking are in vogue. The natives take to the former, while the "talent" prefer to gase at the price they take in case they do collect.

Gus Daly

Tia Juana, California, is also in the throes of a busy racing season, and every day in every way it is getting better and better. They also have a habit of putting long shots over now and then. Jan. 25 Miss Emma O. paid $266.80 for two (pesos) dollars on $78.20 place $18.40 on the limb, a to'able good day's pay.

The C. B. Irwin stable is far in the lead so far as winners are concerned. They number twenty-six all told, most of which are in good racing condition. Harry D., the sprinter of this bunch, has won eleven of his fifteen starts, and has never been outside the money. A flat wager of $10 on this stable from the opening day would have netted a profit of $46. So if you must bet, why not here?

Right now what interests racing folks in these parts most is the coming banquet of the Bay State sheriff's circuit to the horsemen of the East, which is to be held at the Copley-Plaza next Tuesday at 6:30 p. m.

LEADERS ATTENDED.

Last year Governor Channing Cox and our Senator, Henry Cabot Lodge, were guests and speakers. After looking the assemblage over, he Senator frankly admitted he was a trifle surprised, for, as he said, a made him think he was back in Washington. Horsemen from all parts of New England are working to make this banquet and meeting one long to be remembered.

Caribou, Me., sports, moose antlers and all will be there, and Prexy Isle, the home of John R. Braden, King of the Pine Tree State pacers, will send on a generous number of its "fans."

Last year the Presque Isle folks brought down several entertainers in the vaudeville line, and they promise to bring other surprises this time.

The ice "meets" recently held at Mount Clemente, Mich., and at Saratoge Lake, were big successes from every point of view, the former place had four days, while the "Lake" had but three.

The State of Maine Fair Associations met at the Hotel Dewitt, Lewiston, Me., Thursday and Friday, January 24 and 25, for a conference and banquet, the attendance was an extremely large one and great interest was manifested out for the racing game in the "Pine Tree" State for the coming season.

LEAVES FOR SOUTH.

Walter R. (Longshot) Cox left for Pinehurst, N. C., on January 23, but has assured the Bay State circuit president, Roger Rourk, that he will be sitting back of a plate when the fun begins. Joe Johnson has sold the pacing mare Minnie Williams to Virginia parties at a handsome profit. One may look for a lot of ice racing in these parts during the month of February. Manchester, N. H. will soon stage a $1,000 free for all on the lake; Scora Theobald has entered Carter June; beat this one and it looks as if you will win. Silver King and Pointer Wood are watched to race at Harrison, Me., for $500 a side the latter part of next week. Berlin, N. H. is sure to have a carnival February 3, wh a horse racing is to be its feature.

MOTOR NEWS AND NOTES

UTILITY COUPE OF CHEVROLET IS POPULAR

President W. C. Sills of the Sills-Chevrolet Company, distributor for New England of Chevrolet motor cars, says: "We know that professional and commercial motorists of New England would be pleased with this popular member of the Chevrolet family because they really had a hand in its planning.

"Give us more room for luggage, sample cases, instruments, or merchandise," has been the cry of professional men and salesmen. "Give us an easy riding, closed car of just the right size that has artistic lines and is strictly first class in finish and body construction and completely appointed," has been the cry of doctors, surgeons, engineers and business executives.

"Give us a high grade car that delivers economic transportation," has been the cry on all sides. The Chevrolet utility coupe is just such a car. The body is Fisher designed and Fisher built. Its single seat is deep and wide, and upholstered for driving comfort, as well as for refined appearance and long wear. It has ample space and leg room for two passengers. Rear compartment of about fourteen cubic feet holds a steamer trunk and then is half empty. The body is mounted on the new superior Chevrolet chassis with all its refinements."

TECH SWIMMERS IN MEET WITH CADETS

The M. I. T. swimming team meets the West Point natators tonight. A comparison of the times of the army cadets in the Lehigh meet and of the Engineers in the Wesleyan tourney shows that the teams are evenly matched.

Technology, however, will be handicapped by the absence of Captain Bill Stewart in the breast stroke event. Tech's hopes rest in the fifty-yard relay and dives. The West Pointers seem to have the breast and backstrokes cinched.

The Cambridge Collegians will be represented by Marsh, Taylor, Brown, Evans, Carrer, Kray, Ames, Rowe, Nauman, Lawry, Dunn, Marsh and Palmer.

NASH ORDERS BREAK ALL RECORDS

"Nash Motors on January 9 had on hand more orders for delivery this month than were booked in any previous month in the history of the company, with the exception of May and June of last year," said C. P. Rockwell, N. E. Nash distributor.

"The year just closed was the greatest twelve months' period in the history of the Nash Motor Company. Total sales of Nash passenger cars in 1922 more than doubled shipments made the previous year.

"One interesting phase of the 1922 record is that the last six months of the year eclipsed the first half period in point of sales. In other words, 1,905 more cars were shipped by the factory from July 1 to December 31, than were shipped between January 1 and June 30, a like period including of course, the natural spring demand.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR CVERLAND CAR ON COAST

The Willys-Overland Co. at Toledo inaugurated its new year of increased activity by shipping on January 1 fifty-seven carloads of motor cars to the Pacific coast.

Thirty-five of these cars were billed to Los Angeles and twenty two were billed to San Francisco. The entire shipment comprised 101 model 91 Overlands, ten model 91 roadsters, nineteen model 91 coupes, sixty model 91 sedans, and ten commercial chassis. There were also seven coupe model 64 Whlys-Knight touring car, three model 64 coupes, two model 64 sedans, fifteen model 64 coupe-sedans, and ten model 67 sedans.

True to prediction this year is evincing the fact that the demand for automotive transportation promises to be unique in the history of the automobile industry.

ASK MR. FIX IT

Dear Mr. Fix It: Recently I sent a letter asking for information through the Boston American. This was about two weeks ago. I have looked the papers over carefully since that time and have been unable to find your column until yesterday and then I found no mention of my letter so I have come to the conclusion that it must have been missed, therefore I shall again endeavor to explain the trouble and ask for your advice as to what the trouble is and the approximate cost of fixing same. I am ten miles with one side of my trunk runs blown down. During the last three or four days I heard a terrific knock from the rear end seemingly. Upon examination I found the crank case was cracked and it is, but just how I cannot say. I am positive that the knock is not in the engine. When it is running and not in gear it is very quiet and smooth, but as soon as I try to get the whole engine makes from the force, the noise is so excessive as to make the Ford go. I tried to take a hill but instead of going over it stopped and started to go backwards even in "s" the engine kept going and I had it in second speed. I tried to back up the hill and it seemed as though I would pull the whole thing apart so I gave up. If you have already printed an answer to the problem will you kindly mail the paper to me.

H. L. MAC.

Westfield.

Driving ten miles without your crank case arm has put your drive shaft out of alignment probably in the rear universal joint and the bearing. When your temporary arm was put in the meter this did not assist so much in the way of alignment. Your car will run all right, but when you have it in speed you will find that it will jump when you start to speed up between the transmission and the rear end. You also must have some trouble in the transmission as when you start to pull the hill and you will have to step up your transmission one or two notches to keep it from stalling. The bands may be worn or so loose that the gears slip in first speed or I believe that the gears slip in first speed on a steep hill. Your temporary arm will not allow the rear you to some Ford Service Station, for I would take it over and see the transmission myself and see if I could find the trouble before taking it to the service stations.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: Will you please tell me what makes my car jump when I am driving at high speeds? It never used to act that way. It is a Ford touring car. Will you also tell me what makes my car carbonize every 2,000 miles? I have taken the cylinder head off and the carbon from the head. I used the very best of oil and gasoline. Do you not think my carburetor should be adjusted to overcome this trouble? Thanking you for any information you may give us, I am, Dennis. A. F.

Your trouble is probably due to the clutch not being adjusted just right. Have it looked at. The plates may be worn which would cause this trouble. Test your spark plugs for ignition from plates plates and the oil is getting by. This may be responsible for your trouble.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: I have a 1918 Chevrolet 490 in fine condition and recently put on a new piston rings and had a valve job done. I also used a new gasket on the head and could not get it tight, but it would work all right after it was in it have driven the car 8,000 miles since putting on the gear, but it seems to be using oil badly. If not worse, I don't seem to get it up a straight road. If I am going fifteen miles an hour, but increase twenty to twenty-five miles it does. Any advice for me will be much appreciated.

M. J.

Your gears will never be quiet, because

ACCESSORIES TO FEATURE AUTO SHOW

While this year's Automobile Show will introduce many new ideas in engineering and body designing, one of the most important features which will be brought forcibly to the attention of the thousands who go to Mechanics Building, March 10 to 17, will be the decided increase in the size and volume of the accessory exhibits.

The Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association, the National body to which many of the leading makers of accessories are attached, some time ago notified Chester L. Campbell, Manager of the Boston Show, that its members would require this year 25 per cent. more space than was taken last year, in order to insure a proper display of the many new things in this ever-changing field. As all of the Boston Show is regarded as the best in this country in point of sales and public development, the accessory exhibit alone will be worth while visiting.

With car manufacturers concentrating largely upon every thing—comfort for the motorists—the field of the accessory maker has been enlarged to a tremendous degree.

As usual, the main display will be in Mechanics Building, where the latest lines of cars will be displayed—the trucks and fire apparatus, and also automotive farming machinery.

In the basement, with passengers on the main floor and floors above.

when a new piston gear is installed it is necessary to put in a new wrist pin bushing. You will find that you can get satisfactory service by new three fourths inch wrist pin bushing. You will find that the differential carries washer on each side of the gear. Probably worn so you can move the gear sideways. Probably either or a heavy pull or serving corners.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: I have a 1918 Ford touring in which I have changed the body last year and fitted a Ford 4 speed transmission. I have a new rear axle however, I would like to know if I can put on a self starter. Ford make, if I can get a new fly wheel with the ring gear and a long model transmission cover for a starter. I have not let the motor run since I started the end thrust of the crank shaft and my mainbearing has blown. Also crankcase and would like to know how to adjust same. Please let me know how I can get the crank shaft in line up and how to adjust the [illegible] Thos. Tevlin.

The answer to question No. 1 is "Yes." You can get a new rear main bearing set which would make the fly wheel fit right and the ring gear and starting motor would be the same. Your crank shaft is out of line and should be adjusted through [illegible]

DORCHESTER, COMMERCE AND ENGLISH HIGH WIN AT ARENA

EAST BOSTON SCORES OVER WEST ROXBURY

Dorchester High tightened its grip on first place in the Boston High School Hockey League this morning, defeating Latin School by two goals at the Arena. Commerce High continued it's winning streak, defeating Trade, 3 to 0.

English High won over Brighton, 2 to 0; East Boston caged 3 goals to West Roxbury's 2, and Mechanic Arts and B. C. High fought it out with no scoring by either side.

The going was faster today than any time since the schoolboys took up the manly sport of puck chasing. Not a one-sided contest was staged. Mechanics and B. C. High played the usual three eight-minute periods, with an extra five-minute period thrown in, with no results.

This was a hair-raising contest from the opening gong. Captain Calman for Mechanics and Captain McGovern for the Maroon and Gold were in the thickest of the fray all through the game.

Dorchester in winning over Latin School scuttled all hopes of the Latin team, winning the championship of the league. Captain Kontoff of Dorchester was playing his usual sterling game. The Dorchester sextet took advantage of every opportunity, which fact cannot be said of the Latin team.

The line-up:

DORCHESTER.		LATIN.
Lincoln, Matson, lw		rw., Sughrue
Kontoff, c		c, McGrath
Naigle, rw		lw, Sullivan
Goldfien, rd		ld, Sliney
Howard, ld		rd, G. Norton
Margolis, g		g, Barry

Score—Dorchester 5, Latin 0.
Goals—Matson, Naigle.
Referee—Winterson.

English High was without the services of Captain Norton when the team beat Brighton 2 to 0 at the Arena today. Brighton was likewise handicapped for Joe McKenney, the sterling defence player, was out of the game because of sickness.

Brighton played heads up hockey all through the three stanzas, but the loss of McKenney affected the moral of the team.

The lineup:

ENGLISH.		BRIGHTON.
Smith, lw		rw., Conan
Hardiman, c		c, Nusspickle
Coffey, Hickey, rw		lw., Dison
Durant, rd		ld., Taylor
Koplow, ld		rd., Donovan
O'Keefe, g		g., McCue

Score—English 2; Brighton 0.
Goals—Smith, Hardigan.

East Boston's win over West Roxbury was a surprise, for little hope was held out for the Noddle Island team, which got off to a poor start. One tally in the third period by Lonman was sufficient to give East Boston the edge. Captain Fewer was not in the East Boston line-up, because of the death of his mother.

The line-up.

E. BOSTON.		W. ROXBURY.
Aikens, Lw		rw., Cunningham
Leaman, c		c., Costello
Clarke, rw		lw., Holstein
Kirby, ld		rd., McCusker
Simpson, rd		ld., Lane
Messer, g		g., Bartlett

Score—East Boston 3, West Roxbury 2. Goals—Leaman 2, Clarke, Costello, Holstein.

Commerce won it's third game of the season today trimming Trade School 3 to 0. Coffey was leading the the Back Bay School today when sickness caused Captain Santuosso out of the lineup.

The lineup.

Commerce		Trade
Tyrell, Lw		rw., Dingert
Coffey, c		c, Riley
Winterson, rw		lw., Little
McCarthy, ld		rd., Sandberg
McKenny, rd		ld., Sullivan

A red hot battle was staged between Mechanic Arts and Boston College High today when these two sextets met on the ice in the fourth play-off of the Boston Hockey League. It was the last game of the five staged at the Arena. After the usual three eight-minute periods were played, five more was added with no change in the result.

The lineup:

MECHANIC ARTS		B. C. HIGH
Quinlan, Lw		rw., Crawford
Talman, c		c., McGovern

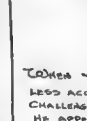
ST. NICHOLAS SIX IN BIG ICE CLASH AT ARENA

The St. Nicholas Club of New York, Hobey Baker's old outfit, will play the B. A. A. team, and the Boston Hockey Club will meet the Canadian Club of New York, in a hockey double-header at the Arena tonight.



This is the first visit of the St. Nicholas team. Hockey fans will find familiar faces in this lineup. Jabbie Holmes, former Harvard net star, whose 58 stops last year turned back the Westminsters and established a record for guarding the draperies, is the goalie. Roger Huntin, in centre ice; Townsend and George Walker are former Harvard stars. Bierwith, on right wing, is an old Yale star. Von Bernuth is the veteran of American hockey.

The Unicorn expects a tough battle. Coach Fred Rocque will turn loose his full strength against the New Yorkers. With so much at stake the B. A. A. players will play a lot better hockey than they showed against the Victorias in Wednesday's exhibition.

The other half of the card finds the Canadian Club team well fortified to do battle with the Boston Hockey Club. These teams appear to be evenly matched. The Canadian team is coached by Tom Howard, who turned out great Yale teams a few years ago. Lewis and McPherson of the Canadian Club played last year with the Quaker City. Other Canadian club players starred with Queen's University and Toronto University a few years ago.

The first game will start at 8:15, and fans will see a great stretch of over two hours of thrilling hockey.

Milwaukee will come here next week with one of the most powerful hockey teams that ever came out of the West. The players of this team represent the cream of Ontario hockey players. Every man is a star. It will be the first time that a septet has come here from such a distance in this country to play an exhibition game. The Milwaukee boys will tackle B. A. A. Tuesday and Harvard Wednesday.

DUKE SIGNS TO SCOUT FOR BRAVES

Charles (Duke) Farrell has signed with the Braves as scout. He will start in as soon as the season opens, looking over promising material for the Boston Nationals.

Charley first saw the light of day in West Boylston.

He first played ball with Marlboro and Others on the team at that time were Billy Burke, now of the United States Immigration Department; Dave Doyle, now of Cambridge; Billy McLaughlin, Bernie Madden of the famous Madden brothers nine, Joe Rook, Fred Trull, Malachi Kittredge, Joe Sandron and others.

"Try To Hit It" The BULL'S-EYE by NICK FEATLEY

ONE of our esteemed correspondents, so wrought up that he—or is it she?—forgets to sign, deplores the fast approaching death of the pie eating habit. He—or is it she?—goes on to declare that at a restaurant the other night, not one table in five was served with New England's favorite breakfast food.

He—or is it she?—is undoubtedly wrong. 'Twas merely a regular one. The waiters were putting on their daily skit, entitled "Just Out of That." Which is getting to be another charming custom of these times. You wait with slavering jowls, in a manner of speaking, for your pet dish. You starve yourself for it. You don't even drink stuff offered. Your waiter brings the ice water; then he pours it all over you, with his "I Jist Out." Early in the morning, at high or low noon, late in the night, it is the same old story. All that's lacking is a hashery. "The Jist Out Lunch." Here, fellow patrons, and also reformers, is a chance for a revolution. With the slogan—if at first you don't succeed, pie, pie again.

As They Do in Utopia

By Les Conklin

"WHAT do we have for dinner tonight?" asked Felix Fyreman as he stumbled wearily into the flat after a hard day's work.

"I'm sorry, Felix," said Mrs. Fyreman, "but I haven't a single thing cooked. Reading those fashion magazines all day long has completely tired me out, after walking way down to the beauty shop and all."

"You poor darling!" cried her husband sympathetically. "We'll go down to the Ritz for dinner. Now you lie down on the davenport and rest up while I put on my dress suit and phone for a taxicab."

"What is the charge against this man?" inquired the judge as Cecil Crosseyes was dragged before the court.

"Reckless driving your Honor. He disobeyed traffic signals."

"Beg your pardon, Sir," interrupted Cecilia, "but I drove ahead because the traffic officer was watching a girl instead of the traffic."

"You were perfectly right in that case," said the judge, "and he shall be reprimanded for not attending to his duties. The prisoner is discharged!"

"I have come to ask you for the hand of your daughter, Mr. Astorbilt," said young Fritz Coue, as he shook hands with the great carpet king. "I only make $20 a week, but she has promised to take in washing to help out."

"I'm glad to hear that she is actually going to do something," replied Mr. Astorbilt. "A little exercise is just what she needs. But about yourself—what has your career been thus far in life?"

"Two years ago my father left me ten thousand dollars, but I lost it betting on a horse race," said Fritz simply. "If I only had the capital I would bet more and win it back."

"That the spirit!" commended him. "I like young men. You and [illegible] and clean up [illegible]. I'll give you right away so that you can go downtown and get an engagement ring."

MONOLOGUES

By La Monte Waldron

SO, Mary is married at last! Now isn't that nice?
If I were not such a dear friend of Mary's
I might say that it was about time;
But I am so very fond of the sweet girl,
Any I wouldn't say anything catty like that Even about that horrid Miss Blank—
Don't you positively detest that little minx?
So Mary is really a bride,
And married on the quiet, too
Well, well one would have thought she would have a swell
Wedding, and all that sort of thing.
But then some can't dress all in white
And stand the broad daylight, you know
Doesn't seem possible that Mary is really married
After all these years
She's been such a—well—what you might call
A looker-on, or a wallflower, or something
Still I realize that the dear child
Was probably waiting for a man—
I mean the right man—to come along
And take a chance on it
Being for better or worse than for worse—
But when all is said
I don't believe that fellow Arthur—
Isn't he homely, though!—
I don't believe he's half good enough for her.
He's such a queer stick, you know.
And I don't believe he makes enough to Support them both
Not to speak of children
Do you?

Remember the Time—

By Jack Casey

To rush uptown and meet all the gang.
At the Arch Inn.
And the greeting was:
"What's yours, old man?"
And it was always plenty.
And the days of Maggie Cline.
Was singing,
"Throw Him Down McCloskey."
And Eva Tanguay hadn't even been heard of.
And Maude Adams was just getting good.
And Cy Young was a cook.
And Jack Mason was a shortstop.
And Henry Ford.
Was never heard of.
And lolly pops was new.
And there was only one kind of chewing gum.
Pepsin.
And a guy with a bicycle liked to be called.
A wrecker.
REMEMBER?
Those were the happy days.

BEING SQUARE WITH HOME FOLKS.

Do you spend as much time at home, Mr. Husband and Father, as you might?

If the truth were told, you might as well as not, get through with that work, which you say takes you to the office, so often in the evening.

Do you think it is a square deal you are giving those at home, to be away from home so much in the evenings?

Don't you know that the family has a right to the most of your leisure?

If you are the right sort of husband and father the family will miss you when you are away from home.

If you are not missed, you are lacking someway, as husband and father.

You know your own faults and you should try to correct them.

Your home should be the greatest attraction in your life.

Nothing should come before your home ties.

Do you feel this way about your home—your wife—your children?

If not, what is the reason you have so little affection for them?

If you dug deep enough you would find that you are as much to blame as anyone for your indifference and you would be ashamed to go on, making yourself so little necessary to the comfort of those who should look to you to share with them your joy as well as your sorrow.

A Difference.

Husband—Is this what you call cottage pudding?

Wife—It would have been, only it didn't ripe, so now it's flat custard.

THE PRIDE OF PALOMAR By PETER B. KYNE

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

The story opens on the Rancho Palomar, an extensive tract in Southern California. Old Don Miguel Farrel, alone on the heavily mortgaged rancho with only his last faithful retainer, Pablo Artelan, and the latter's expansive wife, receives a telegram from the War Department at Washington announcing the death in battle in Siberia of his only son, "Don Mike." The shock kills him. Don Mike arrives and finds a family of Parkers there, including a beautiful daughter, Kay. Mr. Parker is scheming to get the ranch and sell it to the Japanese. Don Mike asks him to bid on it and then refuses to sell. Kay gives Bill Conway money to go on building a dam on the ranch. Mike has his old race course fixed up and Panchito is given a trial of speed.

Don Mike picked Kay up off her feet

It is a Cosmopolitan Production, directed by Frank Borzage, and featuring Forrest Stanley and Marjorie Daw. It is released as a Paramount picture.

"THEY'LL never stop at the half-mile pole," Farrel laughed. "That race will be won by Panchito when Panchito wins it. Ah, I told you so."

"Well, Peep-sight wins at the half by one open length—and the choio boy is using a switch on him!"

"He's through. Panchito is gaining on him. He'll pass him at the three-quarter pole."

"Right-o, Farrel. Panchito wins by half a length at the three-quarter pole—"

"I wish Kay would pull him up," Farrel complained. "He's gone too far already and there she is still heading for home like the devil beating tan-bark. . . . Well, if she breaks him down she's going to be out the grandest saddle animal in the State of California. That's all I have to say. . . . Kay, Kay, girl, what's the matter with you? Pull him up . . . by the blood of the devil, she can't pull him up. She's broken a rein and he's making a run of it on his own."

"Man, look at that horse go."

Panchito had swung into the home-stretch, his white face and white front legs rising and falling with the strong, steady rhythm of the horse whose stout heart refuses to acknowledge defeat, the horse who still has something left for a supreme effort at the finish.

"There is a true race-horse," Parker cried exultantly. "I once won a ten-thousand-dollar purse with a dog that wasn't fit to appear on the same track with that Panchito."

The big chestnut thudded by below them, stretched to the limit of his endurance, passed what would have been finished had the race been a mile and a sixteenth, and galloped up the track with the broken bridle-rein dangling. He slowed down as he came to the other horses in the race, now jogging back to the judge's stand, and one of the choio youths spurred alongside of him, caught the dangling rein and led him back to the judge's stand.

Kay's face was a little bit white as she smiled up at her father and Farrel. "The old darling ran away with me," she called.

Farrel was instantly at her side and had lifted her out of the saddle. She clung to him for the barest moment, trembling with fear and excitement, before turning to examine Panchito, from whom Pablo had already stripped the saddle. He was badly blown, as trembly as the girl herself, and dripping with sweat, but when Pablo slipped the headrail on him and commenced to walk him up and down to "cool him out," Don Mike's critical eye failed to observe any evil effects from the long and unaccustomed race.

John Parker came down out of the grand stand, his thumb still tightly pressing the stem of his stop-watch, which he thrust under Farrel's nose.

"Look, you star-spangled ignoramus, look," he yelled. "You own a horse that's fit to win the Melbourne Cup or the American Derby, and you don't know it. What do you want for him? Give you ten thousand for him this minute—and I am not so certain that race hasn't hurt him."

"Oh, I don't want to sell Panchito. I can make this ranch pay ten thousand dollars, but I cannot breed another Panchito on it."

"Farrel, if you refuse to sell me that horse I'm going to sit right down here and weep. Son, I don't know a soul on earth who can use twelve—yes, fifteen—thousand dollars handier than you can."

Don Mike smiled his lazy, tantalizing smile. "I might as well be broke as the way I am," he protested. "What's a paltry fifteen thousand dollars to a man who needs half a million? Mr. Parker, my horse is not for sale at ANY price."

"You mean that?"

"Absolutely."

John Parker sighed. Since that distant day when he had decided that he could afford such a luxury, his greatest delight had been in owning and "busting" with a few really great race-horses. He had owned some famous sprinters, but his knowledge of the racing game had convinced him that, could he but acquire Panchito, he would be the owner of a true king of the turf. The assurance that, with all his great wealth, this supreme delight was denied him, was a heavy blow.

Kay slipped her arm through his. "Don't cry, pa, please! We'll wait until Don Mike tests all his sheep and new horses and then we'll buy Panchito for a song."

"That Horse Is a Peach"

"Oh, Kay, little girl, that horse is a peach. I think I'd give a couple of loose for the fun of getting my old trainer Dan Leighton out here, training this animal quietly up here in the valley where nobody could get a line on his performances, then shipping him east to Saratoga, where I'd put a good boy on him, stick him in rotten company and win enough races to qualify him for the biggest event of the year. And then! Oh, how I would steal the Derby from John H. Hatfield and his four-year-old wonder. I owe Hatfield a poke anyhow. We went raiding together once and turn in the direction of El Toro.

"Wilder than a March hare," Don Mike commented.

Not at all," Kay assured him. "He's merely risking his life in his haste to reach El Toro and telegraph Dan Leighton to report immediately."

John Parker's boredom had been cured by a stop-watch. One week after Panchito had given evidence of his royal breeding, Parker's old trainer, Dan Leighton, arrived at the Palomar. Formerly a jockey, he was now in his fiftieth year, a wistful little man with a puckered, shrewd face, which puckered more than usual when Don Mike handed him Panchito's pedigree.

"He's a marvelous horse, Danny," Parker assured the old trainer.

"No thanks to him. He ought to be," Leighton replied. His cool glance measured Alfaandro Trujillo, standing hard by. "I'll have that dusky imp for an exercise boy," he announced. "He's built like an aeroplane—all superstructure and no saddle."

Panchito in Training

For a month the training of Panchito went on each morning, Pablo's grandson, under Danny Leighton's tuition, proved an excellent exercise boy. He learned to sit his horse in the approved jockey fashion, proud beyond measure at the part he was playing. he paid strict attention to Leighton's instructions and progressed admirably.

Watching the horse develop under skilled scientific training, it occurred to Don Mike each time he held his father's old stop-watch on Panchito that race-horses had, in a great measure, conduced to the ruin of the Mortgages and Parkin, and something told him that Panchito was likely to prove the instrument for the utter financial extinction of the last survivor of that famous tribe. "If he continues to improve," Farrel told himself, "he's worth a heap—and a mighty good reason why Panchito's grandfather, leading his field by six open lengths in the home-stretch, going strong and a winner by a furlong, stumbled his feet, fell on his nose and cost my father a thousand steers six months before they were ready for market. I ought to have John Parker to fix all the betting on Panchito, but—well, he's a race-horse—and I'm a Farrel."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

DAVID MEETS A QUEER LITTLE BARKER.

ONE day as David was out in the woods playing, he heard a dog barking near by, and he ran to the bushes from which the noise seemed to come.

He whistled. The barking stopped for a second, and then began again.

"Why it sounds as if it might be up in that tree," David mused, as he ran over to the tree.

There among the branches, blinking at the light, sat a funny old owl. He didn't see David at first, but when he barked again, David laughed and startled him so that he nearly fell off the branch he was sitting on.

"Well, of all things," David laughed. "If it isn't a hoot-owl! So you're the fellow who has been barking all this time. I thought it was my dog, Tige. I could hardly tell the difference between the two barks."

"I'm sure did, Mr. Hoot-owl," replied David. "That's why I ran to see what he was barking at."

"Well, it was I. But please don't get me mixed with old Hoot Owl." And he shook his great, wide wings and cried like a child. "I'm the wizard of these woods. I'm what they call the 'Great Horned Owl.' I'm not a hooter at all. I can bark as much like a dog that I can fool folks, or I can scream like a person in pain. Who ever saw a hoot owl with horns?" And he flew down so David could get a good look at him. "Some folks call me the 'Cat Owl,' but I don't like that name very well. So I go by the name of 'Horned Owl.'"

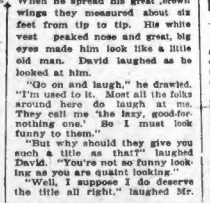
David stepped back a step or so. He had never seen such a large owl in all his life. This fellow was almost two feet in length.

When he spread his great brown wings they measured about six feet from tip to tip. His white vest peaked nose and great, big eyes made him look like a little old man. David laughed as he looked at him.

"Go on and laugh," he drawled. "I'm used to it. Most all the folks around here do laugh at me. They call me 'the lazy, good-for-nothing one.' So I must look funny to them."

"But why should they give you such a title as that?" laughed David. "You're not so funny looking as you are quaint looking."

"Well, I suppose I do deserve the title all right," laughed Mr.



"Well, It Was I."

Horned Owl, "for I am lazy when it comes to hunting food. Why, I never go out into the woods to look for a meal."

"What in the world do you do, then?" David asked.

"Why should I work hard when I can go down in Farmer Tom's barnyard and get a chicken any time I want one?"

"But hasn't he a wire top over his chicken pen?" asked David. I thought——"

"So I guess he thinks, too," laughed Mr. Horned Owl. "He did have until old Mr. Sly Fox tore it off the other night. I saw him do it, and after he went away I went in and helped myself. I guess Farmer Tom blamed Sly Fox, for this morning I saw a trap outside the chicken pen. I'm glad he hasn't seen the hole, for I'm hungry, and a chicken will taste pretty good."

That night when old Horned Owl visited the chicken pen the hole had been mended. He tried and tried to get in without success. Terribly peeved, he sailed away to the woods, and for once in his life old Horned Owl had to work for his food.

"Serves me right," he grumbled to himself. "It never pays to gratify all you know."

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Ann Adams

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

As I am giving a dinner party within the next few weeks, I would like to know whether I am expected to have menus printed for each guest. The dinner is to be formal and I am desirous of having all my appointments correct.

ANSWER—Menu cards for the formal dinner are no longer used. If your dinner is for an exceptional occasion, or if there is to be a very distinguished guest of honor, the engraved menu card, with a direct reference to the guest or occasion, is sometimes used in place of escorcheons. For the republican formal dinner, however, the menu card is not used.

HEALTH A BIG ASSET

By Brice Belden, M. D.

YOU start life with a certain amount of original capital as regards the constitution. This capital you must safeguard throughout life from maintaining or acquiring a large reserve of vigor.

You cannot begin to make inroads upon your constitution until you have exhausted your reserve energy; therefore, you are safe so long as you take proper care of yourself.

Taking proper care of yourself means exercising, getting a generous supply of fresh air, not eating between meals, and not abusing such things as nicotine, coffee, tea, alcohol, etc.

People who contract such diseases as tuberculosis are simply those who for one or another reason have depleted their reserve energy and then have begun to cut into their original capital persistently. We can stand that sort of thing once in a while, perhaps under enforced conditions, but we cannot continue it without paying some dire penalty.

Having a good reserve of vitality is like having an assured income to live on. But when one spends this income too rapidly and draws upon his principal he is sure to find himself poverty stricken if he keeps the pace up and takes no steps to replace his depleted capital. In the same way you can spend your reserve vitality and then draw unduly upon your original capital.

It is taken for granted that you will eat good food and seek the right sort of recreation. The other measures recommended supplement these. We may regard sleep as a form of recreation.

Hurry means worry, and worry means dangerous friction.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

When cigarettes, pipe tobacco, and cigars are compared, weight for weight, the amount of nicotine absorbed into the system of a smoker is greatest in the case of the first.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in Lives of Famous Women

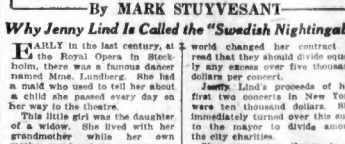
By MARK STUYVESANT

Why Jenny Lind Is Called the "Swedish Nightingale"

EARLY in the last century, at the Royal Opera in Stockholm, there was a famous dancer named Mme. Lundberg. She had a maid who used to tell her about a child she passed every day on her way to the theatre.

This little girl was the daughter of a widow. She lived with her grandmother while her own mother went out as a governess.

It was not a very bright place



People Stopped to Listen to Her Sweet Voice

for this little nine-year-old girl. But she did not mind it, because she had a pet cat to which she talked and sang. People stopped in the street to look up at the pretty picture the child and the cat made in the window, and to listen to her sweet voice.

Mme. Lundberg's maid became so interested in the child that she brought her to see her mistress, and had her sing some of her songs.

Mme. Lundberg said:

"This child must be educated for the stage."

She took the little girl to the manager, who started her instruction immediately at the Royal school.

This was the beginning of the career of one of the greatest of singers—Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale.

Jenny started to study and work with intense zeal and determination which never left her.

She had small parts in the opera, acting children's parts. When she grew older she literally took the world by storm.

At one time when she left Stockholm for a trip to London, the battleships lying in the harbor were decorated and fired a salute for her as if she had been a queen.

Her greatest success was on her visit to America. Here she first sang at the old Castle Garden, at the Battery, the present Aquarium in New York City.

P. T. Barnum was her manager. Her contract read for one hundred and fifty concerts at one thousand dollars each. Later, of his own accord, this wizard of the show world changed her contract to read that they should divide equally any excess over five thousand dollars per concert.

Jenny Lind's proceeds of her first two concerts in New York were ten thousand dollars. She immediately turned over this sum to the mayor to divide among the city charities.

She gave many thousands of dollars not only while in America, but during her life.

It was while in America that Jenny Lind fell in love with and married Otto Goldschmidt. Goldschmidt was twelve years younger than Jenny Lind and a very fine musician.

The marriage was ideally happy. They toured the continent together. She was feted at all the courts of Europe, but was never spoiled by her success or the wealth which she accumulated.

Few women have been adored as was Jenny Lind. Her life with her husband, children and grand children around her—a happy, contented woman. She could not help singing.

COMPANY DINNERS

By Loretta C. Lynch

RUNS a letter in the day's mail, "Won't you please drop a gentle hint to housewives as to what to have for a company dinner, especially when the guest is someone whose food habits they do not know? The other evening a business friend asked me to dine at his house the following evening and continue our discussion there. And say, that dinner nearly finished me.

Whenever there is any doubt about the main course it is well to choose poultry. With extremely few exceptions most people like poultry or can usually eat it, even if they are on a diet.

There are any number of company desserts besides pie, and one that I find especially attractive is a dessert with an apple sauce foundation. Canned apple sauce of good quality may be used successfully. Heap the sauce into a pretty stemmed glass individual serving dish. On top of this put a spiral of whipped sweetened flavored cream shaped by pressing through a pastry tube. Top the dessert with a maraschino cherry, and over all put a sprinkling of cinnamon or nutmeg or a suspicion of chopped nuts.

If we go to the bother of preparing a company dinner, let our efforts be repaid by real, honest appreciation.

Don't Believe That Old Humbug About Uric Acid

Causing Rheumatism for—It Is Not So! You Can End Your Rheumatism Like I Did Mine—Wife Also Rid of Neuritis

Emphatically asserting that thousands of unfortunate sufferers have been led into taking wrong treatments under the old and false belief that Uric Acid causes rheumatism, Pastor R. W. Reed says:

"As an ex-user of our highest medical advertised, I can say that Uric Acid never did end nor cause rheumatism. But it took me many years to find out this truth. I discovered how to get rid of rheumatism and regain power, my health and strength, through reading 'The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism,' a book written by an American physician who has discovered the cause and treatment of rheumatism for over twenty years. It was indeed a veritable revelation to me.

"I had suffered agony for years from rheumatism and associated disorders, and like Reed was tortured with the demon neuritis almost beyond endurance. My head and ears rushed so much blood that they ached and my whole frame seemed full of fire. Then I got hold of the 'Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism' and in all these years of suffering I never found so much help in so few days as I did from this book. It explained why I suffered and how I could be relieved. It told me how to overcome the cause of my trouble and how to get rid of rheumatism and neuritis. I followed its instructions and was cured by a stop-watch. One week after Panchito had given evidence of his royal breeding, Parker's old trainer, Dan Leighton, arrived at the Palomar. Formerly a jockey, he was now in his fiftieth year, a wistful little man with a puckered, shrewd face, which puckered more than usual when Don Mike handed him Panchito's pedigree.

"He's a marvelous horse, Danny," Parker assured the old trainer.

"No thanks to him. He ought to be," Leighton replied. His cool glance measured Alfaandro Trujillo, standing hard by. "I'll have that dusky imp for an exercise boy," he announced. "He's built like an aeroplane—all superstructure and no saddle."

Panchito in Training

For a month the training of Panchito went on each morning, Pablo's grandson, under Danny Leighton's tuition, proved an excellent exercise boy. He learned to sit his horse in the approved jockey fashion, proud beyond measure at the part he was playing. he paid strict attention to Leighton's instructions and progressed admirably.

Watching the horse develop under skilled scientific training, it occurred to Don Mike each time he held his father's old stop-watch on Panchito that race-horses had, in a great measure, conduced to the ruin of the Mortgages and Parkin, and something told him that Panchito was likely to prove the instrument for the utter financial extinction of the last survivor of that famous tribe. "If he continues to improve," Farrel told himself, "he's worth a heap—and a mighty good reason why Panchito's grandfather, leading his field by six open lengths in the home-stretch, going strong and a winner by a furlong, stumbled his feet, fell on his nose and cost my father a thousand steers six months before they were ready for market. I ought to have John Parker to fix all the betting on Panchito, but—well, he's a race-horse—and I'm a Farrel."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

DAVID MEETS A QUEER LITTLE BARKER.

ONE day as David was out in the woods playing, he heard a dog barking near by, and he ran to the bushes from which the noise seemed to come.

He whistled. The barking stopped for a second, and then began again.

"Why it sounds as if it might be up in that tree," David mused, as he ran over to the tree.

There among the branches, blinking at the light, sat a funny old owl. He didn't see David at first, but when he barked again, David laughed and startled him so that he nearly fell off the branch he was sitting on.

"Well, of all things," David laughed. "If it isn't a hoot-owl! So you're the fellow who has been barking all this time. I thought it was my dog, Tige. I could hardly tell the difference between the two barks."

"I'm sure did, Mr. Hoot-owl," replied David. "That's why I ran to see what he was barking at."

"Well, it was I. But please don't get me mixed with old Hoot Owl." And he shook his great, wide wings and cried like a child. "I'm the wizard of these woods. I'm what they call the 'Great Horned Owl.' I'm not a hooter at all. I can bark as much like a dog that I can fool folks, or I can scream like a person in pain. Who ever saw a hoot owl with horns?" And he flew down so David could get a good look at him. "Some folks call me the 'Cat Owl,' but I don't like that name very well. So I go by the name of 'Horned Owl.'"

David stepped back a step or so. He had never seen such a large owl in all his life. This fellow was almost two feet in length.

When he spread his great brown wings they measured about six feet from tip to tip. His white vest peaked nose and great, big eyes made him look like a little old man. David laughed as he looked at him.

"Go on and laugh," he drawled. "I'm used to it. Most all the folks around here do laugh at me. They call me 'the lazy, good-for-nothing one.' So I must look funny to them."

"But why should they give you such a title as that?" laughed David. "You're not so funny looking as you are quaint looking."

"Well, I suppose I do deserve the title all right," laughed Mr.

"Well, It Was I."

Horned Owl, "for I am lazy when it comes to hunting food. Why, I never go out into the woods to look for a meal."

"What in the world do you do, then?" David asked.

"Why should I work hard when I can go down in Farmer Tom's barnyard and get a chicken any time I want one?"

"But hasn't he a wire top over his chicken pen?" asked David. I thought——"

"So I guess he thinks, too," laughed Mr. Horned Owl. "He did have until old Mr. Sly Fox tore it off the other night. I saw him do it, and after he went away I went in and helped myself. I guess Farmer Tom blamed Sly Fox, for this morning I saw a trap outside the chicken pen. I'm glad he hasn't seen the hole, for I'm hungry, and a chicken will taste pretty good."

That night when old Horned Owl visited the chicken pen the hole had been mended. He tried and tried to get in without success. Terribly peeved, he sailed away to the woods, and for once in his life old Horned Owl had to work for his food.

"Serves me right," he grumbled to himself. "It never pays to gratify all you know."

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Ann Adams

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

As I am giving a dinner party within the next few weeks, I would like to know whether I am expected to have menus printed for each guest. The dinner is to be formal and I am desirous of having all my appointments correct.

ANSWER—Menu cards for the formal dinner are no longer used. If your dinner is for an exceptional occasion, or if there is to be a very distinguished guest of honor, the engraved menu card, with a direct reference to the guest or occasion, is sometimes used in place of escorcheons. For the republican formal dinner, however, the menu card is not used.

HEALTH A BIG ASSET

By Brice Belden, M. D.

YOU start life with a certain amount of original capital as regards the constitution. This capital you must safeguard throughout life from maintaining or acquiring a large reserve of vigor.

You cannot begin to make inroads upon your constitution until you have exhausted your reserve energy; therefore, you are safe so long as you take proper care of yourself.

Taking proper care of yourself means exercising, getting a generous supply of fresh air, not eating between meals, and not abusing such things as nicotine, coffee, tea, alcohol, etc.

People who contract such diseases as tuberculosis are simply those who for one or another reason have depleted their reserve energy and then have begun to cut into their original capital persistently. We can stand that sort of thing once in a while, perhaps under enforced conditions, but we cannot continue it without paying some dire penalty.

Having a good reserve of vitality is like having an assured income to live on. But when one spends this income too rapidly and draws upon his principal he is sure to find himself poverty stricken if he keeps the pace up and takes no steps to replace his depleted capital. In the same way you can spend your reserve vitality and then draw unduly upon your original capital.

It is taken for granted that you will eat good food and seek the right sort of recreation. The other measures recommended supplement these. We may regard sleep as a form of recreation.

Hurry means worry, and worry means dangerous friction.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

When cigarettes, pipe tobacco, and cigars are compared, weight for weight, the amount of nicotine absorbed into the system of a smoker is greatest in the case of the first.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

Why Jenny Lind Is Called the "Swedish Nightingale"

EARLY in the last century, at the Royal Opera in Stockholm, there was a famous dancer named Mme. Lundberg. She had a maid who used to tell her about a child she passed every day on her way to the theatre.

This little girl was the daughter of a widow. She lived with her grandmother while her own mother went out as a governess.

It was not a very bright place

People Stopped to Listen to Her Sweet Voice

for this little nine-year-old girl. But she did not mind it, because she had a pet cat to which she talked and sang. People stopped in the street to look up at the pretty picture the child and the cat made in the window, and to listen to her sweet voice.

Mme. Lundberg's maid became so interested in the child that she brought her to see her mistress, and had her sing some of her songs.

Mme. Lundberg said:

"This child must be educated for the stage."

She took the little girl to the manager, who started her instruction immediately at the Royal school.

This was the beginning of the career of one of the greatest of singers—Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale.

Jenny started to study and work with intense zeal and determination which never left her.

She had small parts in the opera, acting children's parts. When she grew older she literally took the world by storm.

At one time when she left Stockholm for a trip to London, the battleships lying in the harbor were decorated and fired a salute for her as if she had been a queen.

Her greatest success was on her visit to America. Here she first sang at the old Castle Garden, at the Battery, the present Aquarium in New York City.

P. T. Barnum was her manager. Her contract read for one hundred and fifty concerts at one thousand dollars each. Later, of his own accord, this wizard of the show world changed her contract to read that they should divide equally any excess over five thousand dollars per concert.

Jenny Lind's proceeds of her first two concerts in New York were ten thousand dollars. She immediately turned over this sum to the mayor to divide among the city charities.

She gave many thousands of dollars not only while in America, but during her life.

It was while in America that Jenny Lind fell in love with and married Otto Goldschmidt. Goldschmidt was twelve years younger than Jenny Lind and a very fine musician.

The marriage was ideally happy. They toured the continent together. She was feted at all the courts of Europe, but was never spoiled by her success or the wealth which she accumulated.

Few women have been adored as was Jenny Lind. Her life with her husband, children and grand children around her—a happy, contented woman. She could not help singing.

COMPANY DINNERS

By Loretta C. Lynch

RUNS a letter in the day's mail, "Won't you please drop a gentle hint to housewives as to what to have for a company dinner, especially when the guest is someone whose food habits they do not know? The other evening a business friend asked me to dine at his house the following evening and continue our discussion there. And say, that dinner nearly finished me.

Whenever there is any doubt about the main course it is well to choose poultry. With extremely few exceptions most people like poultry or can usually eat it, even if they are on a diet.

There are any number of company desserts besides pie, and one that I find especially attractive is a dessert with an apple sauce foundation. Canned apple sauce of good quality may be used successfully. Heap the sauce into a pretty stemmed glass individual serving dish. On top of this put a spiral of whipped sweetened flavored cream shaped by pressing through a pastry tube. Top the dessert with a maraschino cherry, and over all put a sprinkling of cinnamon or nutmeg or a suspicion of chopped nuts.

If we go to the bother of preparing a company dinner, let our efforts be repaid by real, honest appreciation.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

When giants start pummeling each other little fellows should get out of the way in a hurry.

That is another way of saying that when Durant Motors is knocked down $16 a share and Elmer Body $41 a share it means that powerful interests have started to hit out and that the small stockholders run the risk of being hurt.

Durant has twice lost control of his companies, and the way he is now going about financing his many new and mammoth ventures is no guarantee that the future will be different from the past. Powerful banking support is invaluable when crises occur. Powerbanking antagonizers is the reverse.

Durant securities are not to be regarded as dependable, seasoned investments. They are not investments. They are sheer speculations.

Moreover, his enterprises are wholly dependent upon himself, they are so entirely a one man affair, that those who buy his stocks—and who can't lay their hands on actual shares for a long time—should ask themselves what would happen were anything to happen to Durant.

The next movement in wages will be upward.

Good railroad stocks should shortly advance.

The American Woolen Company didn't make up its next season's prices unreasonably—only about 13¼ per cent. Clothing, therefore, shouldn't be as very much dearer. If you are going to need clothes in the near future, however, I'd advise you to buy right away. This applies also to cotton goods. Raw materials are already up and finished goods will inevitably follow.

You probably have heard the neat reply given by one man when asked "How do you find business?" His reply was, "By going out and looking for it."

I thought of this while talking in New York this week with Frederick F. Paterson, president of the National Cash Register Company, more than 300 of whose salesmen, who exceeded their allotted quota of orders during 1923, have been holding a week's convention, first at headquarters, Dayton, Ohio, and now in New York. I was impressed not only by Mr. Patterson's ability to handle a body of intelligent men, but by the business wisdom which came from him during our conversation. For example, he said this:

"Last year was the biggest we ever had, with the exception of the abnormal year of 1920. Our business for the last four months of 1922 was the largest for any four consecutive months in our history, which in January is ranked all January records notwithstanding that fully 800 of our hundred-point salesmen have been out of their territories for over two weeks. You hear a lot about business conditions having been poor last year.

"I have found, however, that the conditions inside your own organization are far more important than the conditions outside. There's always business to be got by those who know how to get it."

Boston Notes

EDISON Electric of Boston in 1922 earned $12 dividend on outstanding stock, and something to add to surplus and reserves, notwithstanding two cuts in price for electricity, effect of which was to cause loss of about $675,000 in 1922 income.

STREET bears edge is by no means off Gillette Safety Razor.

UNITED Shoe for year to end next month is expected to show surplus for present rate of equal to about $4 a share as against only $1.80 a share in past fiscal year. This will be around double the dividends paid.

EASTERN Steamship officials expect ample traffic for operation of its four vast vessels on Boston-New York route.

MAYFLOWER-Old Colony reports mining in section of ground carrying gratifying values. This is on 2,700-foot or bottom level.

ARCADIAN Consolidated in south Ariz. of New Cornelia, 1,250-foot level, has encountered fault that appeared on the 1,100-foot level.

ATCHISON plans improvements in Emporia, Kans., for 1923 of about $5,000,000.

CALUMET & Hecla work has been delayed by the illness of Pope Yeatman, who with J. R. Finlay, has been making survey of physical properties of companies. Mr. Yeatman is now convalescing in South and expects to be back at the Lake middle of February.

COAL PRICES remain firm so that Island Creek's earnings show no diminution from the recent rate. According to Federal Fuel Distributor Wadleigh, however, prices may be expected soon to ease off from their current peak levels.

FOUR ESTATES of the Punta Alegre Sugar Company, had made 196,000 bags of sugar up to January 22. This includes about 75,000 bags for Baragua, the property acquired by Punta Alegre last year.

TRADING DULL, WITH OILS AND RAILS ACTIVE

Profit-taking worked many issues slightly lower in an irregular week-end New York market. Oils and rails were most active, with trading generally dull. Baltimore & Ohio for the third consecutive day established a new high for the year.

Kresge was pushed up 1¾ to 210, a new high record, on publication of favorable earnings statements. Corn Products dropped a point, and Royal Dutch 2 points, Bethlehem and Gulf Steels improved fractionally at the start, but Bethlehem later lost its gain.

Marine preferred dropped 1¼ points to 35, a new low record since 1921.

Willys Overland preferred dropped 4 point.

There was a fair demand for some of the dividend-paying rails. Lackawanna, New York Central, Norfolk & Western and Chicago & Northwestern gained ½ to 1 point.

Advances of 1 to 1¼ points were recorded by Columbia Gas, Savage Arms and Spicer Manufacturing. Chandler Motor, American Smelting and Standard Oil of California also moved to higher ground.

Continued composure of stock market indicated that foreign situation was more than offset by rapidly expanding business in various branches of industry in the United States.

Steel, copper and oil prices are advancing. This upward tendency is caused by increasing consumption. In fact, production is not keeping pace with consumption. Annual reports show inventories of a majority of corporations are at the lowest level in years, and result in heavy demand for raw material. There is a shortage of diversity of labor and full employment means a country-wide demand for finished products.

N. Y. CURB STOPS SALE OF MARKS

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS IN BOSTON

The daily testimony of the market itself bears heavily on the side of optimism. Bull markets do not terminate as a rule with money still easy nor with commercial promise unfulfilled.—Tucker, Anthony & Co.

It seems likely that this sidewise tendency will continue a few weeks longer, but the longer this period of indecisive movement, the greater will be the declined movement when it comes. It will be surprising to us, in view of the rising tide of business, if—barring foreign disaster—that movement is not in an upward direction.—Hayden, Stone & Co.

The general undercurrent appears to be strong, and if a more favorable situation should develop in Europe the natural direction of prices should be upward. Unless the dispatches from Europe assume a more alarming character, it appears to be advisable to purchase good stocks on reactions.—Elmer H. Bright & Co.

Present sidewise movement of the stock market may continue for some weeks further, but as we approach the Spring months, we look for a resumption of the forward movement of security values.—Schirmer, Atherton & Co.

MOVIE NEWS AND NOTES

EXIT the curly hair—the marcelle wave. It's day is gone, and there is much lamentation among those who preside over beauty parlors where permanent waves are installed at $20 a wave.

Gloria Swanson—radiant Gloria of the screen—makes this decree and she backs it up by untangling every kink in her pretty hair and stretching it straight across her head. It is another thrust at the flapper-like styles which have predominated art, society and the screen for a long time, and Gloria expects to be the first to carry the assault against the enemy lines. The general trend in new fashions has been toward the severe. The high waist line has been dropped to the hips, or has been obliterated altogether; the short skirt has been replaced by the ankle length gown and bobbed hair has become suddenly passe.

Miss Swanson proposes to carry the reaction one step farther and take the curl out of her hair. The curling iron and the waver have been laid on the shelf, and she says she is happy at their departure. In her newest picture, "My American Wife," Miss Swanson wears her hair straight—straighter than it has ever been worn by a beautifully gowned, manicured and coiffured lady of the speechless drama. And she remains a stunning picture in detail—even to the waveless hair.

GLORIA SWANSON

THE GUESTS DEPARTED.

THE guide at the Metro studios was tired, and as the round of the various sets was made, the group of sightseers kept inquiring whether they couldn't be filmed in one picture or another. Finally, a bit weared, he steered them over to the castle hall scene for "When Knighte Were Cold."

"It's easy," he said. "You just stand around and talk. Somebody turns the fire hose on you, the water pressure is pretty strong and it'll knock you down, but that's nothing to worry about. There's a first aid station below and ambulances waiting at the gates will take the more seriously wounded to the emergency hospital downtown.

"This way to the dressing room, friends. Let me show you."

But there was nothing for him to show. And no one to show it to. The guide's party was making a bee line for the exit.

Studio Notes

Flora Finch, best known of American comediennes, who will be remembered for her long association with the late John Bunny in pictures, is lying in a plaster cast in a New York hospital as a result of an injury sustained in the taking of her latest picture, "Luck."

Lew Cody, who did for the trick moustache what a certain brand of beer did for Milwaukee, has gone and shaved it (the moustache) off. He had worn it for seven years. Lew is playing the high-powered villain in "Souls For Sale."

* * *

Al Christie has signed Kathleen Clifford for a special Christie Comedy. The story has been selected and production will soon start.

* * *

Rob Wagner, author of numerous stories based on studio life, once a mechanical engineer and for the past year a member of the Titling Department at the Lasky studio, is to become a Paramount direc or.

* * *

James Kirkwood, now starring in a New York stage production, is just finished another picture. It is called "You Are Guilty."

Information for Inquiring Fans

Questions should be addressed to the Moving Picture Editor, Boston American.

J. W. L.—Maclyn Arbuckle was not born in Boston, but in San Antonio, Texas, of Henry B. Harris. He had already played serious roles on the European stage. She was born in Warsaw.

M. E. J.—Pedro DeCordoba is probably Spanish by descent, although he was not born in Spain. He is a native New Yorker.

H. B. L.—Yes, Ethel Barrymore has appeared in pictures, although her excursion to the screen was rather brief.

Johnny, Medford—Ben Turpin was once a member of Sam T. Jack's burlesque company and upon entering pictures became the first comedian to introduce slapstick methods. His home is in Los Angeles.

* * *

N. D. F.—Pearl White was once a child actress and played Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

HUB BUSINESS BOARD ACTIVE IN CLEANUP

The Boston Better Business Commission, Inc., today made public its first annual report.

During the existence of the commission 309 reports were issued in response to inquiries, informing inquirers as to the character of 329 companies. Three fake companies were reported by the commission to the police, resulting in the promoters leaving town. Through its investigation the commission developed information indicating the use of the mails to defraud, on the part of a coal concern. This case is in the hands of the postal authorities. The commission has called to the attention of the Public Utilities Commission sixteen companies regarded as needing investigation.

It answered 253 requests for information from affiliated commissions, adjusted 102 complaints of individuals against retail establishments in Boston and held a large number of meetings in the interests of the mission of the commission, which is stated to be as follows:

"The furthering of honesty, truthfulness and dependability in advertising, merchandising and in all business methods and practices, and fair competition in trade and business," Charles F. Wead is president of the commission, George B. Johnson is vice-president and Freeman Hinckley is treasurer. The directors board and advisory committee comprise in their personnel some of the best known business and advertising men in Boston.

Church Notes

Dr. George W. Carey of Los Angeles, Cal., who for the past two weeks has been lecturing at the Universal Educator Centre at No. 480 Boylston street, has been invited to continue his meetings indefinitely. A remarkable demonstration of the real truth, as outlined in his talks on "The God Within," have proved so interesting that the invitation to prolong his stay indefinitely followed as a natural outcome.

Forty-Eight Hour Law

Vote on Fact-Finding Commission Indicates Its Passage in New Hampshire House by Large Majority

The Democratic House of Representatives in New Hampshire has killed a resolution for a Fact-Finding Commission on the forty-eight-hour law by the big majority of 182 to 128.

Considering the way New Hampshire is gerrymandered to give the Republicans and the conservative interests an unfair representation in both the Senate and the House, this vote shows there will be in the House a very large majority in favor of a law concerning which the manufacturers have made so many misrepresentations to the farmers, who, by reason of the fact that they are a majority of the people of New Hampshire, control its law-making body whenever they exert themselves to do so.

The majority was all the more encouraging in that it was obtained over the head of some of the ablest Democratic majority leaders, men whose experience and ability are unquestioned and whose sincerity has never been questioned. The demand for the forty-eight-hour law, which would put the conditions of the New Hampshire workingmen on a level with the conditions of the Massachusetts workingmen, must have been very great indeed to have caused the overriding of such leaders as Ex-Congressman Raymond B. Stevens, who favors a forty-eight-hour law, but advocated as an intermediate step the appointment of a Fact-Finding Commission.

We assume that Mr. Stevens' motive was to be able to show the farmers through this Fact-Finding Commission that the pretense of the manufacturers to the effect that a forty-eight-hour law intended for the manufacturing conditions would apply to their labor in harvest time.

Those who make this pretense are insincere. It has no such effect in Massachusetts or anywhere else, and it could be made to have no such effect in New Hampshire. Naturally, the farmers would want to know all the facts, and we suppose that it is this situation which made Ex-Governor Bass and Ex-Congressman Stevens think that a Fact-Finding Commission would be the surer, though the slower, method.

However, under Governor Brown's leadership, they have struck straight at the bull's eye, and we hope that a majority can be obtained in the Senate, where, however, the iniquities of the gerrymander have given the reactionary element of the State a majority in an election in which the liberal element obtained a large majority.

Church Quarrels

Most Distressing

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

If Martin Luther, who in full faith threw his inkstand at the devil and thought he almost hit him, could come back, he would be worried about his Protestant church.

While Bishop Manning, head of the Protestant Episcopalians in New York, preaches on "These Are Faithful Unto Death," Dr. Grant in New York preaches his second sermon indicating that each may use his judgment as to the divinity and power of Christ, and the crowd that packs his church while some other churches are half empty applaud loudly for a minute and a half.

That is a long way from our Pilgrim fathers that would put you in jail if you exhibited a red geranium in your front window on Sunday.

The Rev. Dr. Straton of New York, another clergyman, talks plainly and goes even farther than Bishop Manning, who says those that attack Christian teaching "may be the devil himself."

Dr. Straton says that Dr. Grant, a fellow laborer in the vineyard, is worse than Bob Ingersoll. For the latter Dr. Straton has respect, so he says.

If Ingersoll were here he would enjoy the present fight in an ungodly way. Everybody remembers his righteous exultation when he was to speak in a certain town hall located between a church and a drinking saloon, side by side. The night before his lecture there was a terrible storm and the lightning struck the church.

Don't Be Unprepared

That's the Warning Germany Gives to the World

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

One thing all nations should learn from Germany. This nation, especially, should learn it.

DON'T LET YOURSELF BE CAUGHT WITHOUT ARMS.

The Germans looked on while their flying machines, cannon and battleships were all scrapped. Everything that could be used for DEFENCE was destroyed or taken from them.

Now the French march in and take what they want. It is too late for Germany to do any thinking about it. But the situation should be remembered by Americans, when economists, pacifists or others try to persuade this country that it does not need complete war preparation.

Fortunately for us, as far as the United States is concerned, the right preparation would be simple and economical. FLYING MACHINES, SUBMARINES, AMMUNITION FACTORIES, making nitrogen for the farmers' fertilizer in peace time, ready to supply explosives in war—those are the principal things. We should have the latest, the best, and PLENTY.

Fewer Children Are Dying

Because the Government Is Interested

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Infant mortality is decreasing, thanks largely to the Children's Bureau of Labor, forty-two States having accepted government aid in this work. What are the other six doing—waiting for Dr. Coue to take care of the children?

Those who say that the government ought not "to interfere" in such a private matter as the birth of children will please observe that in this country the death rate of mothers in childbirth is higher than in any other civilized country in the world.

A government that helps the farmer to take care of the mother of a litter of new born pigs might well interest itself in mothers of a higher grade.

WINIFRED BLACK ON GENIUS

By Winifred Black

THE great preacher's daughter has been arrested for forging checks.

No, it's his granddaughter—and now all the old ladies will begin to quote the proverb about "ministers' sons—"

What a nuisance it must be to be the daughter or granddaughter of a celebrity!

It's like being under a microscope all the time, or a pair of strong opera glasses—every little fault and every little freckle magnified to the last degree.

Why is it that great men's sons so seldom turn out to be great themselves?

Perhaps there is something in genius that makes it impossible to hand it down.

Genius is a flame, it's a star, it's a comet, it comes in a flash and goes in a flicker—that's one of the ways we know it is genius.

You can't hand it down any more than you can hold the colors of the rainbow in the sky and make them bloom there against the clouds—forever.

And besides—the children of a genius are always overshadowed.

It is a bad th ng for a boy to be always pointed out as John Smith's son.

It either makes him an idle, vain fool, who thinks he can live on reflection of his father's glory forever, or it humiliates and embarrasses him, and turns him into a humble echo of somebody he never was the least bit like to begin with.

Here's th you and yours, and me and mine, and all the rest of the common-class everyday people—we're the lucky ones after all.

Rents Home for 50 Cents a Year

PUCYRUS, O., Jan. 27.—That a German family which recently came over from the Fatherland is paying $40 a month rent for the home in which they are living, near here, after renting their old home in the old country for 10,000 marks annually (about 50 cents at the present rate of exchange), is the information contained in a letter received from a brother at Buffalo by Miss Naomi Hipp, city nurse here for the Red Cross and welfare associations.

Refrigerator Cars

Editor Boston American:

I am a patron of the Boston Elevated, using cars between Brighton and the city every day. I leave Brighton between 6:45 and 7 o'clock each morning. And I travel to Boston in a refrigerator car. Boston "El" refrigerator cars are just like others, except that the heat is shut off.

Why is it that the early workers have to put up with this kind of service? It costs just as much to ride in a refrigerator car as in one that is warm, so the company can't claim exemption because of lower fares. Furthermore, all cars, at this time of day, are crowded.

I think the citizens who use the cars should make one big howl for better service. I am willing to do my share. It is impossible to read a newspaper without fear of frostbitten fingers.

This morning my feet were actually numb when I reached Park street. Give us some heat, Mr. Dana. J. L. PARKINSON.

Justice and Brotherhood

Editor Boston American:

We hear much of late through the press of certain high churchmen and doctors of theology discussing the why and the wherefore of common law and dogmatic belief. It would be much better, to my mind, if they would discuss methods as to how to bring into being the religion taught by the Lowly Nazarene, namely, justice and brotherhood. Wouldn't it be more essential and practical for men of the cloth who represent His ideals to discuss the present issues and suggest to the present Congress the installing in their chamber at Washington of a tablet suitably inscribed with the Sermon on the Mount?

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally

Coat and Shoes

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a female airdale dog, 8 months, black saddle. Also a woman's coat, size 40, and shoes, sizes 3½ and 4. MRS. M. L. B.

ED. NOTE—The dog seems to be a settled proposition, and Mrs. M. L. B. will be put in touch with a needy family who can use the coat and shoes.

Suit and Waist

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a lady's extra good gray suit, size 40 or 42, in good condition, also a waist, that I would like to exchange for a good-sized mirror, one that will help me in my dressmaking. I have two girl's coats, ages seven and eleven, if I had some worthy person's address. MRS. M. O.

ED. NOTE—You will be put in touch with a family in need of the girl's clothes.

Has a Twin Carriage

Editor Helping Hand:

In answer to J. K.'s request, I wish to say that I have a square Chickering piano that I would like to sell for $10, provided that the party comes for it. I can't afford to give it away, as I have a large family to provide for. I also have a twin carriage that I would exchange for a stroller. MRS. A. N.

ED. NOTE—Your address will be forwarded to J. K., who asked for the piano.

Needs Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a young mother, nineteen years old, and, having read of your kindness to others, am writing to ask for a little help. I would be very thankful to know if any one has any old clothes they would like to give away, as I am badly in need of some. My husband has been out of work for a long time, and we are just barely able to get along. I wear size 16 or 18 and a number 4 shoe. MRS. F. R.

Good Home

Editor Helping Hand:

Here is another good home for another poor girl with a chance to advance her education, with five dollars a week for helping with the housework for a couple who are musical. Catholic preferred. Would be glad to help some orphan. MRS. A. C.

Wheel Chair

Editor Helping Hand:

Has anyone a wheel chair that can be worked out of doors by the hands for a crippled woman? I would be willing to pay a little something. M. J. B.

Old-Fashioned Mats

Editor Helping Hand:

Would like the address of some woman who braids old-fashioned mats, using colored rags for light effects, as I want certain colors in the rugs. Could furnish material, but would like the work done. MRS. W. B. M.

ED. NOTE—There should be several answers to this, so perhaps we may be forehanded and ask if there is anyone else who would like rugs braided to order. They are very fashionable, the fashion editor says.

Many Doctors in England

LONDON, Jan. 27.—No profession in England has suffered more from overcrowding than the medical profession. Since the war the number of entrants into the profession has made it a serious problem in regard to what is to become of the students for whom no hospital accommodation can be provided.

Many parents are asking whether all the students now passing through the medical schools will be able to obtain appointments or find a practice that will provide a livelihood.

"The number of men entering the medical profession and cutting each other's throats is appalling. I am a surgeon, but I have not allowed my son to enter. He has gone into business."

This was the statement made by Dr. M. V. McKechnie, of Eastbourne, in reference to a situation which is arousing serious apprehension among the medical profession generally.

ANOTHER FORTUNE FOR EDUCATION AND RELIGION

By Herbert Kaufman

AN Oklahoma oil well is producing 7,000 barrels per day and every day Willie Newberry, the owner, receives $1,000 royalty. Royalty is an interesting word. It originally meant the percentage pinched out of everybody's earnings for the King's purse.

Kings' purses in turn are pinched nowadays. Few reigning monarchs receive as much as $365,000 a year. And none of them expect salary increases.

Newberry is an Indian. He owns a 500-acre farm adjoining an equal tract—a gift to his children. There are probably more wells on the property, so it's likely that a thousand a day is just a starter.

You doubtless think an Indian shouldn't have so much money. He's of the same mind. Newberry, prosperous long before his lucky strike, for years liberally supported schools and churches. He announces that the bulk of his fortune will continue to promote education and religion.

Two white men in the nearby Burk-Burnett fields celebrated sudden plutocracy in a different way.

They built an inaccessible, flashy hotel on the site of their lone shanty and promptly and literally gorged themselves to death on imported hothouse peaches bought by the case at a dollar a peach.

Senator Bursum, who believes that the Pueblos should stand aside for a superior race, is invited to ponder.

This Man Belongs in a Dog Pound

Alonzo Howard, of the indicated superior race, has appeared in Long Island courts fifteen times and always on a charge of wife-beating.

Men usually beat their wives for infidelity or drunkenness. The Chicago man, whose wife confessed to wearing a paper frock at a dance where she permitted it to be stripped from her person, might with good reason have met her folly with a caning.

Howard's wife and the mother of his children is merely guilty of blindness. Please note also that the cowardly maulings did not start until after she lost her sight. Long Island challenges the world to produce a comparable cur.

Howard goes to jail for ninety days. He belongs in the pound—and its gas chamber.

The Turk Turns to America

Mustapha Kemal, stalemating and stalemated at Lausanne, turns west and begs our moral and practical support for the Turkish cause.

There are several abiding reasons why the sympathy of America is not for the Constantinople government.

Howard exemplifies one reason—this country doesn't believe in woman-beaters or child-stabbers. Or the massacre of crones and graybeards.

We remember too well the shambles that once was Armenia. Syrian shrieks still ring in our ears.

Another Turk generation profiting from the ostracism of this, may some day offer clean hands to civilization. The stains upon them now repulse the clasp of friendship.

France Discovers Ancient Friends

Concession hunters, of course, take a more practical view of the situation.

Poincare, reassuming the traditional attitude of his country, is also inclined to be practical with respect to Kemal. France has notoriously closed her eyes before the grim tragedies staged in Asia Minor. French bankers underwrote the Sultan's loans at the height of Abdul Hamid's fanatic oppression of Christian subjects.

Throughout those bloody years, Le Cri de Paris, to which M. Poincare himself once regularly contributed, practically stood alone in denouncing the sublime porte.

Now American and British treatment of these "ancient friends" of France grieves him. He objects to Curzon's treaty. He would have no ultimatums to compel its acceptance.

The rift between the allies slowly widens

Wolves and Werewolves

Milwaukee wires that a few wolves are prowling about adjacent villages. Hunters will soon take care of those strays. All the wild animals left on the continent need occasion no alarm.

But the back of werewolves now ravaging from coast to coast may well rouse national terror.

Werewolves are creatures of legend, human beings reputed to take the form of beasts. The perverted gang, furnishing cocaine and morphine and heroin to more than a million addicts, is stark reality.

Waves of assault, murder, theft and delinquency are born of the hyperdermic needle and the "ooke" deck.

Forces of law and order are resourceless against this sudden plague that ever strikes down school children and spreads from lips of infants to the very cores of society.

Incidentally, dope pedlars and the Ku Klux Klan are not known among the Pueblos.

No Bread Lines This Winter

Soft coal operators and their men have signed a peace treaty. The miners gain their point and both sides lose by millions. The public gets a bigger bill. Strike news is day by day fading from print.

Between constructive legislation and more economical administration the republic's affairs keep prospering. Sears Roebuck, with a deficit of over $16,000,000 in 1921, announces a net income of $5,000,000 plus.

Steel orders far exceed output, stocks stand firm under strong assault. But best of all, the army of unemployment in New York city alone has dropped from 330,000 to 100,000.

There's no bread line in Manhattan this Winter.

And that should be a headline.
